F.D.R. Says Social Tax Boost Wise

President Is Opposed to Freezing Payroll Taxes at Present Levels

Points Out Danger

Funds Now Used Must Be Increased to Insure Future

Washington, Oct. 9 (AP) — The Senate voted today to place on top of the regular income tax a 5 per cent "Victory" levy against all earnings of individuals in excess of $624 yearly.

Adoption of the new wartime tax came on a voice voter after the Senate had rejected a proposal by Senator Downey (D-Calif) to enlarge the basic exemption to $1,200 yearly and boost the levy to 10 per cent on earings aboce $2,400.

Washington, Oct. 9 (AP)—President Roosevelt notified Congress today that the doubling of Social Security taxes next January 1 would be "not only in accord with the necessities of the Social Security System itself, but at the same time would contribute to the non-inflationary financing of rapidly mounting war expenditures."

In a letter to Chairman George (D.-Ga.) of the Senate finance committee, the President expressed opposition to a committee-approved amendment to the new revenue bill which would freeze payroll taxes at their present levels of one per cent on employers and a like amount on employes for 1943.

This amendment, adopted by the committee on motion of Senator Vandenberg (R.-Mich.) but not yet voted upon by the Senate, would stay an otherwise automatic increase of the tax on January 1 to two per cent each on employers and employes.

The President said that as soon as Congress had disposed of the pending tax bill, he was planning to submit a comprehensive program for expanding and extending the whole Social Security System along the lines he had suggested in his budget message last January.

At that time the President proposed to enlarge the system to take in many workers not now covered, such as farm laborers and domestics.

The President said the proposed freezing of the tax rate was "causing considerable concern to many persons insured under the Old Age and Survivors Insurance System."

He said that the failure to allow the automatic increase to go into effect "would cause a real and justifiable fear that adequate funds will not be accumulated to meet the heavy obligations of the future and that the claims for benefits accruing under the present law may be jeopardized."

Vandenberg has contended that the Social Security reserve fund now is far in excess of the legal requirement laid down by Congress.

Washington, Oct. 9 (AP) — The position of the Treasury October 7: Receipts $19,718,744.46; expenditures, $260,908,811.03; net balance, $3,414, 196,178.28; working balance included, $2,651,710,695.11; customs receipts for month $4,-880,528.25; receipts ficsal year (July 1)., $4,006,726,558.70; expenditures fiscal year, $17,726,362,-637.46; excess of expenditures, $13,719,636,078.76; total debt, $91,-437,969,941.92; increase over previous day, $123,249,985.20; gold assets, $22,765,055,608.90.

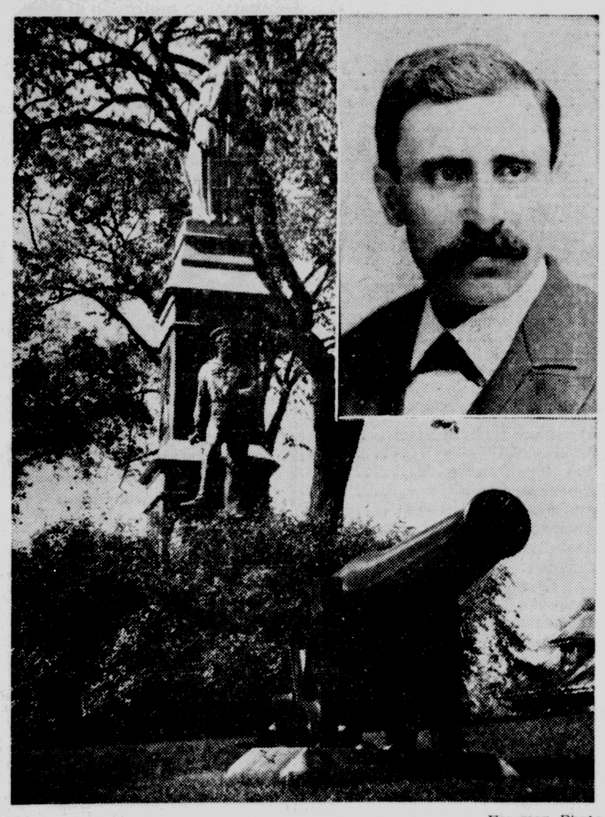

Restriction Is Asked

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 9 (AP)—Restriction in the use of school-owned buses to transport contestants and spectators to athletic events or practice places was recommended today by the State War Council. Proposing operation of such buses be limited to "essential student transportation," the council also urged in a statement that "special convenience trips for observation, recreation or social purposes be eliminated."

Flynn Is Convicted

New York, Oct. 9 (AP)—William Flynn, 23-year-old Bronx stock clerk, was convicted of first degree murder in general sessions court yesterday. The verdict carries a mandatory death penalty. Flynn was charged with shooting and killing Claude Phelps, a painter. Judge Jacobs Gould Schurman, Jr., praised the jury for a "courageous verdict," which it reached after only four hours of deliberation.

Rationing Board Outlines 3 Steps For Winter's Oil

Inventory of Fuel in Tank, Last Year's Amount, Floor Area Needed

Three steps which every consumer of fuel oil should take immediately to assure receipt of a fuel oil ration book were outlined today by Chairman John M. Cashin of the Kingston War Price and Rationing Board.

The steps, according to instructions received from Lee S. Buckingham, New York state director of the Office of Price Administration, are:

If you did not take an inventory on October 1 of the fuel oil in the storage tank in your home, do it now. This information will be required on a fuel oil ration application form which must be filled out and mailed to your local board.

If you have in the past obtained fuel oil from a regular dealer, he will probably mail to you very soon your fuel oil ration application and a certificate showing your fuel oil purchases from him for the 12-month period ending May 31, 1942.

Measure the floor area of each room in your home which is used for living or sleeping purposes. Do not include basement, laundries, sleeping porches, sun porches, garage space, recreation rooms, work shops, attics and any other space for which heating is not essential. Floor area figures will be required on your fuel oil ration application.

Leaves for Norfolk

New York, Oct. 9 (AP)—Phil Rizzuto, diminutive shortstop whose play was a highlight of the New York Yankees in the recent World Series, leaves tonight for the Norfolk, Va., naval base where tomorrow he starts training as a seaman first class.

Sol Appel Brought Cannons to City In August, 1897

With the two large cannon and the pile of cannon balls on the city lawn headed toward Uncle Sam's scrap pile, it is recalled that the cannon and cannon balls were secured 45 years ago from the U. S. Ordnance Department at Washington, D. C., on August 3, 1897, through the courtesy of the late Sol Appel of 70 Abeel street, who for years conducted a retail shoe store on lower Broadway.

Mr. Appel took up the matter of obtaining the cannon from his cousin, Samuel Behrend, who at that time was chief of the Ordnance Department, and his request was granted.

The cannon and cannon balls were presented to General Grant Post, No. 566, G. A. R., of which Mr. Appel was a member, and later were turned over to the city, and installed in front of the city hall.

The two 32-pounder guns weigh 9,120 pounds and the 115 projectiles 3,680 pounds, making the total weight of cannon and balls, 12,800 pounds.

The cannon and balls arrived via the New York Central railroad and were brought across the Hudson river from Rhinebeck on the ferry.

To defray the expense of transportation and mounting the guns the following men contributed to a fund: Mayor Henry E. Wieber, Carl G. Fischer, James E. Phinney, Henry Abbey, A. S. Staples, Daniel Murphy, John S. Thompson, Pitts Brothers, Isaac N. Weiner, C. Hiltebrant & Son, Senator Jacob Rice, Frank M. Madden, Canfield Stove Co., Chris A. Murray, William Derrenbacher, H. S. Cafe Mop Wielder, Once Welder, Soon Gets Call for Production Job

By WILLIAM F. BONI
(Wide World Military Editor)

Los Angeles, Oct. 9 — John Brown wields a mop in a cafe on Hill street in downtown Los Angeles. But on the occupational questionnaire he filled in for his draft board he reported he once was employed as a welder.

It doesn't take long for the U. S. Employment Service to spot that item on their copy of Brown's occupational report which they received from his draft board. Within a few days Brown gets a politely-worded printed card, asking that he call between 8 a. m. and 4 p. m., any time from October 5 to October 10, at U. S. E. S. headquarters, a four-story beehive on Flower street.

Here John Brown is interviewed thoroughly, and U. S. E. S. discovers exactly what sort of welding he can do. Perhaps he was an aluminum welder. In that case Lockheed or Douglas or Consolidated will be very glad to get him. If he worked in steel, the California Shipbuilding Corporation has a spot for him.

John Brown thereupon, in the words of local U. S. E. S. Boss Arthur Wood, is "exposed to employment." He isn't told to shift to airplane or shipbuilding But it is suggested to him that, in these times, he would be doing the country more good by welding oil tanks for Vultee trainers than by swinging a mop in the Idle-Hour Cafe. Usually John Brown agrees.

Not Formal, Polite

If a man is unemployed, U. S. E. S. is not so formal and polite. It sends him a more brusquely-worded notice, to report at a specific time, and if he doesn't reply to that or to a second call, his case is turned over to the War

President Advises Congress Provide Assistance Method

Rehabilitation Would Help Both War Veterans and Civilians, Acting Under F.S.A.

Washington, Oct. 9 (AP)—President Roosevelt recommended to Congress today that legislation be enacted creating under the federal security administration a single rehabilitation service for both war veterans and civilians.

"We are going to win this war," he said in a special message read in the Senate, "but the winning will require the best efforts of every individual."

He added that among those already making full contribution in the war effort were physically handicapped people who had been rehabilitated, and that upwards of a million persons were now waiting for services of the type that only a fully developed rehabilitation program can give them."

The text of the message:

"We are going to win this war but the winning will require the best efforts of every individual. Among those who are already making full contribution are those physically handicapped people who have been rehabilitated.

"Upwards of a million persons are now waiting for services of the type that only a full developed rehabilitation program can give them. We know that there is nothing wrong with the spirit of these people, but without special assistance they may become a social as well as an economic liability.

"With an adequate program in their behalf they will become a national asset ready to serve in war industries, agricultural, and in other essential occupations.

"In addition, the increasing participation of this nation in the war is resulting in an increase in military casualtes and will result in a greater increase. Because of the tremendous strides in medical science during the past two decades, a much larger proportion of these casualties will be non-fatal and will require rehabilitation service.

"Our present provisions in this field are inadequate to meet this task. They need to be strengthened and standardized through the creation under the federal security administration of a rehabilitation service.

"Provisions should be made not only for persons now handicapped, but also for persons disabled while members of the armed forces and for the increasing number of accident cases that are accompanying the rapid expansion of our war industries.

"In order to secure the most effective utilization of the capabilities of the physically handicapped it is important that a single rehabilitation service be established for both veterans and civilians.

"Veterans, after receiving the benefits and services provided by the veterans administration, would be certified to the rehabilitation service for vocational rehabilitation whenever this is indicated.

"While the present plan for federal-state cooperation should be preserved in this field of training, where it has chiefly operated, the rehabilitation service should look after the other aspects of this problem and discharge what is plainly a federal responsibility—the provision of service to all persons whose disability grows out of the conduct of the war.

"Such legislation should permit the establishment of a program adequate to our present needs and should at the same time provide the experience and personnel which will be able to meet such additional burdens as the war may bring."

Last Japanese Foothold in Aleutians Is Blasted as Additional Heavy Blows Are Given in Solomons

(By The Associated Press)

American warplanes, blasting at Japan's invasion footholds at both ends of the far-flung Pacific conflict, were officially credited today with raining 15 tons of bombs on the enemy's last remaining base in the Aleutian Islands, at Kiska, and dealing heavy blows to Japanese forces in the Solomons.

A U. S. Navy communique today said American Army Liberator bombers, escorted by Airacobra and Lightning fighters, unloaded seven tons of high-explosives around a Japanese seaplane hangar at Kiska and then dropped eight more tons of bombs on the enemy encampment. The attack was made October 6.

The raiders also attacked two Japanese cargo ships in Kiska harbor, leaving one of them sinking in flames, and strafed the enemy's radio station.

The Navy again reported that aerial reconnaissance "failed to reveal any enemy activity" on Attu and Agattu Islands, in the western-most Aleutians, which the Japanese apparently abandoned several weeks ago.

In the Southwest Pacific, the Navy disclosed that an American aircraft carrier force striking at the heart of the main Japanese invasion base in the northern Solomon Islands destroyed eight Japanese air craft and damaged five ships including a heavy cruiser.

Other developments in the Pacific struggle:

Burma—U. S. army headquarters in India announced that American war planes attacked Japanese barracks, river craft and other military facilities in a series of raids against the enemy in northern Burma and next-door Yunnan Province in China.

Low-flying U. S. army pilots also destroyed a Burmese railway bridge and ripped up 600 feet of track with their bombs.

China — Dispatches from the North China front reported that the Japanese failed in an apparent attempt to kill Wendell L. Willkie, President Roosevelt's emissary and an outspoken advocate of vigorous offensive action against the Axis.

Woman, 84, Dies Of Burns Caused In Lighting Stove

Mrs. Hedwig Haussman, Pine Hill, Found Dead in Bathroom Where She Fought Flames

Attempting to light a fire in the kitchen stove about noon Thursday, Mrs. Hedwig Haussman, 84-year-old Pine Hill woman, was burned fatally when kerosene she was using apparently flared up setting fire to her clothing. Mrs. Haussman was found in the bathroom burned to death by Fred Cure who had gone to the Haussman boarding house about noon to deliver groceries.

On arrival at the house, which is known as the Minisink House on Birth Creek road, he found the place full of smoke and on investigation found the aged woman in the bathroom where she had apparently gone to extinguish the fire. A tub of water had been drawn but she had been unable to put out the fire in her clothing and when found the clothing was badly burned.

It is presumed she had attempted to start the fire with kerosene as a can was found by the kitchen stove. Apparently the aged woman met her death shortly before the arrival of Mr. Cure who frequently delivered groceries at the boarding house. When the body was discovered there were still burning remnants on the floor but the house had not been ignited.

Mrs. Haussman, who lived alone and operated the boarding house, is survived by one son Major William Haussman who was notified at Baton Rouge, La., and he was expected to arrive home today.

Sergeant McCarvey and Trooper Taylor of Margaretville were summoned and Trooper Edward Croswell was also notified of the tragedy. Deputy Sheriff Howard Kelder was summoned and assisted in the investigation and remained at the house pending arrival of the son. Coroner Henry Lamouree of Saugerties was summoned and investigated the matter. An autopsy was ordered and the body was taken in charge by the Breithaupt Funeral Home in Phoenicia. No funeral arrangements were made pending arrival of Major Haussman.

Finds Three Yolks

Mrs. Jacob Depew of Walker Valley the other day was getting ready to fry an egg. In breaking the shell she was surprised to find the egg contained three yolks. This was the first time she said, that she had ever seen three yolks in one egg, although she had often cracked an egg containing two yolks. The egg was purchased from "The Maples" owned by James G. Greer.

Two Arrested

Patrick J. Ryan, 58, of Milton and Alex Domboski, 50, who said he had no home, were arrested in Milton today by Trooper William Martin on disorderly conduct charges. Justice P. A. Lyon of Milton fined them $20 each in default of which they were committed to the Ulster county jail for 20 days.

Japs Have Shown Signs of Retreat

Withdrawals, However, May Be Part of Plan to Trick Allies

(This column, conducted as a daily feature by Dewitt Mackenzie, Wide World war analyst, is written today by Glenn Babb. Mackenzie, now in Britain on an extensive tour of the active war zones, is expected to resume with tomorrow's Column.)

The last ten or twelve weeks have been a period of retreat for the Japanese. On three major fronts they have yielded ground, much of it bitterly won at high cost in men and weapons. On the others they have given no convincing signs of new advances in preparation. It would be easy, thinking wishfully, to suggest that the tide of Japanese conquest that spread so rapidly and disastrously for the United Nations throughout the first half year of the Pacific war has begun its ebb. But wishful thinking is always dangerous and there are indications aplenty that the resourceful enemy is doing what he can to encourage us in that enjoyable, but weakening occupation. For example, we will be wise to examine with all possible skepticism those hints issued by Doctor Goebbels' propaganda machine that the attempt to take Stalingrad is about to be abandoned.

Nevertheless let's take a look at the recent record in the Pacific, reading the map from north to south.

All the evidence is that the Japanese have abandoned two of the three Far Western Aleutian Islands they seized last June as a sideshow to their disastrous dash across the international dateline toward Midway and Hawaii. Our fliers report no signs of life on Attu and Agattu; and it appears that only on Kiska a sorely battered Japanese garrison is trying to dig itself underground in the hopes of remaining and so justifying the Tokyo government's boast that its forces hold North American territory.

Conquests Have Evaporated

In China, still the main battleground for the Japanese army, a summer's conquests have evaporated. There probably is some justification for Tokyo's claim that the retreats in China were according to plan and to permit new dispositions of Japanese forces, but the fact remains that territory and

Assault Is Biggest Yet By Air Force

Reds Push Gains

Germans Are Given Bloody Rout Around Stalingrad

(By The Associated Press)

More than 100 United States bombers attacked the industrial Lille region of northern France today in the biggest American bomber and fighter forces ever to take the air in the European war theatre.

United States Army Air Forces headquarters, promising a more detailed announcement later, issued this terse communique:

"More than 100 U. S. A. A. F. bombers attacked targets in the Lille area this morning.

"Many squadrons of fighters took part in this operation."

A big part of the bombing force, an extraordinary number for a daylight raid, was made up of great, four-motored Flying Fortresses, and the Americans were joined in the assault by the R. A. F. and many squadrons of Allied fighters.

United States fliers in American fighter planes participated in the raid.

(Until now, the only fighter plane the Americans had been mentioned officially as using in Britain was the British-made Spitfire.)

Soviet headquarters reported today that Russian troops had broken into German trenches northwest of Stalingrad and beat off four night attacks inside the Volga metropolis, while the Nazis captured two streets of an industrial suburb at a sacrifice of 2,000 dead.

For the first time since the siege began, Adolf Hitler's field headquarters omitted any mention of the gigantic battle for Stalingrad.

Soviet reports said German invasion columns sweeping south of Stalingrad had advanced into the U. S. S. R. autonomous area of Kalmyck, which lies along the lower Volga to the Caspian Sea.

(The Germans long ago claimed they had captured Elista, a major city of the Kalmyck area, about 180 miles west of the big Caspian seaport of Astrakhan.)

It was not immediately clear whether this meant that the Nazis, disheartened by the slaughter and lack of success at Stalingrad, were now turning south.

Latest reports said the fighting at Stalingrad was still intense.

Dispatches said the violence of the 46-day-old German assault was rising, despite a Nazi broadcast last night indicating that Axis shock troops would be withdrawn and that the city would be pounded into surrender by heavy siege guns and dive bombers.

"The fight for Stalingrad has changed," the broadcast said, quoting German military quarters.

Several versions of the Berlin broadcast were heard by Allied listening-posts, all hinting that the battered siege armies would be withdrawn to a safe distance.

"The strategic objective at Stalingrad has already been achieved," one version declared.

"It is no longer necessary to send German infantry and assault engineers into the battle . . . the finishing touches will now be entrusted to heavy artillery and Stukas."

But Soviet accounts declared the Germans were intensifying their frantic efforts to blast through Stalingrad's defenses to the Volga.

Red Star, the Russian army newspaper, said masses of German infantry led by 50 tanks finally achieved a break-through Soviet lines in a workers' settlement—apparently in a northeast suburb along the Volga—and occupied two streets.

"During this engagement, our troops burned or disabled 16 tanks and wiped out about four battalions (2,000 or more) of the enemy infantry," a Soviet communique reported.

Red Star said the Nazi objective was to break through to the Volga and cut the Red army in two, but declared the defenders were battling valiantly for every yard of land.

Describing the fight nearer the heart of the city, Red army headquarters announced:

"Soviet troops repulsed four enemy attacks, destroyed two tanks and wiped out about a company of German infantry.

"In another sector, 12 tanks and an enemy infantry battalion broke through into one street but were

Publicity Research Chief Says Hitler Is Getting His Biggest Help Free

Boston, Oct. 9 (AP)—A "flood of vicious rumors" is circulating throughout the United States aiding the Axis, Robert H. Knapp of the Propaganda Research Division, Massachusetts committee on public safety, reported today.

A nation-wide analysis of false stories heard in cocktail lounges, across bars, in barber shops and over back fences, he said, showed that:

"The most effective propaganda that Hitler has in America today he is getting free.

"It is the flood of vicious rumors which are being spread by otherwise loyal Americans, rumors directed against our Allies, our government, and racial and religious minorities in our country."

He said in a statement that the commonest types of rumors found in the survey were:

"Anti-administration, 21.3 per cent; anti-Army and Navy, 19.4; anti-semitic, 9.3; fear rumors, Army and Navy, 7.9; anti-British, 7.3; fifth column rumors, 6.9; unrevealed enemy action, 5.7; atrocity stories, 4.8; anti-negro, 3.1; anti-business, 2.3; anti-Red Cross, 2.2; "pipedreams," 2.0; anti-labor, 1.9."

"Anti-Russian rumors constitute 0.6 per cent of all rumors. A surprisingly low figure," he added.

The "most striking regional differences" shown in the survey, Knapp said, were:

New England—"This region is conspicuous for the great number of anti-British and anti-semitic rumors current, while those directed against the administration and Army and Navy are fewer than elsewhere." x x x

Atlantic seaboard—"anti-British and anti-semitic rumors are prominent. Stories of excessive

Los Angeles, Oct. 9 — John Brown wields a mop in a cafe on Hill street in downtown Los Angeles. But on the occupational questionnaire he filled in for his draft board he reported he once was employed as a welder.

It doesn't take long for the U. S. Employment Service to spot that item on their copy of Brown's occupational report which they received from his draft board. Within a few days Brown gets a politely-worded printed card, asking that he call between 8 a. m. and 4 p. m., any time from October 5 to October 10, at U. S. E. S. headquarters, a four-story beehive on Flower street.

Here John Brown is interviewed thoroughly, and U. S. E. S. discovers exactly what sort of welding he can do. Perhaps he was an aluminum welder. In that case Lockheed or Douglas or Consolidated will be very glad to get him. If he worked in steel, the California Shipbuilding Corporation has a spot for him.

John Brown thereupon, in the words of local U. S. E. S. Boss Arthur Wood, is "exposed to employment." He isn't told to shift to airplane or shipbuilding But it is suggested to him that, in these times, he would be doing the country more good by welding oil tanks for Vultee trainers than by swinging a mop in the Idle-Hour Cafe. Usually John Brown agrees.

Not Formal, Polite

If a man is unemployed, U. S. E. S. is not so formal and polite. It sends him a more brusquely-worded notice, to report at a specific time, and if he doesn't reply to that or to a second call, his case is turned over to the War

President Advises Congress Provide Assistance Method

Rehabilitation Would Help Both War Veterans and Civilians, Acting Under F.S.A.

Washington, Oct. 9 (AP)—President Roosevelt recommended to Congress today that legislation be enacted creating under the federal security administration a single rehabilitation service for both war veterans and civilians.

"We are going to win this war," he said in a special message read in the Senate, "but the winning will require the best efforts of every individual."

He added that among those already making full contribution in the war effort were physically handicapped people who had been rehabilitated, and that upwards of a million persons were now 'waiting for services of the type that only a fully developed rehabilitation program can give them."

The text of the message:

"We are going to win this war but the winning will require the best efforts of every individual. Among those who are already making full contribution are those physically handicapped people who have been rehabilitated.

"Upwards of a million persons are now waiting for services of the type that only a full developed rehabilitation program can give them. We know that there is nothing wrong with the spirit of these people, but without special assistance they may become a social as well as an economic liability.

"With an adequate program in their behalf they will become a national asset ready to serve in war industries, agricultural, and in other essential occupations.

"In addition, the increasing participation of this nation in the war is resulting in an increase in military casualties and will result in a greater increase. Because of the tremendous strides in medical science during the past two decades, a much larger proportion of these casualties will be non-fatal and will require rehabilitation service.

"Our present provisions in this field are inadequate to meet this task. They need to be strengthened and standardized through the creation under the federal security administration of a rehabilitation service.

"Provisions should be made not only for persons now handicapped, but also for persons disabled while members of the armed forces and for the increasing number of accident cases that are accompanying the rapid expansion of our war industries.

"In order to secure the most effective utilization of the capabilities of the physically handicapped it is important that a single rehabilitation service be established for both veterans and civilians.

"Veterans, after receiving the benefits and services provided by the veterans administration, would be certified to the rehabilitation service for vocational rehabilitation whenever this is indicated.

"While the present plan for federal-state cooperation should be preserved in this field of training, where it has chiefly operated, the rehabilitation service should look after the other aspects of this problem and discharge what is plainly a federal responsibility—the provision of service to all persons whose disability grows out of the conduct of the war.

"Such legislation should permit the establishment of a program adequate to our present needs and should at the same time provide the experience and personnel which will be able to meet such additional burdens as the war may bring."

Last Japanese Foothold in Aleutians Is Blasted as Additional Heavy Blows Are Given in Solomons

(By The Associated Press)

American warplanes, blasting at Japan's invasion footholds at both ends of the far-flung Pacific conflict, were officially credited today with raining 15 tons of bombs on the enemy's last remaining base in the Aleutian Islands, at Kiska, and dealing heavy blows to Japanese forces in the Solomons.

A U. S. Navy communique today said American Army Liberator bombers, escorted by Airacobra and Lightning fighters, unloaded seven tons of high-explosives around a Japanese seaplane hangar at Kiska and then dropped eight more tons of bombs on the enemy encampment. The attack was made October 6.

The raiders also attacked two Japanese cargo ships in Kiska harbor, leaving one of them sinking in flames, and strafed the enemy's radio station.

The Navy again reported that aerial reconnaissance "failed to reveal any enemy activity" on Attu and Agattu Islands, in the western-most Aleutians, which the Japanese apparently abandoned several weeks ago.

In the Southwest Pacific, the Navy disclosed that an American aircraft carrier force striking at the heart of the main Japanese invasion base in the northern Solomon Islands destroyed eight Japanese air craft and damaged five ships including a heavy cruiser.

Other developments in the Pacific struggle:

Burma—U. S. army headquarters in India announced that American war planes attacked Japanese barracks, river craft and other military facilities in a series of raids against the enemy in northern Burma and next-door Yunnan Province in China.

Low-flying U. S. army pilots also destroyed a Burmese railway bridge and ripped up 600 feet of track with their bombs.

China — Dispatches from the North China front reported that the Japanese failed in an apparent attempt to kill Wendell L. Willkie, President Roosevelt's emissary and an outspoken advocate of vigorous offensive action against the Axis.

Woman, 84, Dies Of Burns Caused In Lighting Stove

Mrs. Hedwig Haussman, Pine Hill, Found Dead in Bathroom Where She Fought Flames

Attempting to light a fire in the kitchen stove about noon Thursday, Mrs. Hedwig Haussman, 84-year-old Pine Hill woman, was burned fatally when kerosene she was using apparently flared up setting fire to her clothing. Mrs. Haussman was found in the bathroom burned to death by Fred Cure who had gone to the Haussman boarding house about noon to deliver groceries.

On arrival at the house, which is known as the Minisink House on Birth Creek road, he found the place full of smoke and on investigation found the aged woman in the bathroom where she had apparently gone to extinguish the fire. A tub of water had been drawn but she had been unable to put out the fire in her clothing and when found the clothing was badly burned.

It is presumed she had attempted to start the fire with kerosene as a can was found by the kitchen stove. Apparently the aged woman met her death shortly before the arrival of Mr. Cure who frequently delivered groceries at the boarding house. When the body was discovered there were still burning remnants on the floor but the house had not been ignited.

Mrs. Haussman, who lived alone and operated the boarding house, is survived by one son Major William Haussman who was notified at Baton Rouge, La., and he was expected to arrive home today.

Sergeant McCarvey and Trooper Taylor of Margaretville were summoned and Trooper Edward Croswell was also notified of the tragedy. Deputy Sheriff Howard Kelder was summoned and assisted in the investigation and remained at the house pending arrival of the son. Coroner Henry Lamoure of Saugerties was summoned and investigated the matter. An autopsy was ordered and the body was taken in charge by the Breithaupt Funeral Home in Phoenicia. No funeral arrangements were made pending arrival of Major Haussman.

Finds Three Yolks

Mrs. Jacob Depew of Walker Valley the other day was getting ready to fry an egg. In breaking the shell she was surprised to find the egg contained three yolks. This was the first time she said, that she had ever seen three yolks in one egg, although she had often cracked an egg containing two yolks. The egg was purchased from "The Maples" owned by James G. Greer.

Two Arrested

Patrick J. Ryan, 58, of Milton and Alex Dombolski, 50, who said he had no home, were arrested in Milton today by Trooper William Martin on disorderly conduct charges. Justice P. A. Lyon of Milton fined them $20 each in default of which they were committed to the Ulster county jail for 20 days.

Japs Have Shown Signs of Retreat

Withdrawals, However, May Be Part of Plan to Trick Allies

(This column, conducted as a daily feature by Dewitt Mackenzie, Wide World war analyst, is written today by Glenn Babb. Mackenzie, now in Britain on an extensive tour of the active war zones, is expected to resume with tomorrow's Column.)

The last ten or twelve weeks have been a period of retreat for the Japanese. On three major fronts they have yielded ground, much of it bitterly won at high cost in men and weapons. On the others they have given no convincing signs of new advances in preparation. It would be easy, thinking wishfully, to suggest that the tide of Japanese conquest that spread so rapidly and disastrously for the United Nations throughout the first half year of the Pacific war has begun its ebb. But wishful thinking is always dangerous and there are indications aplenty that the resourceful enemy is doing what he can to encourage us in that enjoyable, but weakening occupation. For example, we will be wise to examine with all possible skepticism those hints issued by Doctor Goebbels' propaganda machine that the attempt to take Stalingrad is about to be abandoned.

Nevertheless let's take a look at the recent record in the Pacific, reading the map from north to south.

All the evidence is that the Japanese have abandoned two of the three Far Western Aleutian Islands they seized last June as a sideshow to their disastrous dash across the international dateline toward Midway and Hawaii. Our fliers report no signs of life on Attu and Agattu; and it appears that only on Kiska a sorely battered Japanese garrison is trying to dig itself underground in the hopes of remaining and so justifying the Tokyo government's boast that its forces hold North American territory.

Conquests Have Evaporated

In China, still the main battleground for the Japanese army, a summer's conquests have evaporated. There probably is some justification for Tokyo's claim that the retreats in China were according to plan and to permit new dispositions of Japanese forces, but the fact remains that territory and

Publicity Research Chief Says Hitler Is Getting His Biggest Help Free

Boston, Oct. 9 (AP)—A "flood of vicious rumors" is circulating throughout the United States aiding the Axis, Robert H. Knapp of the Propaganda Research Division, Massachusetts committee on public safety, reported today.

A nation-wide analysis of false stories heard in cocktail lounges, across bars, in barber shops and over back fences, he said, showed that:

"The most effective propaganda that Hitler has in America today he is getting free.

"It is the flood of vicious rumors which are being spread by otherwise loyal Americans, rumors directed against our Allies, our government, and racial and religious minorities in our country."

He said in a statement that the commonest types of rumors found in the survey were:

"Anti-administration, 21.3 per cent; anti-Army and Navy, 19.4; anti-semitic, 9.3; fear rumors, Army and Navy, 7.9; anti-British, 7.3; fifth column rumors, 6.9; unrevealed enemy action, 5.7; atrocity stories, 4.8; anti-negro, 3.1; anti-business, 2.3; anti-Red Cross, 2.2; "pipedreams," 2.0; anti-labor, 1.9."

"Anti-Russian rumors constitute 0.6 per cent of all rumors. A surprisingly low figure," he added.

The "most striking regional differences" shown in the survey, Knapp said, were:

New England—"This region is conspicuous for the great number of anti-British and anti-semitic rumors current, while those directed against the administration and Army and Navy are fewer than elsewhere." x x x

Atlantic seaboard—"anti-British and anti-semitic rumors are prominent. Stories of excessive

Assault Is Biggest Yet By Air Force

Germans Are Given Bloody Rout Around Stalingrad

(By The Associated Press)

More than 100 United States bombers attacked the industrial Lille region of northern France today in the biggest American bomber and fighter forces ever to take the air in the European war theatre.

United States Army Air Forces headquarters, promising a more detailed announcement later, issued this terse communique:

"More than 100 U. S. A. A. F. bombers attacked targets in the Lille area this morning.

"Many squadrons of fighters took part in this operation."

A big part of the bombing force, an extraordinary number for a daylight raid, was made up of great, four-motored Flying Fortresses, and the Americans were joined in the assault by the R. A. F. and many squadrons of Allied fighters.

United States fliers in American fighter planes participated in the raid.

(Until now, the only fighter plane the Americans had been mentioned officially as using in Britain was the British-made Spitfire.)

Soviet headquarters reported today that Russian troops had broken into German trenches northwest of Stalingrad and beat off four night attacks inside the Volga metropolis, while the Nazis captured two streets of an industrial suburb at a sacrifice of 2,000 dead.

For the first time since the siege began, Adolf Hitler's field headquarters omitted any mention of the gigantic battle for Stalingrad.

Soviet reports said German invasion columns sweeping south of Stalingrad had advanced into the U. S. S. R. autonomous area of Kalmyck, which lies along the lower Volga to the Caspian Sea.

(The Germans long ago claimed they had captured Elista, a major city of the Kalmyck area, about 180 miles west of the big Caspian seaport of Astrakhan.)

It was not immediately clear whether this meant that the Nazis, disheartened by the slaughter and lack of success at Stalingrad, were now turning south.

Latest reports said the fighting at Stalingrad was still intense.

Dispatches said the violence of the 46-day-old German assault was rising, despite a Nazi broadcast last night indicating that Axis shock troops would be withdrawn and that the city would be pounded into surrender by heavy siege guns and dive bombers.

"The fight for Stalingrad has changed," the broadcast said, quoting German military quarters.

Several versions of the Berlin broadcast were heard by Allied listening-posts, all hinting that the battered siege armies would be withdrawn to a safe distance.

"The strategic objective at Stalingrad has already been achieved," one version declared.

"It is no longer necessary to send German infantry and assault engineers into the battle . . . the finishing touches will now be entrusted to heavy artillery and Stukas."

But Soviet accounts declared the Germans were intensifying their frantic efforts to blast through Stalingrad's defenses to the Volga.

Red Star, the Russian army newspaper, said masses of German infantry led by 50 tanks finally achieved a break-through Soviet lines in a workers' settlement—apparently in a northeast suburb along the Volga—and occupied two streets.

"During this engagement, our troops burned or disabled 16 tanks and wiped out about four battalions (2,000 or more) of the enemy infantry," a Soviet communique reported.

Red Star said the Nazi objective was to break through to the Volga and cut the Red army in two, but declared the defenders were battling valiantly for every yard of land.

Describing the fight nearer the heart of the city, Red army headquarters announced:

"Soviet troops repulsed four enemy attacks, destroyed two tanks and wiped out about a company of German infantry.

"In another sector, 12 tanks and an enemy infantry battalion broke through into one street but were

strategic railway lines won at the cost of tens of thousands of casualties and months valuable time have been yielded to the stubbornly fighting Chinese armies and their American allies. Something like 30,000 square miles overrun by the Japanese in northern Kiangsi, western and southern Chekiang and southern Kwangtung provinces early in the summer have been reoccupied by the Chinese.

At the southern extremity of the Pacific front United States Marines have slashed into the farthest fringes of the Japanese area of conquest and wrested from the Mikado's warriors in the Solomons beachheads and islets tiny in extent but of vast potential importance strategically. In New Guinea the Australians, commanded by the American MacArthur and supported by American air forces, have compelled the invaders to abandon all their gains south of the Owen Stanley Mountains and turned their landing at Milne Bay into a disastrous fiasco.

Against these setbacks in the active war zones Japan has no offsetting gains in other theatres, and if we assume that time fights against her—an assumption that seems justified by the disparity between current rates of war production in the United States and Japan—her enemies have gained valuable months. Since Midway the Japanese fleet, so far as we know, has not ventured from its western Pacific bases. The Japanese armies that marched through Burma to the borders of India have been quiescent for months, and whereas six months ago the Japanese threat to India was accounted one of the gravest dangers for the United Nations now there is growing discussion of the prospects of an Allied drive into Burma to reopen the main avenue of aid to China.

In the sixth and last zone of Japanese military activity, the Siberian frontier, not yet a battlefield but area never neglected in calculations of the high commands, there has been no marked evidence of substantial change and many strategists believe the danger of Japanese invasion of Russia definitely is on the wane, especially since Hitler ran into that Stonewall at Stalingrad.

Thus the picture as a whole is one of a mighty predatory power turned from a phase of conquest to one of defense, in which the objective is to hold what has been snatched rather than reach out for more. It may well be that the record will show the late summer of 1942 to have been the turning point as far as Japan is concerned. It is possible that history will allot to the Marines at Guadalcanal a niche comparable to that of the Marines at Belleau, a comparatively few tough, heroic men who formed the vanguard that turned back a great tide of military success at its flood. But it would be dangerous to assume that in the coming phase the Japanese will be a less formidable enemy than he has been hitherto. Nearly all authorities agree that he will fight just as fanatically to hold the spoils he has taken for his emperor as he fought to win them and that the destruction of the Japanese military machine may well prove the most costly and long drawn out of all the tasks still confronting the United Nations.

forced to retreat to their original positions by Soviet troops who knocked out nine tanks and wiped out about two companies (1,000) of Germans."

Fresh Penetration Announced

On the vital salient northwest of Stalingrad, where Marshal Semeon Timoshenko's relief offensive has been striking along a 40-mile front between the Volga and the Don rivers, the Russians announced a fresh penetration of Nazi fortifications.

"One detachment broke into enemy trenches, killed about 100 Germans in hand-to-hand fighting, and captured four machine-guns, three mortars and an anti-tank gun," the Soviet command said.

Soviet dispatches pictured the city as an inferno of flame and smoke, but indicated that the Nazis were still far from fulfilling Hitler's 10-day-old boast that the metropolis was doomed to surrender.

Other major developments:

Western air war—A vast armada of U. S. army planes and allied fighters thundered across the English Channel this morning to attack the German-occupied French "invasion" coast, apparently striking in the Boulogne-Calais zone.

Observers at an English south coast town said the greatest number of fighters and bombers seen aloft in months passed overhead toward the continent.

Big four-motored planes believed to be U. S. army flying fortresses, American fighters and R.A.F. Spitfires were spotted among the huge flight of raiders.

The Boulogne-Calais area lies directly across from Dover at the narrowest point of the channel.

Invasion armor—Thousands of Canadian soldiers were officially disclosed to have arrived in the British Isles in another big convoy which crossed the Atlantic without incident for eventual service in an allied counter offensive.

Most of the new contingent were beret-wearing troops of the armored force.

All said the crossing was so quiet "you wouldn't know there was a war on."

Nazi demands—Stockholm reports today said Adolf Hitler, impatient over Danish apathy toward the Nazi cause, had asked King Christian's government to recruit at least 30,000 "volunteers" to fight on the Soviet front.

Unconfirmed reports said Germany had also demanded that Denmark declare war on Russia, hand over all Danish merchant ships to the Reich and increase her contribuution of skilled labor and material to the Nazi war effort.

German firing-squads were reported to have executed nine more Norwegians at Trondheim yesterday, making a three-day total of 34 put to death since Nazi authorities decreed a state of civil siege in the Trondheim area Tuesday.

The victims were accused of helping to transport explosives intended for sabotage purposes.

Leahy Goes to Hospital

South Bend, Ind., Oct. 9 (AP)—The Notre Dame football team will battle Stanford here tomorrow without the guiding hand of Coach Frank Leahy, who was ordered by his physician today to go to the Mayo Clinic in Rochester, Minn., for observation. Leahy made plans to leave this afternoon. Leahy has been ill for some time with pains in his back, a heavy cold and a touch of influenza. He said he believed his trouble may be caused by dislocation of several vertebrae in a dive from a high spring board four years ago. He missed practice yesterday.

Wilmington Man Will Head Scout Council of Area

The executive committee of the Ulster-Greene Council, Boy Scouts of America, has selected Douglas A. Dye, of Wilmington, Del., as the new scout executive of the Ulster-Greene Council. He succeeds R. Gardner Burns, who has headed the council for the past four years and who leaves October 15 to take a position as executive in the Ithaca Council.

Mr. Dye is a native of Elmira, Illinois, and graduated from the University of Minnesota in 1937, where he majored in social work. Following his graduation he took a position as field executive in the council at Reading, Pa., and in September, 1940, went to Wilmington, Del., where he has since been employed as field executive.

As a boy scout, Mr. Dye successfully held all the offices in his scout troop and at the same time attained to the highest rank available to boy scouts—the Eagle, with double silver palm.

Mr. Dye is married and has two children. He expects to remove with his family to Kingston about November 1, on which date he assumes his new duties. They will make their home on Fairmount avenue.

New York, Oct. 9 (AP)—Bullish contingents continued the offensive in today's market but they had to contend with a little more short selling and profit cashing on Thursday's first 1,000,000-share rally of the year.

The list got off to a fast start, with sizable blocks changing hands on the advance. Dealings later slowed and initial gains of fractions to better than a point were reduced and minus marks were in evidence here and there near the fourth hour.

Sentiment still was buoyed by the more optimistic war outlook and tax prospects but many customers stood aside or trimmed accounts because of the forthcoming lengthy holiday. Major markets will recess Monday for the Columbus Day celebration.

Bonds and commodities held to a generally steady course.

Among stocks numerous new tops for 1942 or longer were recorded. There included N. Y. Central, General Motors, Standard Oil (N. J.), Texas Co., Consolidated Edison, General Electric and International Nickel. Supported were American Telephone, Bethlehem, Westinghouse, Eastman Kodak, J. C. Penney, Sears Roebuck and U. S. Gypsum. Several eventually slipped. Santa Fe, Paramount Pictures and Chrysler wavered.

Wrens In Egypt Tents

Living in tents in Egypt is at least one party of Wrens. The 200 women will remain under canvas until they are assigned to naval bases. Wires have been strung between the tent poles, and on these coat hangers are hung for spare clothes. Carried to and from their work on buses, the girls spend their spare time bathing or playing table tennis in the Y. W. C. A. hostel, it is reported in Cairo.

U. S. Planes Rain Bombs on Kiska

bombed the Honan Province city of Loyang and machinegunned a railway coach on a siding there in the evident belief that it was carrying Willkie on his tour of the battle zone.

The car was painted the same blue as Willkie's special sleeper, but Willkie himself at the time was 130 miles away, inspecting front-line trenches.

In New Guinea, Australian ground forces worked their way without opposition to the Owen Stanley mountain passage, doorway from Japanese bases on the north shore of the island to the allied base of Port Moresby to the south.

Australian protection of the pass freed allied air forces to attack an enemy ship at Koepang in Dutch Timor opposite northwestern Australia and a Japanese transport at Saumlaki. Japanese-held areas at Kokoda and Buna in New Guinea also were strafed and bombed.

Growing cooperation of the allied forces in the battle of the Pacific was indicated further by announcement of Navy Minister Angus MacDonald in Ottawa last night that five Canadian warships had aided the United States forces in occupying the Andreanof group of islands in the Aleutians.

While no further word came from this front, it was presumed the remaining Japanese foothold at Kiska was being subjected to defeated bombardments by allied planes operating from the Andreanof base.

Flame-Throwers Kill Fungi

Flame-throwing has been practiced in warfare for centuries but only recently has it been used in combatting plant disease.

Burning grasses to control "silver-top," an insect-borne fungus which attacks fescues and some other grasses, has been found effective.

The fungus is particularly destructive upon fescue, a perennial grass. It will be harder to obtain fungicides to kill the fungus because mercury and copper are now used in modern warfare and are difficult to obtain.

In demand for sodding airports and military areas, fescue is becoming increasingly important and the need for control of "silvertop" is more prevalent than ever.

Burning the grass is done in the spring before the new growth starts. In test areas, burned plots have shown only 2 to 3 per cent infestation, while unburned areas have been 65 per cent infested.

Liver Stocks Up Vitamin for Winter

Ithaca, N. Y.,—To be a good liver, you must have one, according to Professor C. M. McCay of the New York State College of Agriculture, who says the way to have a good liver is to let it stock up vitamins from the fresh, green fall and summer foods, before winter comes.

"The liver is the most remarkable storehouse that nature has ever invented," he says, "It carries a reserve of fat, protein, easily available energy in the form of glycogen, and vitamins. The liver stores up large amounts of vitamin A when a person eats an abundance of green and yellow vegetables, yellow butter, eggs and other vitamin-rich foods."

"A well stocked liver, along with a well stocked cellar of canned goods and stored vegetables, will help a person to live through the winter months in better health."

Most persons who eat plenty of fresh vegetables in summer and fall store up enough vitamin A to last them till Thanksgiving, says Prof. McCay. From then on, the vitamin supply in foods tends to lag until spring.

Vitamin A is necessary to good eyesight, good hearing, bodily growth of children, as well as other functions of a healthy body, he says. Human beings can well follow the example set by the cow. She stocks her liver with most of a six-months supply of vitamin A from the green pasture grasses in autumn.

A. L. P. Has Big Job Ahead To Prove Decisive Power

By WILLIAM W. TYLER

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 9 (AP)—It is every politician's guess—and they all are guessing—how much the favored candidates for New York's governorship will benefit from indorsements by President Roosevelt and Mayor Fiorello LaGuardia, of New York city.

But there is little disagreement on one immediate effect of the conflicting statements.

They spotlight stronger than ever the American Labor party's task of proving—for the first time—its claim to decisive political power in New York.

Said the President: "Of the three men in the race . . . I shall cast my ballot for John Bennett (Democrat) because I believe he is the best qualified."

"I am going to support Dean Alfange," LaGuardia declared. "I think, of the three parties, there is more hope in the (American Labor) party that is supporting Alfange * * *."

The result is an interesting conflict of "influences" highlighting once more than much-disputed political question:

To what extent can any men "deliver" to another candidate the votes he might win himself?

Mr. Roosevelt backed LaGuardia (A. L. P.) to win the mayoralty of New York city last year against the candidate of his own Democratic party, William O'Dwyer. Now the President lines up with Governor Lehman, who supported O'Dwyer.

Both Lehman and Roosevelt support Bennett against Republican Thomas E. Dewey, after their united but unsuccessful effort to win the Democratic gubernatorial nomination for United States Senator James M. Mead.

The party's turndown of the senator, in favor of Bennett, brought Alfange into the field as the first strictly A. L. P. candidate for governor.

And LaGuardia elects to stand by the American Labor party, to which he shifted his one-time Republican enrollment, in its first test of voting behind its own candidate.

Republicans Intrigued

The mayor's statement of "more hope" in the American Labor party intrigued capitol Republicans, one of whom remarked with a smile—"He ought to know."

LaGuardia served in Congress as a Republican, lost as a Republican candidate for New York's mayor to Democrat James J. Walker in 1929. In 1933 he was elected mayor as a Republican, with City Fusion party indorsemen. Then he enrolled A. L. P., and in 1937 was relected under the label with Republican indorsement.

He was elected last year as an American Laborite, with Republican, Fusion, and United City party support.

The A. L. P.'s claim to the balance of political power stems principally from the 400,000 votes it gave in 1938 to Democratic Governor Lehman, who defeated Dewey by 64,000. The party came into prominence in 1936 behind President Roosevelt, whom it has supported consistently.

If LaGuardia's purpose in declaring for Alfange, therefore, is to build up the party's ballot showing, he opposes two influences which may sap heavily at the A. L. P. vote.

LaGuardia polled 1,186,300 votes for mayor last year, of which the A. L. P. gave him 435,256. The question is: How many can he hold for Alfange, who claims to be the only New Deal candidate, when the No. 1 New Dealer and Lehman, as ardent a New Dealer as LaGuardia, favor Bennett?

The A. L. P. meanwhile is in the position of trying to roll up a vote for Alfange which might elect Dewey, against whom the New Deal—as represented by Roosevelt and Lehman—has declared.

Bennett and State Democratic Chairman James A. Farley, who led the former's fight against Mead, expressed gratification for the presidential indorsement. Democrats believe it helps mainly to salve party wounds in populous Kings county, New Deal stronghold, and assures Bennett's election.

Spokesmen for Dewey, viewing it as only a presidential vote for Bennett, claim it will have little effect against Dewey's "certain election."

The answer will be written on November 3 election ballots.

They also will peg the American Labor party's future place in New York politics.

Congo Quinine Coming

Quinine from the plantations of the Belgian Congo is expected to equal in quality the best which the Dutch East Indies supplied to Europe and America before the Japanese took over. In another year or two Belgian Congo will produce enough to supply all of Africa, it is asserted in Leopoldville. Through the initiative of a Belgian chemical society cinchona trees were planted in Kivu several years ago.

When a motorist was tried in Ipswich, England, the court decided that driving with a passenger on the hood of the car is not against the law, despite the contention of the prosecutor that the passenger obstructed the view of the driver.

strategic railway lines won at the cost of tens of thousands of casualties and months valuable time have been yielded to the stubbornly fighting Chinese armies and their American allies. Something like 30,000 square miles overrun by the Japanese in northern Kiangsi, western and southern Chekiang and southern Kwangtung provinces early in the summer have been reoccupied by the Chinese.

At the southern extremity of the Pacific front United States Marines have sleshed into the farthest fringes of the Japanese area of conquest and wrested from the Mikado's warriors in the Solomons beachheads and islets tiny in extent but of vast potential importance strategically. In New Guinea the Australians, commanded by the American MacArthur and supported by American air forces, have compelled the invaders to abandon all their gains south of the Owen Stanley Mountains and turned their landing at Milne Bay into a disastrous fiasco.

Against these setbacks in the active war zones Japan has no offsetting gains in other theatres, and if we assume that time fights against her—an assumption that seems justified by the disparity between current rates of war production in the United States and Japan—her enemies have gained valuable months. Since Midway the Japanese fleet, so far as we know, has not ventured from its western Pacific bases. The Japanese armies that marched through Burma to the borders of India have been quiescent for months, and whereas six months ago the Japanese threat to India was accounted one of the gravest dangers for the United Nations now there is growing discussion of the prospects of an Allied drive into Burma to reopen the main avenue of aid to China.

In the sixth and last zone of Japanese military activity, the Siberian frontier, not yet a battlefield but area never neglected in calculations of the high commands, there has been no marked evidence of substantial change and many strategists believe the danger of Japanese invasion of Russia definitely is on the wane, especially since Hitler ran into that Stonewall at Stalingrad.

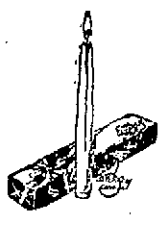

Thus the picture as a whole is one of a mighty predatory power turned from a phase of conquest to one of defense, in which the objective is to hold what has been snatched rather than reach out for more. It may well be that the record will show the late summer of 1942 to have been the turning point as far as Japan is concerned. It is possible that history will allot to the Marines at Guadalcanal a niche comparable to that of the Marines at Belleau, a comparatively few tough, heroic men who formed the vanguard that turned back a great tide of military success at its flood. But it would be dangerous to assume that in the coming phase the Japanese will be a less formidable enemy than he has been hitherto. Nearly all authorities agree that he will fight just as fanatically to hold the spoils he has taken for his emperor as he fought to win them and that the destruction of the Japanese military machine may well prove the most costly and long drawn out of all the tasks still confronting the United Nations.

100 U. S. Bombers Raid Lille Region

Fresh Penetration Announced

On the vital salient northwest of Stalingrad, where Marshal Semeon Timoshenko's relief offensive has been striking along a 40-mile front between the Volga and the Don rivers, the Russians announced a fresh penetration of Nazi fortifications.

"One detachment broke into enemy trenches, killed about 100 Germans in hand-to-hand fighting, and captured four machine-guns, three mortars and an anti-tank gun," the Soviet command said.

Soviet dispatches pictured the city as an inferno of flame and smoke, but indicated that the Nazis were still far from fulfilling Hitler's 10-day-old boast that the metropolis was doomed to surrender.

Other major developments:

Western air war—A vast armada of U. S. army planes and allied fighters thundered across the English Channel this morning to attack the German-occupied French "invasion" coast, apparently striking in the Boulogne-Calais zone.

Observers at an English south coast town said the greatest number of fighters and bombers seen aloft in months passed overhead toward the continent.

Big four-motored planes believed to be U. S. army flying fortresses, American fighters and R.A.F. Spitfires were spotted among the huge flight of raiders.

The Boulogne-Calais area lies directly across from Dover at the narrowest point of the channel.

Invasion armor—Thousands of Canadian soldiers were officially disclosed to have arrived in the British Isles in another big convoy which crossed the Atlantic without incident for eventual service in an allied counter offensive.

Most of the new contingent were beret-wearing troops of the armored force.

All said the crossing was so quiet "you wouldn't know there was a war on."

Nazi demands—Stockholm reports today said Adolf Hitler, impatient over Danish apathy toward the Nazi cause, had asked King Christian's government to recruit at least 30,000 "volunteers" to fight on the Soviet front.

Unconfirmed reports said Germany had also demanded that Denmark declare war on Russia, hand over all Danish merchant ships to the Reich and increase her contribution of skilled labor and material to the Nazi war effort.

German firing-squads were reported to have executed nine more Norwegians at Trondheim yesterday, making a three-day total of 34 put to death since Nazi authorities decreed a state of civil siege in the Trondheim area Tuesday.

The victims were accused of helping to transport explosives intended for sabotage purposes.

Leahy Goes to Hospital

South Bend, Ind., Oct. 9 (AP)—The Notre Dame football team will battle Stanford here tomorrow without the guiding hand of Coach Frank Leahy, who was ordered by his physician today to go to the Mayo Clinic in Rochester, Minn., for observation. Leahy made plans to leave this afternoon. Leahy has been ill for some time with pains in his back, a heavy cold and a touch of influenza. He said he believed his trouble may be caused by dislocation of several vertebrae in a dive from a high spring board four years ago. He missed practice yesterday.

Wilmington Man Will Head Scout Council of Area

The executive committee of the Ulster-Greene Council, Boy Scouts of America, has selected Douglas A. Dye, of Wilmington, Del., as the new scout executive of the Ulster-Greene Council. He succeeds R. Gardner Burns, who has headed the council for the past four years and who leaves October 15 to take a position as executive in the Ithaca Council.

Mr. Dye is a native of Elmira, Illinois, and graduated from the University of Minnesota in 1937, where he majored in social work. Following his graduation he took a position as field executive in the council at Reading, Pa., and in September, 1940, went to Wilmington, Del., where he has since been employed as field executive.

As a boy scout, Mr. Dye successfully held all the offices in his scout troop and at the same time attained to the highest rank available to boy scouts—the Eagle, with double silver palm.

Mr. Dye is married and has two children. He expects to remove with his family to Kingston about November 1, on which date he assumes his new duties. They will make their home on Fairmount avenue.

Wives In Egypt Tents

Living in tents in Egypt is at least one party of Wrens. The 200 women will remain under canvas until they are assigned to naval bases. Wires have been strung between the tent poles, and on these coat hangers are hung for spare clothes. Carried to and from their work on buses, the girls spend their spare time bathing or playing table tennis in the Y. W. C. A. hostel at Ismailia in Cairo.

New York, Oct. 9 (AP)—Bullish contingents continued the offensive in today's market but they had to contend with a little more short selling and profit cashing on Thursday's first 1,000,000-share rally of the year.

The list got off to a fast start, with sizable blocks changing hands on the advance. Dealings later slowed and initial gains of fractions to better than a point were reduced and minus marks were in evidence here and there near the fourth hour.

Sentiment still was buoyed by the more optimistic war outlook and tax prospects but many customers stood aside or trimmed accounts because of the forthcoming lengthy holiday. Major markets will recess Monday for the Columbus Day celebration.

Bonds and commodities held to a generally steady course.

Among stocks numerous new tops for 1942 or longer were recorded. There included N. Y. Central, General Motors, Standard Oil (N. J.), Texas Co., Consolidated Edison, General Electric and International Nickel. Supported were American Telephone, Bethlehem, Westinghouse, Eastman Kodak, J. C. Penney, Sears Roebuck and U. S. Gypsum. Several eventually slipped. Santa Fe, Paramount Pictures and Chrysler wavered.

U. S. Planes Rain Bombs on Kiska

bombed the Honan Province city of Loyang and machinegunned a railway coach on a siding there in the evident belief that it was carrying Willkie on his tour of the battle zone.

The car was painted the same blue as Willkie's special sleeper, but Willkie himself at the time was 130 miles away, inspecting front-line trenches.

In New Guinea, Australian ground forces worked their way without opposition to the Owen Stanley mountain passage, doorway from Japanese bases on the north shore of the island to the allied base of Port Moresby to the south.

Australian protection of the pass freed allied air forces to attack an enemy ship at Koepang in Dutch Timor opposite northwestern Australia and a Japanese transport at Saumlaki. Japanese-held areas at Kokoda and Buna in New Guinea also were strafed and bombed.

Growing cooperation of the allied forces in the battle of the Pacific was indicated further by announcement of Navy Minister Angus MacDonald in Ottawa last night that five Canadian warships had aided the United States forces in occupying the Andreanof group of islands in the Aleutians.

While no further word came from this front, it was presumed the remaining Japanese foothold at Kiska was being subjected to defeated bombardments by allied planes operating from the Andreanof base.

Flame-Throwers Kill Fungi

Flame-throwing has been practiced in warfare for centuries but only recently has it been used in combatting plant disease.

Burning grasses to control "silvertop," an insect-borne fungus which attacks fescues and some other grasses, has been found effective.

The fungus is particularly destructive upon fescue, a perennial grass. It will be harder to obtain fungicides to kill the fungus because mercury and copper are now used in modern warfare and are difficult to obtain.

In demand for sodding airports and military areas, fescue is becoming increasingly important and the need for control of "silvertop" is more prevalent than ever.

Burning the grass is done in the spring before the new growth starts. In test areas, burned plots have shown only 2 to 3 per cent infestation, while unburned areas have been 65 per cent infested.

LITERACY TESTS

Literacy tests for new voters are being held at the Kingston High School and Myron J. Michael School. New voters must secure a certificate showing that they have passed the test or present educational qualifications to the election inspectors.

General qualifications of a voter are that he must have been a citizen for ninety days and have reached the age of 21 years. He must also have lived in the United States for five years, in the state for one year, in the county for four months and in the election district for thirty days.

Registration in this city began today. It will be held again tomorrow and again on Friday and Saturday of next week. If you fail to register, you cannot vote.

It is important that new voters know that participation of all citizens is the ideal of democracy, which can work only when the electorate is alert, interested and prompt to do his part on registration and election days.

New voters are reminded that in order to exercise this great privilege of American citizenship—the right to vote—it is first necessary to register.

THE FREE COMPANIES

Europe in the fourteenth and fifteenth centuries suffered from one plague which since then has been spared the world: the so-called condottieri or Free Companies. These were roving bands of troops, raised by a leader and responsible only to him. He would hire them out to a king or general for a certain period. At the end of that time they might shift over, if paid better, to the other side. But on whichever side they might be, they were a terror to the entire countryside. Bound by no law except their commander's will, they wandered about, robbing, destroying and killing as they took the fancy.

Now the Nazis are bringing back the memories of the Free Companies. They, too, loot the civilian population without restraint, torment and kill them without mercy. Even the coming of peace is no halt on their evil activities.

The Nazis seem to have searched through history for all possible precedents of evil-doing, and gone them one better.

AUTUMN SANTA CLAUS

Do the Christmas shopping now. It is only October, but merchants in Peru, Ill., are adopting this slogan. They are putting holiday goods on their counters and shelves, planning appropriate decorations for their stores. It is expected that Santa Claus will crowd Halloween witches and cats completely out of the advertising picture.

The idea is twofold. In the first place, it will enable Christmas gifts to be sent to soldiers and sailors overseas before November 1. Then it will relieve the usual December pressure on stores, a welcome result in times when it is almost impossible to get the needed help.

If the time of day can be moved up an hour or two, why not the calendar?

FAME

A college recently asked its students to name the greatest man in history. The majority of votes was cast, naturally enough, for Julius Caesar, Alexander the Great and Napoleon, with Lincoln not neglected. A surprising number picked out world benefactors like Pasteur, the founder of modern medicine.

Such figures will endure when the memory of most public men has faded entirely. Characters like Hitler may survive in the popular memory only as people remember a peculiarly evil odor.

DEAFNESS AND HEAD NOISES

Some months ago I wrote about the very satisfactory results obtained by Drs. Rommell and Davis, Philadelphia, in the treatment of catarrhal deafness with prostigmin. Other physicians have also found that prostigmin helped many of their hard of hearing cases when the prostigmin was taken by mouth instead of being injected into the muscles.

On the other hand, some physicians and some nose and throat specialists report that they have not obtained satisfactory results and it might be well to try to find out why these results have been poor.

I have spoken before of the treatment of sinus conditions by X-rays, the reports of which have been conflicting. It would appear that those who had little or no success have not been using the X-rays in the "exact" manner suggested by the original research workers.

As it is possible that those using the prostigmin treatment for catarrhal deafness and head noises are not using it in the manner suggested by Drs. Rommell, Davis, and later by Dr. Alexander, I am mentioning again some of the suggestions of Dr. Alexander in the New Orleans Medical and Surgical Journal. As prostigmin is frequently used by physicians to stimulate muscle tissue, especially in intestine, Dr. Alexander, recognizing that the muscles of the face and ears start from the same layer of tissue at birth, and are supplied by the same nerve, and that weak and tired muscles are readily stimulated by prostigmin, used this remedy in 80 cases of catarrhal deafness and head noises. Prostigmin hastened the recivery in acute head noises, hastened the return to normal hearing in inflammation of the middle ear, and apparently helped in the removal of accumulated waste products in the ear.

In some of the acute cases only three injections into the muscles given every second day brought relief, and in the chronic cases injections twice weekly for several months gave excellent results.

I quoted the types of cases and the number cured in my previous article.

The dosage was 1 cubic centimeter of the 1 to 2000 Prostigmin solution. Prostigmin tablets taken by mouth were used in some cases.

Further, other methods of treatment continued to be given during the treatment with prostigmin.

Dr. Alexander suggests that prostigmin may be relied upon as a help to other methods of treatment.

The thought is that prostigmin by mouth or by injection of the amount and strength of solution given above, together with the other methods of treatment should be tried before the prostigmin treatment is stopped.

Beards Threaten City

Bewhiskered, shaggy - headed men are going about the streets of Melbourne, Australia, as in the pioneer days. It is all a result of the calling into the armed forces of so many barbers. The secretary of the Hairdressers Employers' Federation urges that manpower rules be changed for the sake of smooth shaves and neat haircuts. Shortage of razor blades is adding to the strain.

BABSON ON BUSINESS

HEDGES AGAINST INFLATION

Babson Likes the Grocery Chains

New York city, Oct. 9—With all this talk about inflation there are yet too many investors who do not know what to do. A recent trip to Wall Street convinces me that investors are not fearful of losing the war, but are afraid of losing the peace. In short, they are worrying about what will happen to their money after the war but are doing nothing about it. This explains why stockbrokers are starving and banks are bulging with money.

Investors Have Responsibilities

People who today are free from debt and yet hide their money in the bank are like the proverbial ostrich which hides his head in the sand. Both are trying to meet impending changes by inaction and refusing even to think. Readers should consider their children and grandchildren. The possession of money is a trust and this trust cannot be avoided by letting the purchasing power of one's money melt away by lying idle in the banks.

This does not mean that your bank will be unable to pay you after the war. Banks are stronger today than ever before. Every dollar you have in the bank will be paid back to you when you need it. But the purchasing power of these dollars is "melting" away every month. The dollars which you have in the bank now will not buy, after the war, what they will buy today.

In What to Invest

"Then what shall I do with my money?" you ask. The usual answer to this question is to invest: first, in a good home with enough land for a vegetable garden; second, in other properly located revenue-producing real estate; and third, in good stocks. When asked what "good" means, I reply "stocks of companies without debts and which hold large reserves of raw materials and natural reserves such as oil, timber, metal, ore, natural gas, coal, chemicals, etc." My favorite of all natural resources is an honestly acquired good water power.

Even such good companies have one worry, namely taxes. They are subject not only to income taxes, excess profits taxes, and all the other kinds of taxes to which every corporation is subject, but they will have big real estate taxes to pay in addition. These real estate taxes will go up as the value of the dollar goes down.

Chain Stores Worth Considering

My own policy is a half-way compromise. I do not leave much money in the bank, but keep it rather closely invested. On the other hand, I do not try to beat the Inflation Race by buying steels, oils or even the popular chemicals. To me, the chain stores—especially the good grocery chains—look best. They buy at fixed, or market, prices and quickly sell at fixed, or market, prices whatever those prices may be. People must eat and they pay these stores cash. These stores, moreover, do business at such a very small per unit profit, no one can complain. They surely are the friend of both the poor and the well-to-do.

Many of my friends are rooting for the railroads as investments to meet inflation, but I don't see it. If we are in for a long war, their advice is temporarily good. Those who buy "rails" today, however, are gambling on the length of the war and I do not believe in gambling. I had rather buy even the stocks of certain utilities which are now being so unmercifully persecuted. Some day they will receive justice; they are in a growing business; and they are not "tied, bound and shackled" by labor unions as utilities require comparatively little labor.

Remember to Diversify

Of course, the safest policy of all is to diversify your investments among many companies and many industries. Don't get "hipped" on anything or anybody. The United Nations will win this war. The present economic system, with private property as a base, will continue. The rationing, price-fixing, labor catering, etc., which may be necessary today, are ultimately to result in the New Deal's downfall. The surest bet of all is that some day the Republicans will return to power with a landslide!

My father used to have a printed card on his desk reading:—"The time to buy is when no one else wants to buy." This—in my judgment—especially now applies to timid American investors. This is no time to rush to the banks and leave them your money just because others are doing it. This is a cowardly thing to do. I believe it is more patriotic, more profitable and more safe to put this money to work;—but diversify and keep out of debt.

Two More Facts

(1) The $8,500,000,000 which the Senate tax bill provides is in addition to the $17,000,000,000 which we are already paying in federal taxes. Even this makes a total of only $25,500,000,000 or about one third the 1943 annual cost of World War II to the United States. Surely inflation is inevitable.

(2) The Industrial Average for leading stocks listed on the London Stock Exchange now stands at about 85 which is the highest figure since March 16, 1939. The lowest was 49.4 on June 26, 1940. The Industrial Average of the New York Stock Exchange is now about 109 which is 38 points lower than the March 16, 1939 figure. This shows how the English investors are more forehanded than are we in preparing for this inevitable coming inflation era.

Results of Aleutian Operations Put High Command in Excellent Position for Stand It Took

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Oct. 9—The judgment of the high command of the United States has been vindicated in the western Aleutian Islands. When, four months ago, Japan seized three islands, a clamor arose that American forces had been caught napping and that this enemy blot on American territory must be immediately erased. The Navy in particular took a pounding from certain sections of our press because it said that fog and bad weather were interfering with operations. The critics commented on the "one-way fog" and "one-way weather," intimating that it wasn't so bad for the Japanese.

What are the facts? The Navy had two major tasks on its hands at the time. One was to protect Midway at all costs and the other was to keep the supply lines to Australia open. The Japanese, by their attack on the Aleutians, hoped to arouse American patriotism to such a point that the Navy would be compelled to divert its forces from the south and try to recapture the Aleutians.

But the United States Navy was not ensnared by those tactics, even though the criticism was hard to bear when it came from American sources. The military and naval experts came to the conclusion that the Aleutians were of doubtful military value and that possession of the three islands by the Japanese could only become important if they could be used as a base for an attack on Dutch Harbor. Our forces there were considered adequate from a defensive viewpoint.

But it now becomes apparent that the Navy and Army had all along intended to strengthen their forces in the Alaskan area and that they intended tc do so in the autumn of this year. Doubtless the Japanese suspected this was coming and sought to strike the first blow. But it is believed the Japanese strategy was related wholly to the possibility of a Japanese attack on Siberia. The seizure of the western Aleutians is thought now to have been a protective move so as to enable the Japanese to cut off shipping destined for Siberian ports. It is not believed that the Japanese contemplated this autumn any offensive operations that would reach into Alaska.

But now it has been officially disclosed that the American air forces are bombing Kiska repeatedly and that the Japanese have evidently withdrawn from the two other islands which they originally occupied.

To bombard Kiska must unquestionably take a sizeable number of planes and a substantial amount of fuel and supplies. The fact that bombing is being carried out regularly nowadays merely is the Navy's laconic way of saying that we have now found time to get at the Japanese and blast them out of the Aleutians.

The American people have not been told the details of strategy, and it is desirable that they should not be given such details, but there were plenty of unofficial military experts familiar with the Alaskan theatre of operations who, from the outset, warned against being led into the Japanese trap.

The four months which have elapsed show that the United States Navy not only kept its main forces intact for the great victory at Midway but also supported landing operations in the Solomon Islands, whereas the Japanese were unable to do anything to our main base at Dutch Harbor or to prevent our use of other bases near the western Aleutians.

The Alaskan area may become a major theatre of war some day and if Japan and Russia go to war it will become of paramount significance. But the United States has needed the very time that has elapsed, so as to carry out certain other operations in the Pacific, while at the same time building up the forces needed in the north Pacific in the vicinity of the Aleutians.

The whole episode illustrates the importance of relying implicity on the judgment of our high command. When there are not enough tools to do all the jobs simultaneously and when there are other objectives which require prior consideration, the public can rest assured that clamor for an alteration of these military plans will not influence decisions, because this war is not being fought by the men at the top for the purpose of meeting temporary criticisms. Those in positions or responsibility in our Army, Navy, Marine Corps and Air Corps are putting first things first. The Aleutian Islands will soon be regained entirely, and the Japanese adventure will have been proved very costly and completely fruitless. It is a lesson in the importance of concealed strategy and in the need for greater faith in the men in command.

"AT CENTURY'S TURN"

By H. L. VAN DEUSEN

The month of February, 1927, was marked by the death of two men who for years had been active in the affairs of Kingston. Edward B. Codwise, civil engineer, died on February 11, and John S. Thompson, Civil War veteran and meat packer, died on February 15.

Mr. Codwise died in Morgantown, West Virginia, where he had been making his home for several years after leaving Kingston. He was very active in city affairs for a number of years, serving as city engineer.

He first was appointed city engineer in 1902, serving through to 1909. Again in 1916 he was appointed city engineer during the administration of Palmer Canfield as mayor and served for a number of years.

Mr. Codwise was 78 years old at the time of his death. His son, G. Wallace Codwise, followed in his father's footsteps and served as city engineer for a number of years.

Mr. Thompson, who was 80 years old at the time of his death in his home on President's Place, enlisted on August 27, 1862, at the age of 16 years, in Co. G, 156th New York Volunteers, and served throughout the Civil War. He was one of the Union men taken prisoner at the battle of Winchester.

At the close of the Civil War he returned to Kingston and embarked in the meat packing business which had been established on Hunter street in 1856 by the late George Thompson.

This meat packing business is still in existence in the same location and is being carried on by Frank W. Thompson, a son of the Civil War veteran.

The veteran of the war between the states was also active in politics and served as an alderman for 16 years. He was a member and past commander of the former Pratt Post, G. A. R., of this city, and also served as vice-president of the Rondout Savings Bank.

Mr. Thompson was an interesting talker and could spin many an interesting tale of army life as it was during the dark days of the Civil War.

Action was taken by the Board of Supervisors on February 2, 1927, toward obtaining a site for the new TB Hospital, and it was decided to purchase land on Golden Hill for the sum of $12,000 on which to erect the new hospital.

There had been agitation for a new TB Hospital for a number of years in Kingston, but the action of the supervisors was the first definite step taken toward realization.

Washington In Wartime

By Jack Stinnett

Washington — If there is any doubt what influence the "will of the people" exercise on legislation just recall the Senate action on the anti-inflation bill.

In spite of the President's ultimatum that some satisfactory anti-inflation legislation would have to be passed immediately, the Senate farm bloc was in the saddle.

In the early days of the battle, it appeared that the farm bloc, with its Thomas amendment ordering a redefinition of parity prices, couldn't be defeated.

Then on a single week-end the farm bloc balloon collapsed. The so-called "compromise" amendment was passed with only four dissenting votes and the original anti-inflation bill, sponsored by administration legislators, was voted unanimously—82 to 0.

Back of this is another one of those heartening stories of the triumph of our democratic system. It is as cumbersome as an ox-cart on a superhighway. Often it appears just about that ridiculous. But whenever it tangles with any subject that arouses the real interest or ire of the public, it whips into line with the speed and drive of a modern tank.

As a matter of fact, the farm bloc fight collapsed even before the favorable vote on the Thomas parity amendment. That vote was "for the record"—proof in print that the senators who have to face their farm constituents had done their best.

Proponents of the amendment knew already that they were beaten. Why? Because the mail bags day after day gave proof of two things: (1) That the public in general was almost four-square back of the President in demanding legislation that would halt the spiraling cost of living: (2) That the farmers themselves weren't "het up" about a redefinition of parity. One of the big four farm organizations was, in fact, fighting with the administration.

Sitting here in Washington watching the often tedious, day-to-day, hour-after-hour maneuvering, the cloakroom and "for the record" politicking, it's easy to lose sight of the effectiveness of that intangible something called "public demand." But old timers here, hashing over the Senate anti-inflation battle are saying again what they have said many times since this national emergency arose: Never before has public opinion been so quickly effective in ramming legislation through.

Actually, the anti-inflation scrap in the Senate, in spite of all the thunderheads, was a pretty tame affair on the surface. Except for masterful speech in which Senator Prentiss M. Brown (D.-Mich.) introduced the administration bill, of which he was co-author and the calm plea of Majority Leader Alben Barkley, there were no real verbal fireworks. A few of the senators, like George, Hatch, Ellender, Danaher and "Cotton Ed" Smith, did toss around a few sparklers, but there was nothing that could be called a display.

The old mail bags had carried the load. Fireworks aren't popular this war.

Taxicabs are now limited to short hauls in Rio de Janeiro.

New York's Four-Day Voting Registration Total Is 958,312

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 9 (AP).—Upstate registration for the November 3 statewide election starts today, with party leaders and candidates urging citizens to qualify for voting to preserve at home the democracy which America's fighting men are defending abroad.

Personal registration in communities of 5,000 and larger outside New York city is scheduled today, tomorrow and next Friday from 10 a. m. to 10 p. m. and Saturday, October 17, from 7 a. m. to 10 p. m.

In smaller communities, where registration is non-personal, voters may qualify tomorrow 7 a. m. to 10 p. m. and October 17 from 1 to 10 p. m.

The four-day total in New York city was 958,312, well behind the 1,189,000 enrolled in the same period in 1938. Registration began Monday and continues through tomorrow.

Meanwhile, as State Democratic Chairman James A. Farley returned to New York city today after a two-day upstate tour, Thomas E. Dewey, Republican gubernatorial nominee, arrives here this afternoon, launching an informal six-county trip with additional scheduled stops at Glens Falls, Schenectady, Malone, Ogdensburg, Canton and Watertown. He will return to New York city Sunday.

In his second New York city speech in as many nights, Dean Alfange, American Labor Party candidate for the governorship, last night proposed the State Department change the status of Italy from that of a belligerent nation to an occupied country, declaring:

"Everybody knows that if the Italian people were free to choose they would be fighting on our side." Alfange also appealed to the Justice Department to permit "friendly" unnaturalized Italians to obtain jobs.

Samuel H. Friedman, Socialist nominee for lieutenant governor, called on Alfange to withdraw from the gubernatorial race on grounds he "has no place in this campaign" since President Roosevelt endorsed Attorney General John J. Bennett, Jr., Democratic candidate.

Wallace Makes Change

Thomas W. Wallace, Schenectady, Republican nominee for lieutenant governor, charged that "Democratic muddlings" were responsible for what he termed "the breakdown" of the state unemployment insurance machinery.

Wallace was confined to his hotel room with a sinus infection, and his speech was delivered for him before members of the New York City Young Republican Club.

Wallace said Republicans made the insurance machinery function after it had broken down when payments were started in 1938. He said the Democrats took "three years claiming they were preparing" the program.

In Buffalo, Frank C. Moore, Republican candidate for state comptroller, said at the opening of the Erie county G. O. P. campaign that people must vote, that "if we are to win this war, there can be no bystanders, no spectators and no grandstand."

State Republican Chairman Edwin F. Jaeckle, at the same meeting, forecast victory for the entire state G. O. P. ticket, adding he had not reached the "expertness" of other persons in predicting election majorities.

In New York city two more upstate Democratic county chairmen predicted a falling off of Republican vote at the coming election. David McManus, Broome county chairman, forecast a Bennett victory in his county, which gave Dewey a 16,877 plurality over Governor Lehman in 1938. Joseph P. Leary, Otsego county, said Dewey's plurality would be about 6,000 this year as compared to 8,685 in 1938.

Former Mayor Roland B. Marvin of Syracuse, a visitor at New York city Dewey headquarters, said he felt "more optimistic" about Dewey's chances of winning than he did a month ago.

Knutson, Sabath Ask U. S. Lottery To Help Pay War

Appeal Is Based on Idea That Draft Method Is No Better, Sponsors Say at Capital

Washington, Oct. 9 (AP)—Based on the contention that a nation that uses a lottery to draft its men for war shouldn't object to the same method for helping to finance the struggle, a drive for a national lottery law was under way today on Capitol Hill.

Representatives Knutson (R.-Minn.) and Sabath (D.-Ill.), authors of legislation to raise money through government-sponsored lotteries, said the apparent need for more revenue had revived chances of favorable consideration for their bills.

A member of the ways and means committee which is responsible for tax legislation in the House, Knutson said he would press for inclusion of his proposal in any new tax bill the Treasury Department requests. Secretary Morgenthau indicated earlier this week he would ask Congress to raise an additional $6,000,000,000 as soon as the present tax bill is out of the way.

"It's either a sales tax or a lottery," said Knutson, adding that of the two he believed the people generally would prefer the lottery. A lottery, he said, would raise just as much money and give the taxpayers a chance to get some of it back.

Knutson estimated his plan would yield around a billion dollars a year. The proceeds would be used to help finance the war, and after the war they would be used to increase old-age pension payments.

There would be more than 140,000 monthly winners under the Knutson system, the prizes being distributed as follows for each $100,000,000 of gross receipts: First prize, $100,000; four $50,000 prizes, eight $25,000 awards, fifty $10,000 prizes, one hundred $5,000 returns, 1,000 awards of $1,000 each; 10,000 of $500 each; 30,000 of $250 each, and 100,000 of $100 each.

Tickets, handled through the Treasury and Postoffice Departments, would cost $2 each, with half-share tickets available for $1. One-half of the value of a prize worth $1,000 could be paid in government bonds.

Urge Farmers To Produce, Save

Borrow Only to Get Production Tools

Ithaca, N. Y.,—The nation has a critical need for all the food farmers can produce as long as the war lasts and at least a year or two after, according to William I. Myers, head of the agriculture economics department of the New York State College of Agriculture.

Today the farmer needs a larger working capital than ever before, says Myers, in order to keep his farm an efficient producing unit. A farmer has good cause to use credit to expand his business to reasonable size.

In outlining a wartime program for United States farmers, Myers, now consultant to the War Savings staff of the Federal Treasury, advises farmers to get their debts on a safe basis. Income used to pay debts does not compete with war production, and so does not contribute to inflation, he says, and the payments can be used by the creditors to the farmer to buy War Bonds.

Every farmer will want to buy some War Bonds to help his country directly, the outline says, but farmers heavily in debt should use most of their increased income to reduce debts now, so they can stand bad years that lie ahead.

Farm cooperatives also need to be relieved of their debt load now, with any income that accrues.

Farmers who have only moderate debts will find the investment in War Bonds of all money above operating and living expenses one of their best ways of helping to win the war.

MAUHS IS 'ALL OUT' FOR ACTION

WANTS ONLY ONE FRONT

Calls For an End to Smearing the Government; Says It Is Betraying the Country

SHARON J. MAUHS

Cobleskill, N. Y., Sept. 30.—Sharon J. Mauhs of Cobleskill, New York, prominent Schoharie county lawyer, owner of Wyndyhl Farms and a candidate for Representative in Congress from the 27th Congressional District comprising the counties of Columbia, Greene, Schoharie, Sullivan and Ulster, made the following forceful statement today:

"Through the newspapers in the 27th district I want to tell the people where I stand on some mighty important issues. The voters in this district have a right to know before election where I stand on these things.

"1—There should be only one front—the fighting front. The political front—politics for the sake of politics, has no place in this campaign. This should be a campaign to get back of the government, not a campaign against it.

"2—If we come out of this war with only our hides left we will have nothing to gripe about so long as we win. Anybody who thinks he is coming out of this war rich is kidding himself.

"3—People must give up their comforts, their conveniences and their money—and they must do it now. When you are drafting men's lives away it's no time to flinch about rationing and wage control and price control and high taxes. Now is the time—not after election. These things are not political issues.

"4—I favor a form of taxation which will not place the heaviest burden on the low income group and the small wage earner. Let them pay, yes, but let those with the ability to pay and those who are making the money stand the gaff.

"5—Don't smear your Government by rumor-mongering just because you oppose the President politically—stand shoulder to shoulder with him in this fight. He has a tough job. The only issue today is winning the war. Smearing your Government in a pure game of politics is betraying your country. Don't kid yourself—that kind of politics is out—or we don't win."

Mr. Mauhs was born forty years ago at Sharon Springs, New York. He graduated from Cobleskill High School in 1922. He was obliged to leave high school after completing his first two years and seek work to support his mother and sister; his father died when he was eight years old. He was urged to finish school by his former teachers and after working two years as a steamfitter's helper he went back to high school, completed the remaining two years' work in one year and graduated with honors in 1922. Mr. Mauhs then went to Albany Law School and supported himself while in Albany by working as a dishwasher in the old Union News Company Restaurant, located in the Albany railroad station.

He was admitted to the bar of the State of New York on July 1st, 1926, and fifteen days later, on July 16th, he was nominated for District Attorney and was elected by a large majority. He was re-elected for a second three year term and made a great record in his six years as County Prosecutor.

In 1927 Mr. Mauhs married Gertrude Myers, of Barnerville, New York. They have two boys, John, 14, and Peter, 11. Mrs. Mauhs comes from a family of early settlers who first located near Saugerties, in Ulster county, upon coming to this country from Holland.

In 1934 Mr. Mauhs was appointed a Special Assistant District Attorney of Rensselaer county to handle the second trial of the Scarnici murder case, after the first trial, under a different prosecutor, ended in a disagreement of the jury. Upon the second trial Scarnici was convicted of first degree murder. Mr. Mauhs conducted the second trial with great credit and distinction to himself and the State of New York and he has since been recognized as one of the leading trial lawyers of the state.

In 1933, as an Assistant Attorney General, Mr. Mauhs conducted the grand jury investigations and subsequently prosecuted the group of extortioners who had been operating among bakery and confectionery stores in Brooklyn, New York. These storekeepers had long been compelled by racketeers to make varying payments of weekly tribute, based on the volume of their business, for protection from various forms of personal violence and destruction of property.

In 1937 Mr. Mauhs conducted for the State of New York the racing investigation in Saratoga county which resulted in the indictment of over eighty individuals and corporations who were manipulating a vast scheme of "tipping" horses, false advertising and allegedly fixing races. After sports writers, newspapermen, jockeys, advertisers and many of the victims of the scheme had testified before the grand jury, indictments were handed up naming individuals as far south as Florida. Those defendants out of the state were extradited and when the investigation was completed every individual apprehended and every corporation indicted was convicted.

Mr. Mauhs, from the very first has been a supporter of the President's war policy and long before Pearl Harbor he urged the people to forget politics and hold up the President's hand. He is progressive and liberal and with his independence of thought and mind, which is so sorely needed today, the people of this district can be assured that he will never duck an issue or evade an answer. He has announced that he will unequivocally support every measure aimed at the defeat of our enemies.

Mr. Mauhs concludes his statement as follows:

"I believe the most important fact about any candidate is not whether he is a Democrat or Republican or American Labor, but whether he is awake to the deeper issue of this war, and ready to follow through on them. I believe that political tags are dwarfed into insignificance by the gravity of the decisions which the American people are now called upon to make. I claim there is only one test today by which a candidate must be judged, and that is has he the ability and the courage and the willingness to fight, regardless of politics, in order to win this battle for freedom. I say any candidate who cannot meet this test is not entitled to a seat in Congress. This national crisis demands statesmanship, not politics. It demands quick action, not dilly-dallying. It demands a Congress that will support the President quickly in every genuine effort put forth to win the war, and not a Congress that wants to delay action until after election or for other political reasons. This crisis demands a Congress that will be willing to make a peace after the war which will guarantee a world of liberty and not one that will revert back to isolationism and reaction, and to all of these ends I pledge my efforts."

Liver Stocks Up Vitamin for Winter

Ithaca, N. Y.—To be a good liver, you must have one, according to Professor C. M. McCay of the New York State College of Agriculture, who says the way to have a good liver is to let it stock up vitamins from the fresh, green fall and summer foods, before winter comes.

"The liver is the most remarkable storehouse that nature has ever invented," he says, "It carries a reserve of fat, protein, easily available energy in the form of glycogen, and vitamins. The liver stores up large amounts of vitamin A when a person eats an abundance of green and yellow vegetables, yellow butter, eggs and other vitamin-rich foods."

"A well stocked liver, along with a well stocked cellar of canned goods and stored vegetables, will help a person to live through the winter months in better health."

Most persons who eat plenty of fresh vegetables in summer and fall store up enough vitamin A to last them till Thanksgiving, says Prof. McCay. From then on, the vitamin supply in foods tends to lag until spring.

Vitamin A is necessary to good eyesight, good hearing, bodily growth of children, as well as other functions of a healthy body, he says. Human beings can well follow the example set by the cow. She stocks her liver with most of a six-months supply of vitamin A from the green pasture grasses in autumn.

A. L. P. Has Big Job Ahead To Prove Decisive Power

By WILLIAM W. TYDER

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 9 (AP)—It is every politician's guess—and they all are guessing—how much the favored candidates for New York's governorship will benefit from indorsements by President Roosevelt and Mayor Fiorello LaGuardia, of New York city.

But there is little disagreement on one immediate effect of the conflicting statements.

They spotlight stronger than ever the American Labor party's task of proving—for the first time—its claim to decisive political power in New York.

Said the President: "Of the three men in the race . . . I shall cast my ballot for John Bennett (Democrat) because I believe he is the best qualified."

"I am going to support Dean Alfange," LaGuardia declared. "I think, of the three parties, there is more hope in the (American Labor) party that is supporting Alfange * * *."

The result is an interesting conflict of "influences" highlighting once more than much-disputed political question:

To what extent can any men "deliver" to another candidate the votes he might win himself?

Mr. Roosevelt backed LaGuardia (A. L. P.) to win the mayoralty of New York city last year against the candidate of his own Democratic party, William O'Dwyer. Now the President lines up with Governor Lehman, who supported O'Dwyer.

Both Lehman and Roosevelt support Bennett against Republican Thomas E. Dewey, after their united but unsuccessful effort to win the Democratic gubernatorial nomination for United States Senator James M. Mead.

The party's turndown of the senator, in favor of Bennett, brought Alfange into the field as the first strictly A. L. P. candidate for governor.

And LaGuardia elects to stand by the American Labor party, to which he shifted his one-time Republican enrollment, in its first test of voting behind its own candidate.

Republicans Intrigued

The mayor's statement of "more hope" in the American Labor party intrigued capitol Republicans, one of whom remarked with a smile—"He ought to know."

LaGuardia served in Congress as a Republican, lost as a Republican candidate for New York's mayor to Democrat James J. Walker in 1929. In 1933 he was elected mayor as a Republican, with City Fusion party indorsemen. Then he enrolled A. L. P., and in 1937 was relected under the label with Republican indorsement.

He was elected last year as an American Laborite, with Republican, Fusion, and United City party support.

The A. L. P.'s claim to the balance of political power stems principally from the 400,000 votes it gave in 1938 to Democratic Governor Lehman, who defeated Dewey by 64,000. The party came into prominence in 1936 behind President Roosevelt, whom it has supported consistently.

If LaGuardia's purpose in declaring for Alfange, therefore, is to build up the party's ballot showing, he opposes two influences which may sap heavily at the A. L. P. vote.

LaGuardia polled 1,186,300 votes for mayor last year, of which the A. L. P. gave him 435,256. The question is: How many can he hold for Alfange, who claims to be the only New Deal candidate, when the No. 1 New Dealer and Lehman, as ardent a New Dealer as LaGuardia, favor Bennett?

The A. L. P. meanwhile is in the position of trying to roll up a vote for Alfange which might elect Dewey, against whom the New Deal—as represented by Roosevelt and Lehman—has declared.

Bennett and State Democratic Chairman James A. Farley, who led the former's fight against Mead, expressed gratification for the presidential indorsement. Democrats believe it helps mainly to salve party wounds in populous Kings county, New Deal stronghold, and assures Bennett's election.

Spokesmen for Dewey, viewing it as only a presidential vote for Bennett, claim it will have little effect against Dewey's "certain election."

The answer will be written on November 3 election ballots.

They also will peg the American Labor party's future place in New York politics.

Analyze Leaves For Lack of Food

Shows Need of Fruit Trees for Fertilizer

Ithaca, N. Y.—Leaf and fruit analysis shows accurately the needs of fruit trees for certain fertilizer elements, and may eventually prove a help to fruit growers who wish to make the best use of slim fertilizer supplies.

Lack of potash, nitrogen, and even mere traces of some elements, such as boron, can be determined by study of the mineral content of the leaves or fruits, according to the work in progress at the Cornell University Agricultural Experiment Station here.

Soil analysis does not show accurately the fertilizer needs of long-lived tree crops, according to Professor Damon Boynton, in charge of the analysis.

As a result, the trees may actually get too much fertilizer, or too little fertilizer of a certain kind; yet the grower does not know when and how to correct the waste.

The work of analysis can be accomplished with full laboratory equipment, but accuracy of the results under different growing conditions, different soil and fruit types must yet be checked. If results are promising, the investigators will try to set up a method of orchard analysis of leaves that will be practical for growers to use.

Women Smuggle Butter

Women of Northern Ireland who tried a new dodge to smuggle food from Eire lost in a battle of wits with custom officials at Dundalk, Eire. The women excursionists were searched by a woman official and were found to be wearing special pouches hung on belts and worn under the coats. Every pouch had half a dozen pockets, each of which held a pound of butter. The butter and pouches were seized. Some pouches held ham, cheese and jam. Also seized were hair combs, face powder, lipstick and bottles of perfume.

Bag of Fertilizer Packs More Value

Ithaca, N. Y.—Fewer kinds of tags, brands, and mixtures for fertilizer, and fewer low-analysis plant foods shipped to farmers this fall and in 1943 will increase the efficiency of the fertilizer industry in aiding farmers to produce more food.

Use of chemical notrogen in fertilizer has been limited by the War Production Board, and this chemical nitrogen allotment will be saved for food production entirely. Estimates show a supply of nitrogen only 80 per cent as large as the amount used by farmers in 1941.

Greater amounts of the other fertilizer elements, potash and phosphorus, will help to compensate in part for this shortened supply of nitrogen, according to professor E. L. Worthen of the New York State College of Agriculture. Use of more lime on acid soils to help growth of legumes will also help offset nitrogen shortage.

Proper tillage of the land and the use of all farm manures will also help to offset the reduction in chemical nitrogen.

Fourteen grades of mixed fertilizers are listed for manufacture and sale in New York state. Used properly, they should provide most of the plant-food needs of farmers who want to get the good crop yields.

Nazis Make "Hardwood"

Germany has an answer to the shortage of hardwoods due to the cutting off of imports. A new method has been developed of impregnating native timbers with synthetic resins, lignite, ozokerite, and other materials, it is explained in Berlin. The process is carried out in a closed container, and the solvent is extracted after saturation has been effected by use of a partial vacuum. The wood need not be dry, and after treatment it does not swell and is extremely hard, making an excellent substitute for hardwoods.

Cafe Mop Wielder, Once Welder, Soon Gets Call for Production Job

Manpower Commission. The government sees no reason in these days of a fast-shrinking supply of manpower why any man, no matter how unskilled, should be out of a job.

"We have a job for any man who comes in here," says William C. Betzer, in charge of the occupational questionnaire department. "Yet we don't disturb any man at any time from employment unless he's willing to be disturbed. And we call men in for interviews only if their questionnaires show they aren't making the most of their highest skills.

"Also, we are not touching men in transportation or public health work, or who would be extremely difficult to replace. In any of those instances we merely would be doubling our work, since we'd have to find other men to fill in for them."

On the whole, Wood reports, employers in non-essential industries are cooperating with the government in releasing their men to war industries. There are some who enter violent objections. But on the other hand, a growing number work out agreements whereby transferring employes are guaranteed their seniority rights when the emergency ends and they wish to return to their former line of work.

Earlier in the year the war Manpower Commission designated New York and Los Angeles as the only areas in the country which were manpower reservoirs. There is ample evidence on all sides that in this particular area, war industries now are scraping close to the bottom of the barrels.

Every day the shipyards, aircraft plants, steel mills and foundries advertise in the Los Angeles papers for workers, skilled or unskilled. The U. S. E. S. has a file of company requests running into the thousands, and the eight southern California aircraft plants alone could put on thousands more workers right now—if they knew where to get them.

"We're doing our best to build up an occupational backlog for the industries," says Betzer, and Woods adds:

"Somewhere within the last two months we passed the line of demarcation between the period when the Los Angeles area had lots of men and the time when the supply began to run low. A number of factors were responsible, including enlistments, the draft and a definite slackening in the flow of migrating workers."

The rate of loss, particularly of skilled workers, still is alarming. With a six-month deferment for training of a replacement the most the companies can expect in the cases of such men who are called in the draft, it is not likely to subside. Employment needs, therefore, are going to increase rather than decrease, whereas the reservoir of available manpower will be running lower constantly.

The companies are doing everything they can in their own behalf to fill the gap.

They are hiring rehabilitated workers, and growing numbers of men over 65; their plants now show an average of better than 21 per cent women workers (the percentage jumps to 75 per cent on opplication lists and in training schools), and they are training as many new workers as possible, while at the same time training hundreds of men for the army air forces in order to stave off future demands from that quarter on their own personnel.

Women, incidentally, are being taken on now even as plant guards, since they can be used in such spots as entrance gates where visitors' credentials have to be checked.

Vultee Aircraft, realizing there will be urgent need for supervisors, has established a plant orientation school, in which men especially recommended by their foremen and department heads get a thorough 16-week course from which they emerge with a fuller understanding of plant operation. Such a course might be compared to the army's officer candidate schools.

With the aid of the Aircraft War Production Council, the war industries are starting a school for their industrial training directors. Here these men and their assistants will learn how they can extend and standardize their methods, with special emphasis on the particular problems created through the increased employment of women.

The Aircraft War Production Council also is assembling a training film library. Already it has acquired a number of films from outside sources, and at present is in production on the first of its own, to be titled "The Airplane and Its Components." These will be so-called "strip films" which, after the manner of slides, can be stopped at any point for detailed explanation and discussion of a particular illustration.

How many workers now are and soon will be involved in this training work is as much of a security secret as the number of workers now employed. But it runs into the thousands.

Eight Canadian Policemen Cross North in 28 Months

Sydney, N. S., Oct. 9 (AP)—A new chapter was added to Arctic history today by eight hardy Royal Canadian Mounted Policemen who completed the first west-to-east voyage across the top of America 28 months after 80-ton auxiliary schooner set out from Vancouver.

The bearded adventurers sailed quietly into this port yesterday to accomplish in reverse the feat which explorers of a bygone era had attempted unsuccessfully in their search for the northwest passage—short cut to the fabled riches of the Orient.

Only once in history has the east-to-west passage been sailed—by Roald Amundsen, the Norwegian explorer, and five other men who crossed the north Atlantic in 1903 and emerged into the Pacific three years later.

Details of the Mounties' voyage were cloaked by official secrecy, the members of the expedition declining to disclose their purpose in undertaking the hazardous journey.

They revealed that one member of the original crew had died on the way, but was replaced by another man picked up at a lonely R. C. M. P. post at which they paused en route.

During most of the time since they left the west coast in June, 1940, the Mounties' only contact with the outside world was by radio. Though they carried a goodly load of provisions when they set out they were forced to forage for their food during their lonely wanderings among the ice floes—depending partly on seals and fish for subsistence.

Joe Brown's Son Killed in Crash Of Army Bomber

Long Beach, Calif., Oct 9 (AP)—It was in July a year ago that Comedian Joe E. Brown planted a proud kiss on his eldest son, Don, then 24, as he received his wings as a second lieutenant in the Army Air Corps Reserve at Stockton, Calif.

Today Brown had abruptly left the show in which he was starring at Detroit and was flying back to claim the body of his son, who as an Army ferrying command captain, died in the crash yesterday near Palm Springs of a bomber he was piloting to Utah.

"Far as I am concerned 'the show-off' is ended," said Comedian Brown, greaking a tradition that the show must go on.

"Don was my oldest son, but I have another who will take his place within a few weeks. He is Joe Jr., 20, now employed in the Douglas Aircraft factory. Joe has arranged to join the Marines."

Lt. Paul Herbert, in command at the Palm Springs field, said Capt. Brown had taken off with a group of bombers and crashed after ten minutes in the air. Brown, he said, was able to crawl from the wreckage but died a few minutes later.

Capt. Brown was a football player at the University of California at Los Angeles in 1938 and 1939, was student body president and an R. O. T. C. cadet colonel in 1939.

He had served in the ferrying command a little more than a year.

LITERACY TESTS

Literacy tests for new voters are being held at the Kingston High School and Myron J. Michael School. New voters must secure a certificate showing that they have passed the test or present educational qualifications to the election inspectors.

General qualifications of a voter are that he must have been a citizen for ninety days and have reached the age of 21 years. He must also have lived in the United States for five years, in the state for one year, in the county for four months and in the election district for thirty days.

Registration in this city began today. It will be held again tomorrow and again on Friday and Saturday of next week. If you fail to register, you cannot vote.

It is important that new voters know that participation of all citizens is the ideal of democracy, which can work only when the electorate is alert, interested and prompt to do his part on registration and election days.

New voters are reminded that in order to exercise this great privilege of American citizenship—the right to vote—it is first necessary to register.

THE FREE COMPANIES

Europe in the fourteenth and fifteenth centuries suffered from one plague which since then has been spared the world: the so-called condottieri or Free Companies. These were roving bands of troops, raised by a leader and responsible only to him. He would hire them out to a king or general for a certain period. At the end of that time they might shift over, if paid better, to the other side. But on whichever side they might be, they were a terror to the entire countryside. Bound by no law except their commander's will, they wandered about, robbing, destroying and killing as they took the fancy.

Now the Nazis are bringing back the memories of the Free Companies. They, too, loot the civilian population without restraint, torment and kill them without mercy. Even the coming of peace is no halt on their evil activities.

The Nazis seem to have searched through history for all possible precedents of evil-doing, and gone them one better.

AUTUMN SANTA CLAUS

Do the Christmas shopping now. It is only October, but merchants in Peru, Ill., are adopting this slogan. They are putting holiday goods on their counters and shelves, planning appropriate decorations for their stores. It is expected that Santa Claus will crowd Halloween witches and cats completely out of the advertising picture.

The idea is twofold. In the first place, it will enable Christmas gifts to be sent to soldiers and sailors overseas before November 1. Then it will relieve the usual December pressure on stores, a welcome result in times when it is almost impossible to get the needed help.

If the time of day can be moved up an hour or two, why not the calendar?

FAME

A college recently asked its students to name the greatest man in history. The majority of votes was cast, naturally enough, for Julius Caesar, Alexander the Great and Napoleon, with Lincoln not neglected. A surprising number picked out world benefactors like Pasteur, the founder of modern medicine.

Such figures will endure when the memory of most public men has faded entirely. Characters like Hitler may survive in the popular memory only as people remember a peculiarly evil odor.

DEAFNESS AND HEAD NOISES

Some months ago I wrote about the very satisfactory results obtained by Drs. Rommell and Davis, Philadelphia, in the treatment of catarrhal deafness with prostigmin. Other physicians have also found that prostigmin helped many of their hard of hearing cases when the prostigmin was taken by mouth instead of being injected into the muscles.

On the other hand, some physicians and some nose and throat specialists report that they have not obtained satisfactory results and it might be well to try to find out why these results have been poor.

I have spoken before of the treatment of sinus conditions by X-rays, the reports of which have been conflicting. It would appear that those who had little or no success have not been using the X-rays in the "exact" manner suggested by the original research workers.

As it is possible that those using the prostigmin treatment for catarrhal deafness and head noises are not using it in the manner suggested by Drs. Rommell, Davis, and later by Dr. Alexander, I am mentioning again some of the suggestions of Dr. Alexander in the New Orleans Medical and Surgical Journal. As prostigmin is frequently used by physicians to stimulate muscle tissue, especially in intestine, Dr. Alexander, recognizing that the muscles of the face and ears start from the same layer of tissue at birth, and are supplied by the same nerve, and that weak and tired muscles are readily stimulated by prostigmin, used this remedy in 80 cases of catarrhal deafness and head noises. Prostigmin hastened the recivery in acute head noises, hastened the return to normal hearing in inflammation of the middle ear, and apparently helped in the removal of accumulated waste products in the ear.

In some of the acute cases only three injections into the muscles given every second day brought relief, and in the chronic cases injections twice weekly for several months gave excellent results.

I quoted the types of cases and the number cured in my previous article.

The dosage was 1 cubic centimeter of the 1 to 2000 Prostigmin solution. Prostigmin tablets taken by mouth were used in some cases.

Further, other methods of treatment continued to be given during the treatment with prostigmin.

Dr. Alexander suggests that prostigmin may be relied upon as a help to other methods of treatment.

The thought is that prostigmin by mouth or by injection of the amount and strength of solution given above, together with the other methods of treatment should be tried before the prostigmin treatment is stopped.

Beards Threaten City

Bewhiskered, shaggy - headed men are going about the streets of Melbourne, Australia, as in the pioneer days. It is all a result of the calling into the armed forces of so many barbers. The secretary of the Hairdressers Employers' Federation urges that manpower rules be changed for the sake of smooth shaves and neat haircuts. Shortage of razor blades is adding to the strain.

BABSON ON BUSINESS

HEDGES AGAINST INFLATION

Babson Likes the Grocery Chains

New York city, Oct. 9—With all this talk about inflation there are yet too many investors who do not know what to do. A recent trip to Wall Street convinces me that investors are not fearful of losing the war, but are afraid of losing the peace. In short, they are worrying about what will happen to their money after the war but are doing nothing about it. This explains why stockbrokers are starving and banks are bulging with money.

Investors Have Responsibilities

People who today are free from debt and yet hide their money in the bank are like the proverbial ostrich which hides his head in the sand. Both are trying to meet impending changes by inaction and refusing even to think. Readers should consider their children and grandchildren. The possession of money is a trust and this trust cannot be avoided by letting the purchasing power of one's money melt away by lying idle in the banks.

This does not mean that your bank will be unable to pay you after the war. Banks are stronger today than ever before. Every dollar you have in the bank will be paid back to you when you need it. But the purchasing power of these dollars is "melting" away every month. The dollars which you have in the bank now will not buy, after the war, what they will buy today.

In What to Invest

"Then what shall I do with my money?" you ask. The usual answer to this question is to invest: first, in a good home with enough land for a vegetable garden; second, in other properly located revenue-producing real estate; and third, in good stocks. When asked what "good" means, I reply "stocks of companies without debts and which hold large reserves of raw materials and natural reserves such as oil, timber, metal, ore, natural gas, coal, chemicals, etc." My favorite of all natural resources is an honestly acquired good water power.

Even such good companies have one worry, namely taxes. They are subject not only to income taxes, excess profits taxes, and all the other kinds of taxes to which every corporation is subject, but they will have big real estate taxes to pay in addition. These real estate taxes will go up as the value of the dollar goes down.

Chain Stores Worth Considering

My own policy is a half-way compromise. I do not leave much money in the bank, but keep it rather closely invested. On the other hand, I do not try to beat the Inflation Race by buying steels, oils or even the popular chemicals. To me, the chain stores—especially the good grocery chains—look best. They buy at fixed, or market, prices and quickly sell at fixed, or market, prices whatever those prices may be. People must eat and they pay these stores cash. These stores, moreover, do business at such a very small per unit profit, no one can complain. They surely are the friend of both the poor and the well-to-do.

Many of my friends are rooting for the railroads as investments to meet inflation, but I don't see it. If we are in for a long war, their advice is temporarily good. Those who buy "rails" today, however, are gambling on the length of the war and I do not believe in gambling. I had rather buy even the stocks of certain utilities which are now being so unmercifully persecuted. Some day they will receive justice; they are in a growing business; and they are not "tied, bound and shackled" by labor unions as utilities require comparatively little labor.

Remember to Diversify

Of course, the safest policy of all is to diversify your investments among many companies and many industries. Don't get "hipped" on anything or anybody. The United Nations will win this war. The present economic system, with private property as a base, will continue. The rationing, price-fixing, labor catering, etc., which may be necessary today, are ultimately to result in the New Deal's downfall. The surest bet of all is that some day the Republicans will return to power with a landslide!

My father used to have a printed card on his desk reading:—"The time to buy is when no one else wants to buy." This—in my judgment—especially now applies to timid American investors. This is no time to rush to the banks and leave them your money just because others are doing it. This is a cowardly thing to do. I believe it is more patriotic, more profitable and more safe to put this money to work;—but diversify and keep out of debt.

Two More Facts

(1) The $8,500,000,000 which the Senate tax bill provides is in addition to the $17,000,000,000 which we are already paying in federal taxes. Even this makes a total of only $25,500,000,000 or about one third the 1943 annual cost of World War II to the United States. Surely inflation is inevitable.

(2) The Industrial Average for leading stocks listed on the London Stock Exchange now stands at about 85 which is the highest figure since March 16, 1939. The lowest was 49.4 on June 26, 1940. The Industrial Average of the New York Stock Exchange is now about 109 which is 35 points lower than the March 16, 1939 figure. This shows how the English investors are more forehanded than are we in preparing for this inevitable coming inflation era.

Results of Aleutian Operations Put High Command in Excellent Position for Stand It Took

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Oct. 9—The judgment of the high command of the United States has been vindicated in the western Aleutian Islands. When, four months ago, Japan seized three islands, a clamor arose that American forces had been caught napping and that this enemy blot on American territory must be immediately erased. The Navy in particular took a pounding from certain sections of our press because it said that fog and bad weather were interfering with operations. The critics commented on the "one-way fog" and "one-way weather," intimating that it wasn't so bad for the Japanese.

What are the facts? The Navy had two major tasks on its hands at the time. One was to protect Midway at all costs and the other was to keep the supply lines to Australia open. The Japanese, by their attack on the Aleutians, hoped to arouse American patriotism to such a point that the Navy would be compelled to divert its forces from the south and try to recapture the Aleutians.

But the United States Navy was not ensnared by those tactics, even though the criticism was hard to bear when it came from American sources. The military and naval experts came to the conclusion that the Aleutians were of doubtful military value and that possession of the three islands by the Japanese could only become important if they could be used as a base for an attack on Dutch Harbor. Our forces there were considered adequate from a defensive viewpoint.

But it now becomes apparent that the Navy and Army had all along intended to strengthen their forces in the Alaskan area and that they intended to do so in the autumn of this year. Doubtless the Japanese suspected this was coming and sought to strike the first blow. But it is believed the Japanese strategy was related wholly to the possibility of a Japanese attack on Siberia. The seizure of the western Aleutians is thought now to have been a protective move so as to enable the Japanese to cut off shipping destined for Siberian ports. It is not believed that the Japanese contemplated this autumn any offensive operations that would reach into Alaska.

But now it has been officially disclosed that the American air forces are bombing Kiska repeatedly and that the Japanese have evidently withdrawn from the two other islands which they originally occupied.

To bombard Kiska must unquestionably take a sizeable number of planes and a substantial amount of fuel and supplies. The fact that bombing is being carried out regularly nowadays merely is the Navy's laconic way of saying that we have now found time to get at the Japanese and blast them out of the Aleutians.

The American people have not been told the details of strategy and it is desirable that they should not be given such details, but there were plenty of unofficial military experts familiar with the Alaskan theatre of operations who, from the outset, warned against being led into the Japanese trap.

The four months which have elapsed show that the United States Navy not only kept its main forces intact for the great victory at Midway but also supported landing operations in the Solomon Islands, whereas the Japanese were unable to do anything to our main base at Dutch Harbor or to prevent our use of other bases near the western Aleutians.

The Alaskan area may become a major theatre of war some day, and if Japan and Russia go to war it will become of paramount significance. But the United States has needed the very time that has elapsed, so as to carry out certain other operations in the Pacific, while at the same time building up the forces needed in the north Pacific in the vicinity of the Aleutians.

The whole episode illustrates the importance of relying implicitly on the judgment of our high command. When there are not enough tools to do all the jobs simultaneously and when there are other objectives which require prior consideration, the public can rest assured that clamor for an alteration of these military plans will not influence decisions, because this war is not being fought by the men at the top for the purpose of meeting temporary criticisms. Those in positions of responsibility in our Army, Navy, Marine Corps and Air Corps are putting first things first. The Aleutian Islands will soon be regained entirely, and the Japanese adventure will have been proved very costly and completely fruitless. It is a lesson in the importance of concealed strategy and in the need for greater faith in the men in command.

"AT CENTURY'S TURN"

By H. L. VAN DEUSEN

The month of February, 1927, was marked by the death of two men who for years had been active in the affairs of Kingston. Edward B. Codwise, civil engineer, died on February 11, and John S. Thompson, Civil War veteran and meat packer, died on February 15.

Mr. Codwise died in Morgantown, West Virginia, where he had been making his home for several years after leaving Kingston. He was very active in city affairs for a number of years, serving as city engineer.

He first was appointed city engineer in 1902, serving through to 1909. Again in 1916 he was appointed city engineer during the administration of Palmer Canfield as mayor and served for a number of years.

Mr. Codwise was 78 years old at the time of his death. His son, G. Wallace Codwise, followed in his father's footsteps and served as city engineer for a number of years.

Mr. Thompson, who was 80 years old at the time of his death in his home on President's Place, enlisted on August 27, 1862, at the age of 16 years, in Co. G, 156th New York Volunteers, and served throughout the Civil War. He was one of the Union men taken prisoner at the battle of Winchester.

At the close of the Civil War he returned to Kingston and embarked in the meat packing business which had been established on Hunter street in 1856 by the late George Thompson.

This meat packing business is still in existence in the same location and is being carried on by Frank W. Thompson, a son of the Civil War veteran.

The veteran of the war between the states was also active in politics and served as an alderman for 16 years. He was a member and past commander of the former Pratt Post, G. A. R., of this city, and also served as vice-president of the Rondout Savings Bank.

Mr. Thompson was an interesting talker and could spin many an interesting tale of army life as it was during the dark days of the Civil War.

Action was taken by the Board of Supervisors on February 2, 1927, toward obtaining a site for the new TB Hospital, and it was decided to purchase land on Golden Hill for the sum of $12,000 on which to erect the new hospital.

There had been agitation for a new TB Hospital for a number of years in Kingston, but the action of the supervisors was the first definite step taken toward realization.

Washington In Wartime

By Jack Stinnett

Washington — If there is any doubt what influence the "will of the people" exercise on legislation just recall the Senate action on the anti-inflation bill.

In spite of the President's ultimatum that some satisfactory anti-inflation legislation would have to be passed immediately, the Senate farm bloc was in the saddle.

In the early days of the battle, it appeared that the farm bloc, with its Thomas amendment ordering a redefinition of parity prices, couldn't be defeated.

Then on a single week-end the farm bloc balloon collapsed. The so-called "compromise" amendment was passed with only four dissenting votes and the original anti-inflation bill, sponsored by administration legislators, was voted unanimously—82 to 0.

Back of this is another one of those heartening stories of the triumph of our democratic system. It is as cumbersome as an ox-cart on a superhighway. Often it appears just about that ridiculous. But whenever it tangles with any subject that arouses the real interest or ire of the public, it whips into line with the speed and drive of a modern tank.

As a matter of fact, the farm bloc fight collapsed even before the favorable vote on the Thomas parity amendment. That vote was "for the record"—proof in print that the senators who have to face their farm constituents had done their best.

Proponents of the amendment knew already that they were beaten. Why? Because the mail bags day after day gave proof of two things: (1) That the public in general was almost four-square back of the President in demanding legislation that would halt the spiraling cost of living; (2) That the farmers themselves weren't "het up" about a redefinition of parity. One of the big four farm organizations was, in fact, fighting with the administration.

Sitting here in Washington watching the often tedious, day-to-day, hour-after-hour maneuvering, the cloakroom and "for-the-record" politicking, it's easy to lose sight of the effectiveness of that intangible something called "public demand." But old timers here, hashing over the Senate anti-inflation battle are saying again what they have said many times since this national emergency arose: Never before has public opinion been so quickly effective in ramming legislation through.

Actually, the anti-inflation scrap in the Senate, in spite of all the thunderheads, was a pretty tame affair on the surface. Except for masterful speech in which Senator Prentiss M. Brown (D.-Mich.) introduced the administration bill, of which he was co-author and the calm plea of Majority Leader Alben Barkley, there were no real verbal fireworks. A few of the senators, like George, Hatch, Bilbo, Danaher and "Cotton Ed" Smith, did toss around a few sparklers, but there was nothing that could be called a display.

The old mail bags had carried the load. Fireworks aren't popular this war.

Bundles for Britain Discontinued At Local Chapters' Annual Meeting

As voted at yesterday's annual meeting of the local Bundles Chapters the Bundles for Britain, Inc., will be discontinued. It was with deep regret that the members so moved but it was felt that since the entrance of the United States into the world conflict, the interest in the organization had waned and difficulties had been met in shipping the material to England. It was pointed out that the need for aid to the British people was still an important task but the local group did not feel they could carry on with this work. The balance on hand in the Bundles for Britain treasury will be sent to St. Thomas's Hospital in London, England. This amounts to $381.03. The hospital was bombed and funds from the chapter have already aided in the rebuilding of the children's ward.

It was further decided that the Bundles for America group would do more work for local people and charities this year. In the past most of the materials and articles were sent to the New York office from where they were distributed to the needy service men and families. However, the number of needy families in the local area led the members to decide on keeping articles for use in Kingston and the county. Several organizations such as the Salvation Army and the Volunteers of America had already contacted Bundles for America, Inc., for clothing.

Mrs. Myron S. Teller was hostess to about 20 who attended this meeting at her home, 212 Fair street. Miss Eleanor Easton, who had served during the year as chairman of the joint organization, presided. Reports were read by the various committee chairmen and the reports of the secretary, Mrs. Jack Clair, and two treasurers, Stanton A. Warren, Bundles for America, Inc., and Mrs. Newton Fessenden, Bundles for Britain, Inc., were given.

The packing committee reported that 3,100 garments had been sent to Britain and 503 to the Bundles for America. Reports were also made of the radio programs, the jewelry, tinfoil, sewing and knitting committees.

One of the most important projects of the year was the salvage sewing committee work. Volunteers for this were obtained through the Women's Club at the Y. W. C. A., the Monday Sewing Club under the leadership of Mrs. Edgar Richards, who specialized in infant garments, Stone Ridge group under the chairmanship of Mrs. Charles Walden, and the Woodstock group with Mrs. Harvey I. Todd directing. The sewing committee in Kingston was divided into two groups, a morning group with Mrs. Henry Sniffin chairman and the afternoon group with Mrs. Gwendolyn Kershaw, chairman. From materials salvaged they made smocks, dresses, boys' and girls' blouses, pajamas, khaki gloves, hospital garments, comfort kits, and infants' garments. The morning group completed 189 articles and the afternoon group, 212.

In reporting for the knitting committee, Mrs. James Chase said that 1,429 pieces had been sent to Bundles for Britain and 232 articles to Bundles for America. Of course these reports cover the year's work and Bundles for America was not organized until March 3. There were also 30 afghans sent out not included in the knitting of sweaters, socks, helmets, mittens and chest protectors. Some supplies had been given to several local young men in the service.

It was further decided to continue with the sewing projects but that the knitting and selling of merchandise would be discontinued. The difficulty to secure yarn was one of the main reasons to stop the knitting and then the committee felt there would be duplication of work among the other organizations. Tentative plans were made to open the depot only one day a week at which time packing and collecting of articles could be done. At the next executive meeting details will be planned and officers for the coming year will be elected.

Following the business session the hostess served tea. She was assisted in pouring by Mrs. Edgar Richards.

The annual report, in part, of the secretary is as follows: "Thirteen meetings of the executive committee of the organization called Bundles for Britain and Bundles for America were held since October, 1941.

"In November, 1941, the advertising of the sewing project seriously began. This salvage sewing room met every Tuesday. The invitation of the Singer Sewing Machine Company to use their rooms and machines once a week was accepted. Mrs. Henry Sniffin was appointed chairman of the morning group and Mrs. Gwendolyn Kershaw of the afternoon group. The women volunteered to give a half day every week to this work.

"A fifteen minute broadcast series started in November in order to acquaint the public with the work of the organization. This was under the direction of Mrs. Vincent Connelly.

"In December 1941, the official title of Bundles for Bluejackets was added to the Bundles for Britain. At the request of national headquarters for this additional relief agency, the accumulation and distribution of clothing to the needy families of these men began. The chairman of Bundles for Britain acted in the same capacity for Bundles for Bluejackets. Headquarters requested that we have a separate treasurer for both organizations. Stanton Warren was retained for this office for Bundles for Bluejackets and Mrs. Newton Fessenden for Bundles for Britain. The following month, January saw the further development of Bundles for Bluejackets with its special yarn for knitted goods to conform to the navy color.

"This movement became Bundles for America, the name officially added to the Bundles for Britain organization at the end of January 1942. Mrs. Myron S. Teller read a letter from the British hospital, St. Thomas's which has the American Ward for Children, thanking the Kingston branch for its thousand dollar contribution. A picture accompanied the letter showing the plaque containing the names of the American cities who had contributed to rebuilding the ward which had been badly damaged by air-raid.

"In March 1942, the national headquarters for Bundles for Britain made public its intention to draw on the funds of the local branches. The executive committee instructed, Miss Easton, the president, to call on national headquarters in New York city to find out everything pertaining to this new ruling. Stanton Warren was appointed treasurer of Bundles for America.

"In June 1942 another request concerning funds came from the New York office. Twenty percent of all that was made in money was asked as a contribution with a minimum guarantee of $100 a year. This plan was adopted as beginning, July 1, 1942.

"The following resignations were accepted with sincere regrets, Miss Dorothy Brooks, Mrs. Edward V. Wilbern, Mrs. Harold Brigham, Mrs. Charles Walden, Mrs. Harvey I. Todd, Mrs. John Matthews and Mrs. Johnson. All of these members had given valuable service to the organization.

"New appointments of the past year were Mrs. Hermon Kelley, chairman; Mrs. Jack Clair, secretary, and Mrs. R. Broberg jewelry chairman.

"Mrs. James Chase, chairman of the knitting committee, reported that a sailor on the first mine sweeper out of Kingston had been equipped with knitted articles from the local office. While yarn was available, the knitting under her direction proceeded with great satisfaction and success.

"Several benefits were given throughout the year. A successful card party was held January 31, at the Huntington. A series of vanishing luncheons was held, the initial luncheon of which was given at Mrs. Howard Lewis's home.

Kasimir Hudela made an offer of his ground for a card party which was held, August 27. It was a most enjoyable affair and the local office is most grateful to Mr. and Mrs. Hudela for their hospitality.

"In July 1942 a letter came from the New York office to ask that no more sewing be sent but that the sewers be kept interested with work for local charities.

"In September the question arose as to what to do with the clothing which had accumulated and which could no longer be sent to England. Since that meeting a means of transportation has been found to send things to England and it is asked that more clothing be sent there.

"Substantial donations were also received from the Junior Assembly, contributions were received from churches, Boy and Girl Scouts, and other organizations. The large sum of $94 was raised from volunteer contributions to the Queen's Christmas Fund for English children.

"The Women's Club of the Y. W. C. A. has been of great assistance to the local office in furnishing workers for the shop.

"The annual meeting was called for October 8, at that meeting the important question of the future of the organization was to be discussed. The shortage of yarn had caused a great decrease in number of knitted articles made recently. The duplication of work by other organizations has made the situation one which demands consideration and thought.

"Another thank you letter accompanied by a picture was received from a mobile canteen unit. The first night this was used the rescue squads and residents suffering air raid damage to the number of 600 were fed.

Very respectfully submitted,
Mrs. Jack Clair, Secretary.

Reports Are Given At D. A. R. Meeting

The first meeting of the year for Wiltwyck Chapter D. A. R. was held yesterday afternoon at the chapter house. Mrs. William Macgregor Mills, chapter regent, presided.

At the business meeting several reports were given of the work and of the state convention held at Syracuse, September 30, October 1 and 2. Miss Isabel Swartwout, chairman of Junior American Citizens Clubs, reported that there were six rural and six city school clubs with a membership of 263. This is a gain of six clubs from last year. Mrs. Rose K. Witter read resolutions on the death of two members, Miss Jane Stanbrough and Miss Juliana Wood. The chapter stood for a moment's silence in memory of these members.

Members having near relatives in the service were requested to contact Mrs. Harris Inglis, chairman of the War Service Committee. These names submitted to Mrs. Inglis will be sent to the state chairman who in turn contacts the chapter nearest to the place where the boy is stationed. This chapter will then take a personal interest in the young man's welfare and entertainment.

Mrs. Mills announced the 50th Anniversary Tea for the chapter to be held at her home in Marbletown, October 16. Mrs. Stanley Manlove, state regent, will be the guest of honor. Members having a car at their disposal or desiring to attend the tea are requested to contact Mrs. Harris Inglis or Mrs. Maynard Mizel.

Mrs. Rose K. Witter, chapter delegate to the state convention which was held at the Hotel Syracuse, spoke of the helpful discussions of the round table conference of the committee on Americanism. Mrs. Charles Terwilliger, chapter alternate, told of the work of the Approved Schools Committee. Mrs. Mills gave a general report of the occupational therapy work at Ellis Island done among young merchant marine men and coast guardsmen in the Marine Hospital. Mrs. Manlove presided at the convention and Mrs. William Pouch, president general, was guest of honor.

October will be an important month for the local D. A. R. Mrs. Mills reminded the group of the following dates to be observed: October 11, National D. A. R. Founder's Day; October 16, Chapter Day anniversary commemorating the burning of Kingston by the British, tea at Mrs. Mills; October 22, Fiftieth Anniversary of the Pledge of Allegiance to the Flag; October 25, Founders Day at Tamassee School where the corner stone will be laid for the Roberts High School; October 27, Navy Day.

The regent also outlined the three war projects of the organization: To raise more than $150,000 or $1 per capita for the blood plasma project for mobile units; purchasing of war bonds and stamps; making of "Buddy Bags," 150,000 by Christmas.

Members are urged to keep accurate records of war services.

Dramatic Reader Is Guest of Club

Mrs. Mildred Russell of Albany, a graduate of Emerson College of Oratory was the guest artist at the opening meeting of the Women's Club at the Y. W. C. A. yesterday afternoon. Mrs. Russell gave a dramatic interpretation of "If You Only Knew" by Sophie Kerr. The story concerns nine women at a style show all of whom find a certain pink evening gown which will fit exactly the mood which they desire to create.

The dress has been designed by Madamoiselle De Launey who is quite pleased with her creation Mrs. Bertherton-Files is the first to order the gown to be worn by her debutante daughter. A fat blonde knows that it is too young for her but is the type of dress that she has always wanted so she makes the purchase. The successful business women finds in the gown relief from business tailored costumes. An heiress hopes that it will convince her lover to love her for herself and not for her money and she orders one in pink and one in blue. The actress chooses the dress realizing that it might restore her waning charms and a loving wife orders it for her husband will like her in it. Linnie who has been modeling the gown for the entire afternoon is the only one who does not care whether she has the gown or not. Mrs. Russell interpreted each character most convincingly to her audience.

At the close of the reading, refreshments were served with Mrs. Leonard Flicker, president, and Mrs. Thomas Reynolds assisting in pouring. The tea was arranged by Mrs. Fred Ertel and Mrs. Vincent Connelly. Mrs. Russell Gaenzle and Mrs. Walter Danford assisted in receiving the guests.

The club will meet, October 22, when Mrs. Ernest Althouse and Mrs. Charles Arnold will discuss "Feeding a Family in Wartime."

15 Senators Ask Dairy, Livestock Help Be 'Frozen'

Three-Month Deferment Is Asked Until Such Time as Manpower Plan Operates

Washington, Oct. 9 (AP)—Fifteen farm state senators petitioned Selective Service Director Hershey today to freeze dairy and livestock workers on the farms for the next three months to prevent "irreparable injury" to food production while a general manpower control program is worked out.

"We are convinced that specific action to halt the continuing drain of manpower from our livestock and dairy farms cannot be delayed longer without seriously impairing the whole war effort," they declared in a letter circulated by Senators Ball (R-Minn) and Brown (D-Mich).

"The number of farm auctions is growing rapidly and hundreds of fine dairy herds are being sold or slaughtered because the owners cannot hold the help essential to continued operation. Unless the trend is halted immediately, a crippling reduction in food production will occur."

The Census Bureau reported last night that agricultural employment had declined to 10,200,000 persons, a drop of 1,000,000 between August and September, and Chairman Donald M. Nelson of the War Production Board declared the time was rapidly approaching when the government must decide at what point the limit will be reached in building up the armed forces.

"Until we reach this limit," Nelson said, "it is a question of constant adjustment. Women are coming into war industries and other new sources of manpower are being tapped but sometime we will reach the bottom of the barrel."

There is an "outside limit," he said, on how large an Army can be equipped and supplied.

Specifically, the 15 senators asked General Hershey to direct all local selective service boards to defer for at least 90 days all men engaged in either dairy or livestock production on farms, "such deferment to be cancelled immediately and the men ordered to report for induction if they leave their farm production jobs."

on each side of the sailor and soldier monument on the city hall lawn, with a pile of cannon balls placed behind each cannon.

At one period mischievous youths would roll the cannon balls down the slope of the city hall lawn. A few years ago the practice grew to such an extent with the possibility of some one walking along the street below being struck, that the balls were cemented fast.

Sol Appel, through whose efforts the cannon and balls were presented to the city, for years was widely known in the business life of Kingston, and conducted for years a retail shoe store on lower Broadway. At his death his widow carried on the business for a number of years until she retired from business.

County Employes Remove Boiler Parts for Salvage

Employes from the county highway department were busy this morning removing a considerable quantity of scrap metal from the cellar of the county building on John street. The bulk of the "find" was made up of thmree heavy sections from the old boiler formerly in use, which with pieces of old pipe and other items of scrap accounted for something like a ton of metal.

County Superintendent of Highways James F. Loughran is the chairman for collection and disposal of all salvage material in the Ulster county "salvage for victory" drive, while Farm Bureau Agent Albert Kurdt is chairman for the farmers' committee, to which has been assigned the duty of getting out all available scrap metal from the farms of the county.

Albert Cashdollar of Woodstock heads the Ulster county committee in charge of the salvage drive.

New York's Four-Day Voting Registration Total Is 958,312

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 9 (AP).—Upstate registration for the November 3 statewide election starts today, with party leaders and candidates urging citizens to qualify for voting to preserve at home the democracy which America's fighting men are defending abroad.

Personal registration in communities of 5,000 and larger outside New York city is scheduled today, tomorrow and next Friday from 10 a. m. to 10 p. m. and Saturday, October 17, from 7 a. m. to 10 p. m.

In smaller communities, where registration is non-personal, voters may qualify tomorrow 7 a. m. to 10 p. m. and October 17 from 1 to 10 p. m.

The four-day total in New York city was 958,312, well behind the 1,189,000 enrolled in the same period in 1938. Registration began Monday and continues through tomorrow.

Meanwhile, as State Democratic Chairman James A. Farley returned to New York city today after a two-day upstate tour, Thomas E. Dewey, Republican gubernatorial nominee, arrives here this afternoon, launching an informal six-county trip with additional scheduled stops at Glens Falls, Schenectady, Malone, Ogdensburg, Canton and Watertown. He will return to New York city Sunday.

In his second New York city speech in as many nights, Dean Alfange, American Labor Party candidate for the governorship, last night proposed the State Department change the status of Italy from that of a belligerent nation to an occupied country, declaring:

"Everybody knows that if the Italian people were free to choose they would be fighting on our side." Alfange also appealed to the Justice Department to permit "friendly" unnaturalized Italians to obtain jobs.

Samuel H. Friedman, Socialist nominee for lieutenant governor, called on Alfange to withdraw from the gubernatorial race on grounds he "has no place in this campaign" since President Roosevelt endorsed Attorney General John J. Bennett, Jr., Democratic candidate.

Wallace Makes Change

Thomas W. Wallace, Schenectady, Republican nominee for lieutenant governor, charged that "Democratic muddlings" were responsible for what he termed "the breakdown" of the state unemployment insurance machinery.

Wallace was confined to his hotel room with a sinus infection, and his speech was delivered for him before members of the New York City Young Republican Club.

Wallace said Republicans made the insurance machinery function after it had broken down when payments were started in 1938. He said the Democrats took "three years claiming they were preparing" the program.

In Buffalo, Frank C. Moore, Republican candidate for state comptroller, said at the opening of the Erie county G. O. P. campaign that people must vote, that "if we are to win this war, there can be no bystanders, no spectators and no grandstand."

State Republican Chairman Edwin F. Jaeckle, at the same meeting, forecast victory for the entire state G. O. P. ticket, adding he had not reached the "expertness" of other persons in predicting election majorities.

In New York city two more upstate Democratic county chairmen predicted a falling off of Republican vote at the coming election: David McManus, Broome county chairman, forecast a Bennett victory in his county, which gave Dewey a 16,877 plurality over Governor Lehman in 1938. Joseph P. Leary, Otsego county, said Dewey's plurality would be about 6,000 this year as compared to 8,685 in 1938.

Former Mayor Roland B. Marvin of Syracuse, a visitor at New York city Dewey headquarters, said he felt "more optimistic" about Dewey's chances of winning than he did a month ago.

Knutson, Sabath Ask U. S. Lottery To Help Pay War

Appeal Is Based on Idea That Draft Method Is No Better, Sponsors Say at Capital

Washington, Oct. 9 (AP)—Based on the contention that a nation that uses a lottery to draft its men for war shouldn't object to the same method for helping to finance the struggle, a drive for a national lottery law was under way today on Capitol Hill.

Representatives Knutson (R.-Minn.) and Sabath (D.-Ill.), authors of legislation to raise money through government-sponsored lotteries, said the apparent need for more revenue had revived chances of favorable consideration for their bills.

A member of the ways and means committee which is responsible for tax legislation in the House, Knutson said he would press for inclusion of his proposal in any new tax bill the Treasury Department requests. Secretary Morgenthau indicated earlier this week he would ask Congress to raise an additional $6,000,000,000 as soon as the present tax bill is out of the way.

"It's either a sales tax or a lottery," said Knutson, adding that of the two he believed the people generally would prefer the lottery. A lottery, he said, would raise just as much money and give the taxpayers a chance to get some of it back.

Knutson estimated his plan would yield around a billion dollars a year. The proceeds would be used to help finance the war, and after the war they would be used to increase old-age pension payments.

There would be more than 140,000 monthly winners under the Knutson system, the prizes being distributed as follows for each $100,000,000 of gross receipts: First prize, $100,000; four $50,000 prizes, eight $25,000 awards, fifty $10,000 prizes, one hundred $5,000 returns, 1,000 awards of $1,000 each; 10,000 of $500 each; 30,000 of $250 each, and 100,000 of $100 each.

Tickets, handled through the Treasury and Postoffice Departments, would cost $2 each, with half-share tickets available for $1. One-half of the value of a prize worth $1,000 could be paid in government bonds.

Urge Farmers To Produce, Save

Borrow Only to Get Production Tools

Ithaca, N. Y.—The nation has a critical need for all the food farmers can produce as long as the war lasts and at least a year or two after, according to William I. Myers, head of the agriculture economics department of the New York State College of Agriculture.

Today the farmer needs a larger working capital than ever before, says Myers, in order to keep his farm an efficient producing unit. A farmer has good cause to use credit to expand his business to reasonable size.

In outlining a wartime program for United States farmers, Myers, now consultant to the War Savings staff of the Federal Treasury, advises farmers to get their debts on a safe basis. Income used to pay debts does not compete with war production, and so does not contribute to inflation, he says, and the payments can be used by the creditors to the farmer to buy War Bonds.

Every farmer will want to buy some War Bonds to help his country directly, the outline says, but farmers heavily in debt should use most of their increased income to reduce debts now, so they can stand bad years that lie ahead.

Farm cooperatives also need to be relieved of their debt load now, with any income that accrues.

Farmers who have only moderate debts will find the investment in War Bonds of all money above operating and living expenses one of their best ways of helping to win the war.

MAUHS IS 'ALL OUT' FOR ACTION

WANTS ONLY ONE FRONT

Calls For an End to Smearing the Government; Says It Is Betraying the Country

SHARON J. MAUHS

Cobleskill, N. Y., Sept. 30.—Sharon J. Mauhs of Cobleskill, New York, prominent Schoharie county lawyer, owner of Wyndyhl Farms and a candidate for Representative in Congress from the 27th Congressional District comprising the counties of Columbia, Greene, Schoharie, Sullivan and Ulster, made the following forceful statement today:

"Through the newspapers in the 27th district I want to tell the people where I stand on some mighty important issues. The voters in this district have a right to know before election where I stand on these things.

"1—There should be only one front—the fighting front. The political front—politics for the sake of politics, has no place in this campaign. This should be a campaign to get back of the government, not a campaign against it.

"2—If we come out of this war with only our hides left we will have nothing to gripe about so long as we win. Anybody who thinks he is coming out of this war rich is kidding himself.

"3—People must give up their comforts, their conveniences and their money—and they must do it now. When you are drafting men's lives away it's no time to flinch about rationing and wage control and price control and high taxes. Now is the time—not after election. These things are not political issues.

"4—I favor a form of taxation which will not place the heaviest burden on the low income group and the small wage earner. Let them pay, yes, but let those with the ability to pay and those who are making the money stand the gaff.

"5—Don't smear your Government by rumor-mongering just because you oppose the President politically—stand shoulder to shoulder with him in this fight. He has a tough job. The only issue today is winning the war. Smearing your Government in a pure game of politics is betraying your country. Don't kid yourself—that kind of politics is out—or we don't win."

Mr. Mauhs was born forty years ago at Sharon Springs, New York. He graduated from Cobleskill High School in 1922. He was obliged to leave high school after completing his first two years and seek work to support his mother and sister; his father died when he was eight years old. He was urged to finish school by his former teachers and after working two years as a steamfitter's helper he went back to high school, completed the remaining two years' work in one year and graduated with honors in 1922. Mr. Mauhs then went to Albany Law School and supported himself while in Albany by working as a dishwasher in the old Union News Company Restaurant, located in the Albany railroad station.

He was admitted to the bar of the State of New York on July 1st, 1926, and fifteen days later, on July 16th, he was nominated for District Attorney and was elected by a large majority. He was re-elected for a second three year term and made a great record in his six years as County Prosecutor.

In 1927 Mr. Mauhs married Gertrude Myers, of Barnerville, New York. They have two boys, John, 14, and Peter, 11. Mrs. Mauhs comes from a family of early settlers who first located near Saugerties, in Ulster county, upon coming to this country from Holland.

In 1934 Mr. Mauhs was appointed a Special Assistant District Attorney of Rensselaer county to handle the second trial of the Scarnici murder case, after the first trial, under a different prosecutor, ended in a disagreement of the jury. Upon the second trial Scarnici was convicted of first degree murder. Mr. Mauhs conducted the second trial with great credit and distinction to himself and the State of New York and he has since been recognized as one of the leading trial lawyers of the state.

In 1933, as an Assistant Attorney General, Mr. Mauhs conducted the grand jury investigations and subsequently prosecuted the group of extortioners who had been operating among bakery and confectionery stores in Brooklyn, New York. These storekeepers had long been compelled by racketeers to make varying payments of weekly tribute, based on the volume of their business, for protection from various forms of personal violence and destruction of property.

In 1937 Mr. Mauhs conducted for the State of New York the racing investigation in Saratoga county which resulted in the indictment of over eighty individuals and corporations who were manipulating a vast scheme of "tipping" horses, false advertising and allegedly fixing races. After sports writers, newspapermen, jockeys, advertisers and many of the victims of the scheme had testified before the grand jury, indictments were handed up naming individuals as far south as Florida. Those defendants out of the state were extradited and when the investigation was completed every individual apprehended and every corporation indicted was convicted.

Mr. Mauhs, from the very first has been a supporter of the President's war policy and long before Pearl Harbor he urged the people to forget politics and hold up the President's hand. He is progressive and liberal and with his independence of thought and mind, which is so sorely needed today, the people of this district can be assured that he will never duck an issue or evade an answer. He has announced that he will unequivocally support every measure aimed at the defeat of our enemies.

Mr. Mauhs concludes his statement as follows:

"I believe the most important fact about any candidate is not whether he is a Democrat or Republican or American Labor, but whether he is awake to the deeper issue of this war, and ready to follow through on them. I believe that political tags are dwarfed into insignificance by the gravity of the decisions which the American people are now called upon to make. I claim there is only one test today by which a candidate must be judged, and that is has he the ability and the courage and the willingness to fight, regardless of politics, in order to win this battle for freedom. I say any candidate who cannot meet this test is not entitled to a seat in Congress. This national crisis demands statesmanship, not politics. It demands quick action, not dilly-dallying. It demands a Congress that will support the President quickly in every genuine effort put forth to win the war, and not a Congress that wants to delay action until after election or for other political reasons. This crisis demands a Congress that will be willing to make a peace after the war which will guarantee a world of liberty and not one that will revert back to isolationism and reaction, and to all of these ends I pledge my efforts."

Michigan, Irish, Army Rated in Saturday's Grid Games

Wolverines Given Slight Nod Over Iowa Naval Squad

Notre Dame Is Expected to Get Started in Game With Stanford; Rams Over Tarheels

By Herb Barker

New York, Oct. 9 (AP)—After a quick look at last week's results, this corner has decided that the only way to hit a winner this football season will be to use a shotgun. So . . . .

Iowa Naval-Michigan: Nobody's going to get rich betting against these pre-flight schools and especially the one Bernie Bierman coached to victory over Minnesota. This stubborn vote for a fine Michigan team explains nothing perhaps except the state of our personal bankroll.

Stanford-Notre Dame: The conviction is strong that Notre Dame has not yet played anywhere close to its potentialities this fall. Maybe this will be the starting point for a new order. Notre Dame.

Southern California-Ohio State: Nothing on the records to show the Trojans can beat the surprisingly strong Buckeyes. Ohio State.

Army Over Cornell

Cornell-Army: Two fine backs, Ralph Hill and Hank Mazur. And a good line indicate Army will take plenty of beating this fall. Army.

Missouri-Wisconsin: Wisconsin.

Oregon State-U. C. L. A.: The Rose Bowl champions knocked off apparently over-rated California and look too strong for U. C. L. A. Oregon State.

Vanderbilt-Kentucky: One of these two strong southeastern outfits will need to give way. On the toss of the coin, Vanderbilt.

Mississippi-Georgia: A major objective for Harry Mehre's Mississippians but the superior strength seems to belong to the Bulldogs. Georgia.

Purdue-Northwestern: And Texas' conqueror, Northwestern, rates an odds-on choice against twice beaten Purdue. Northwestern.

Clemson-Boston College: Boston College.

Rams Slight Choice

North Carolina-Fordham: Off the terrible beating Fordham took last week and North Carolina's strong showing, the Tarheels will be the betting choice. This corner plays a hunch, however, and takes Fordham.

William & Mary-Harvard: Harvard.

Colgate-Dartmouth: Possibly the best game on the eastern card. Stringing along with Dartmouth's fine backs.

Penn-Yale: Doubt that the Elis are ready for this one. Penn.

Kansas State-Duquesne: Duquesne.

South Carolina-West Virginia: South Carolina.

Indiana-Nebraska: Taking the outfit with the greater scoring punch, Indiana.

Panthers Underdogs

Pitt-Great Lakes: Despite the Panthers' rout of Southern Methodist the vote goes to Great Lakes.

Pensacola Naval-Alabama: The tide may be the South's greatest power. Alabama.

Mississippi State-Louisiana State: Mississippi State.

Georgia Naval-Duke: We'll take the Navy.

North Carolina Naval-North Carolina State: Not too easy but this ballot goes to North Carolina Naval.

Baylor-Arkansas: Shooting in the dark . . . Baylor.

Washington-Oregon: Probably a close one. Washington.

Santa Clara-California: The Bears are disappointments. Santa Clara.

Other Grid Selections

Texas A. and M.—Corpus Christi: Corpus Christi has yet to show it can meet a Southwest Conference team on even terms. A. and M.

Skipping over the chalklines otherwise: Temple over Bucknell; Syracuse over Western Reserve; Georgetown over Manhattan; Penn State over Lehigh; Maryland over Rutgers; Holy Cross over Ft. Totten; Iowa over Camp Grant; Marquette over Iowa State; Tennessee over Dayton; George Washington over Citadel; Virginia Tech over Davidson; Wake Forest over Furman; Virginia Military over Virginia; Texas Christian over Kansas; Southern Methodist over Hardin Simmons (beware of that one); Washington State over Montana; Colorado over Utah State; Colorado State over Denver, but close; Brigham Young over Utah; Wyoming over Greeley State.

Major League Results

At the Central Recreation alleys Thursday night in the second week of the Major Bowling League two high-powered triples were smashed by Tony Van Gonsic of the Adirondacks and Johnny "Red" Sangi of his own club. Van Gonsic, reeling off scores of 199, 223 and 206 collected a tremendous 628 series while Sangi came through with 207, 203 and 214 for 624.

Van Gonsic's scores were highs last night in the entire league. Tony paced the Adirondacks to a clean sweep over Doblers with his crushing totals. Besides Van Gonsic's total, Johnny Ferraro posted 161, 193 and 210 for a 564 series while P. Myers and Fred Jankowski unleased triples of 503 and 510.

Although the Adirondacks made a clean sweep of Doblers, they received some stiff opposition from Mac Tiano's 581 and Harold Broskie's 566 triples. Broskie dished out a 222 single while Tiano's high was 207.

Sangi's team, with Johnny himself in the driver's seat, won two from Mickeys. "Red" opened with 207 and then slapped the maples for 203 and wound up with a 214, his high single and also high in the match. Phil Masters helped along with his powerful 568 while Guadagnola had 522. Joe Scholar and Herb Van Deusen had high triples for Mickeys.

Ken Williams' 583 series of 183, 199 and 201, paced the Joneses to three wins over Hymes. Smith cracked out a 205 single. S. Winne, Hoffman and Hymes were high for the losers with 546, 534 and 513.

The final match found Steins capturing three from the Grunenwalds. Larry Petersen, Jr., had a 550 for Steins and high single of 209. Al Goldman and Svirsky came through with 509 and 500. Van Alstyne and Tiano had 507 and 506 for Grunenwalds.

Middies' Gobeo Declared Ineligible; Admits Over Age Limit to Grid Coach

Ruling Prohibits Player From Any More Work in Public Schools of This State

DUSO League circles hummed with excitement late yesterday afternoon when a report came out of Middletown that Tony Gobeo, sensational spearhead of last year's great Middletown High School victory in the DUSO Football League, has been declared ineligible for any further work with the Middies or any other scholastic team in New York state.

Before the Middies started to workout at one of the practice sessions this week, Gobeo reported to Coach Johnny Bateman, former Columbia Lion Star that he had passed the state age limit last Spring. Bateman queried the Middie player on the advice of Principal Frederic P. Singer, apparently after school authorities had become aroused by rumors to the effect that Tony was over the limit.

Principal Praises Boy

Mr. Singer later announced, "when Anthony Gobeo revealed to Coach Bateman that he had passed his 19th birthday last Spring, he automatically withdrew from athletic competition in the public schools of New York state.

"It was a great disappointment to us. Gobeo's prowess as a football player placed him in a place long to be remembered. The boy who will play his position on our team will be spurred on to give his best for his school, while keeping an eye on the record made by Gobeo."

According to an informant in Middletown, word spread rapidly about Gobeo's ineligibility after some fans and students had seen Tony watching the Middletown gridders drill while he was in civies. It was hinted that most of the rumors had been circulating from other DUSO League cities. However, principal Singer announced, "that no form or protest or questioning of Gobeo's age had come from any school."

After hearing about the rumor of Gobeo's over the age limit, it was apparent that Singer requested Johnny Bateman to talk to Gobeo about that matter. Mr. Singer, who had received a personal admission from Tony Thursday morning declared that he (Mr. Singer) had doubt of the boy's eligibility prior to yesterday and had been guided merely by the school records which contained his name and other information.

Loss Is Great

With the loss of Gobeo coming at this date, the Middies received a stunning blow as Saturday they will tangle with the great and powerful Poughkeepsie High School team. The lateness of this development leaves Bateman with very little time to find a capable replacement for the sensational Gobeo who has been one of the brighest stars for Middletown in recent years.

Gobeo was considered on the par with any other greats at Middletown and in other DUSO League schools. His loss to Middletown will be as great as it will be a help in one way to opponents of the stout-hearted Middies.

Gridder Joins Marines

The departure of Rookie Fullback John Polanski from the Detroit Lions to join the Marines brings to 208 the number of National Football League players and executives who have left football to enter military service.

No Shortage Seen At Maryland Track Of Thoroughbreds

Laurel, Md., Oct. 9 (AP)—The war has resulted in shortages in a great many fields, but if conditions at this race track are any indication, there is no dearth of thoroughbreds.

In fact, track officials are constantly worried by the over-abundance of horses. There also seems to be an abundance of money in the betters' pockets, but that isn't worrying anybody, except maybe the betters.

There are so many horses quartered here and vanned in from nearby Bowie and Pimlico that an animal has to have a high priority rating to start in many of the cheaper races.

Particularly in events programmed for two-year-olds and for horses of the claiming variety, there are frequently so many entries that track officials, even after splitting a race once, have to exclude as many as 50 horses from one race.

Conditions of the cheaper race permit 12 starters and four also-eligibles.

Any horse which is "thrown out" of a race is given a star, which means he has preference when the cards are drawn up for future programs.

But although the Laurel meeting has been underway for less than two weeks, a horse now needs from four to five stars to stand a chance of breaking into the lineup, track officials said.

Despite dire predictions as to the success of the meeting at this track, which lies more than 15 miles from either Baltimore or Washington, the mutuel handle has been running ahead of last year's figures.

Through yesterday, the average amount bet per person on the eight-race program this year was $64, compared with a $52 average last year. Daily wagering totals are running approximately $27,000 ahead of the 1941 season.

Cuff Coaches School

Ward Cuff, veteran New York Giant halfback and field goal artist, has taken over the head coachship at Cardinal Hayes High School in New York city, succeeding Bernie Crimmins, Notre Dame guard, who has been called to active duty by the Navy. Cuff's new assignment will not prevent his continuing with the Giants.

Picked Right Team

To Be Speaker

REV. G. W. ROYALL

The Rev. Geoffrey W. Royall, missionary from China, will be the speaker at the Church of the Nazarene, on the corner of Elmendorf street and Wiltwyck avenue in Kingston on Friday evening.

The Rev. Mr. Royall has recently returned from the Far East where he spent nine years in China, four on the famous Burma Road and five in Japanese-occupied China, where he was secretary of the Church of the Nazarene. His church was destroyed by a Jap bomb at the outbreak of the current hostilities in the Orient. The Rev. Mr. Royall is one of the few Occidentals to compose Chinese poetry and pen Chinese scrolls. Also he has a collection of Chinese curios which will be displayed at the service.

At one time the Rev. Mr. Royall was mistaken for a spy at the outbreak of the China Incident, after which he spent 19 days a virtual prisoner on the coastal steamer, "Sheun Yien."

Since his return to America, the Rev. Mr. Royall has delivered over 600 addresses from the Atlantic to the Pacific and from Arizona to Ontario.

At 6:15 o'clock, the Rev. Mr. Royall will speak over WKNY on the subject, "Astride the News in the Far East."

National Rubber Situation Is Topic Of Kiwanis Talk

Part People Must Play in Present War Effort Is Outlined by H. M. Place

A picture of the national rubber situation, with particular attention to the part to be played by synthetic rubbers and stressing the part the people of the country must play if the whole rubber program is to work, was presented to Kiwanis at the Governor Clinton Hotel Thursday noon by H. M. Place, an engineer for the U. S. Rubber Co.

Mr. Place emphasized his talk with charts and also showed four balls, three made from synthetic rubber and one from natural rubber, which gave some idea of the elasticity of the different materials. He also showed a number of tires in which different synthetic rubbers were used.

One of the most interesting and important charts shown by Mr. Place was that which illustrated "the utter impossibility of handling all passenger travel on public transportation facilities." The chart, based on 1940 figures, which would not vary too much in 1941, showed that passenger cars (necessity use only) covered 247,000,000,000 miles. As against this electric railways accounted for 26,780,000,000 miles; steam railways, 23,700,000,000 miles; buses, 21,000,000,000 miles, and airlines 1,042,000,000 miles. In other words, all other means of transportation listed, accounted for a little over a quarter of the amount of passenger miles covered by passenger cars.

Cars Must Run

With 43.3 per cent of the communities of the country not served by railroads and dependent upon buses and automobiles, and with bus lines covering only five per cent of the roads of the country, it was estimated that a minimum of 20,000,000 private cars must run "if our complex economy is to continue to function properly." Mr. Place saw this as possible only if all non-essential driving ceased and tire conservation measures are religiously adhered to, since, as he had shown, all synthetic rubbers in the government program are for the military forces and "at present there is no provision for replacing tires on cars ineligible under rationing regulations."

Discussing the various kinds of synthetic rubbers, Mr. Price noted the following:

Neoprene, best of all, for specialized uses and suitability for tires. A product of limestone, coal and salt. Chemical processes involved make it expensive and slower to make than most. The government program provides for some 40,000 tons, for special uses other than for tires.

"Buna" rubbers, derived from butadiene and originally developed by Russian and Germany. The butadiene is obtainable from petroleum, natural gas, coal tar and also from alcohol produced by fermentation of such products as grain, potatoes and molasses.

There are two main Buna groups—Buna-S, the material for making tires, and Buna-N, not suitable for tires but which has good resistance to oil and gasoline.

In making Buna-S rubber butadiene is combined with styrene, another organic chemical derived from coal tar and natural gas. Buna-S tires have given results only slightly less than those given by natural rubber tires—some cases showing up even better. For the best tires ten per cent of natural rubber should be added.

Buna-S is the rubber which will be produced in quantity under the government plan—705,000 tons annually when the plan is in full operation. This year only about 30,000 tons will be produced, with output expected to reach 400,000 tons in 1943.

Reserved for War

However all Buna-S rubber in the program is reserved for the armed forces, with none available for civilian use.

Butyl rubber. Critical materials are required to build plant facilities for manufacture of butyl. Also insobutylene, used in its manufacture and derived from petroleum, is an important constituent of 100 octane aviation gasoline. Tires made from butyl are only about half as good as those from natural rubber, but the government program calls for annual production of 132,000 tons of butyl for special uses.

Flexon and Thiokol, neither of which are on the government program, are two other synthetic rubbers referred to.

Mr. Place gave considerable attention to reclaimed rubber, salvage from discarded rubber of all sorts. Vulcanized rubber may be rendered usable again, although it does not regain all the properties it once had. It is poor in its physical properties and tires made from it may be expected to give but 25 to 30 per cent the performance of a natural rubber tire.

Tunisia has formed a General Commitee of Construction and public works to control all trade and distribution.

Flashes of Life Sketched in Brief

By The Associated Press

Fashion Note

Knoxville, Tenn.—Mrs. W. E. Evans has put the parachute to another practical use: She's made an evening gown of one.

The discarded parachute was sent to her by her son, Lt. Richard E. Evans of the army air force in Texas. She made it into such a flattering piece of attire that she wore it recently at the wedding of a niece.

Surprise!

Camden, S. C.—Soldiers passing a night club near here dropped in for a bit of amusement. But instead of the expected throng of merrymakers and diners they encountered a group of somber-garbed preachers.

Th club operates only in the winter season and at the time had been thrown open to a church conference.

Delayed Action

Fresno, Calif.—The local transportation company will do its bit to combat inflation.

It has withdrawn its application for authority to increase fares from five to seven cents.

A Novel Suggestion

San Francisco—Brig. Gen. Robert L. Denig, public relations officer for the marine corps, declares marines don't like to be called commandos or raiders.

"We'd rather be called marines."

Boy Greets Girl—In Code

Baltimore—A girl at Third Service Command Headquarters telephoned library asking help decoding an official message.

"I can't understand what went wrong," she told Miss Mildred Donohue. "I know the soldier who sent it, and he's very smart. The first part is clear enough—just some army orders. But there is a line that doesn't make any sense."

Miss Donohue went to work with a radio telegraph code book. Then she called the puzzled girl.

"I've translated the message," she told her. "It reads: 'I love you.'"

Rabbit's Delight

Rocky Ford, Colo.—Marine recruiters turned down Donald Moiore, 17, when he tried to enlist last July. He was color blind.

Eat carrots, they advised. Their vitamin A might help.

Donald never liked carrots, but he bought a bushel.

When he had eaten all of them he was back at the recruiting office. The verdict: Better, but still not good enough.

Donald cringed, started his second bushel.

"I'm getting kind of tired of them," he admitted.

Shows Need of Fruit Trees for Fertilizer

Ithaca, N. Y.—Leaf and fruit analysis shows accurately the needs of fruit trees for certain fertilizer elements, and may eventually prove a help to fruit growers who wish to make the best use of slim fertilizer supplies.

Lack of potash, nitrogen, and even mere traces of some elements, such as boron, can be determined by study of the mineral content of the leaves or fruits, according to the work in progress at the Cornell University Agricultural Experiment Station here.

Soil analysis does not show accurately the fertilizer needs of long-lived tree crops, according to Professor Damon Boynton, in charge of the analysis.

As a result, the trees may actually get too much fertilizer, or too little fertilizer of a certain kind; yet the grower does not know when and how to correct the waste.

The work of analysis can be accomplished with full laboratory equipment, but accuracy of the results under different growing conditions, different soil and fruit types must yet be checked. If results are promising, the investigators will try to set up a method of orchard analysis of leaves that will be practical for growers to use.

Women Smuggle Butter

Women of Northern Ireland who tried a new dodge to smuggle food from Eire lost in a battle of wits with custom officials at Dundalk, Eire. The women excursionists were searched by a woman official and were found to be wearing special pouches hung on belts and worn under the coats. Every pouch had half a dozen pockets, each of which held a pound of butter. The butter and pouches were seized. Some pouches held ham, cheese and jam. Also seized were hair combs, face powder, lipstick and bottles of perfume.

Bag of Fertilizer Packs More Value

Ithaca, N. Y.—Fewer kinds of tags, brands, and mixtures for fertilizer, and fewer low-analysis plant foods shipped to farmers this fall and in 1943 will increase the efficiency of the fertilizer industry in aiding farmers to produce more food.

Use of chemical nitrogen in fertilizer has been limited by the War Production Board, and this chemical nitrogen allotment will be saved for food production entirely. Estimates show a supply of nitrogen only 80 per cent as large as the amount used by farmers in 1941.

Greater amounts of the other fertilizer elements, potash and phosphorus, will help to compensate in part for this shortened supply of nitrogen, according to professor E. L. Worthen of the New York State College of Agriculture. Use of more lime on acid soils to help growth of legumes will also help offset nitrogen shortage.

Proper tillage of the land and the use of all farm manures will also help to offset the reduction in chemical nitrogen.

Fourteen grades of mixed fertilizers are listed for manufacture and sale in New York state. Used properly, they should provide most of the plant-food needs of farmers who want to get the good crop yields.

Nazis Make "Hardwood"

Germany has an answer to the shortage of hardwoods due to the cutting off of imports. A new method has been developed of impregnating native timbers with synthetic resins, lignite, ozokerite, and other materials, it is explained in Berlin. The process is carried out in a closed container, and the solvent is extracted after saturation has been effected by use of a partial vacuum. The wood need not be dry, and after treatment it does not swell and is extremely hard, making an excellent substitute for hardwoods.

From one bombed London building engineers have reclaimed 5,000 tons of scrap iron, a quarter million bricks, and vast quantities of lumber.

My one passenger was a beautiful blonde army nurse—the most cheerful person in a crisis I ever knew. She never complained about anything. We were on the island for five days before we were rescued . . .

Listener—But, what did you do for food?

Story Teller—Darned if I can remember.

She—How do you like this dress? I got it for my 18th birthday.

He—Hm-m, it certainly has worn well.

A good listener rarely gets a chance to say anything.

Chairman of the Dance Committee—Can you stretch the music a little—just a dance or two more?

Orchestra Leader — Say, this ain't no rubber band.

Adversity is the real test of fidelity.

We are told a clear conscience makes people sing. Doubtless the fact that bathing is an acquired virtue accounts for so much of the bathroom melody.

"A new loud speaker will carry the human voice—without distortion—for more than a mile."—But will it do as much for gossip?

A boy attending Sunday school for the first time, was being catechized by the teacher:

Teacher—Now, where does God live?

Youngster—I think that he lives in our bathroom.

Teacher (gasping)—Why do you think that?

Youngster—Well, every morning Daddy goes to the bathroom door and yells, "God, are you still in there?"

Victory Belles Dance

Victory belles is the name of the girls who are dancing partners for the troops in Sydney and Melbourne, Australia. The "belles" are between 16 and 30. They dance with the army and navy boys on Sunday nights and meet them at home at other times. The girls may not drink at the dance nor leave the hall during the evening with a member of the forces. They may be escorted home by bus, train, or street car, but not by taxi.

Tricky Ape Trapped

After five weeks of playing impish tricks, a pet monkey owned by J. J. Williams, cafe proprietor of Belmont, England, was lured into a trap by a dummy egg and a piece of cake. After her escape, Jenny sat on a telegraph pole at the railway station and pelted passengers with pea pods. Later she resumed the bombardment from the roof of the station, using plum stones.

LIBERTY LIMERICKS

Said a nurse who had saved a long while
"U. S. War Bonds are getting my pile,
And I hope other nurses,
Will open their purses,
In an all-out-for-victory style!"

Help operate America's great war machine—with your savings and a tenth of your pay. Buy Stamps—buy Bonds—buy a peaceful future!

Python Trade Hold Up

War has caused no shortages in the South African python trade, according to Kosie Boshoff, of Woudkop, Northern Transvaal, who is still one of Africa's chief python-catchers. For some years he has been supplying the Cape Snake Park with specimens, and his latest batch in length from 12 to eight feet.

Katrine Club Will Release More Birds Sunday Morning

Association to Sponsor Contest Again at 1 P. M.; Open to All Skeet Shooters

At the meeting of the Lake Katrine Rod and Gun Club this past week all members attending the session were in favor of purchasing 50 more cock pheasants. These pheasants will be released Sunday morning on the club grounds at 10:30 o'clock.

Five of the birds will be tagged for free memberships for those who hunt them down during the season. This will bring to date more than 200 pheasants released this year. Another meeting will be held next Tuesday night at 7:30 o'clock.

Due to the number of prizes left over after last Sunday's shoot, the club will hold another shoot this Sunday, starting at 1 o'clock in the afternoon. More prizes have been added from cooperating local dealers.

The trap shooting contest between the Electrol and Hercules employes was won by the latter team. A. Mantovani was high scorer in the individual skeet contest with 25 straight. Mantovani is the third club member to receive the club emblem for breaking 25.

The main attraction this Sunday will be the individual championship skeet contest of the county. Any person interested in skeet shooting may participate. The National Skeet Shooters Association emblem will go to the contestant breaking the most clay birds out of 50. There also will be a handicap skeet match for a prize.

Dodgers Are Busy

Brooklyn, Oct. 9 (AP) — The Brooklyn Dodgers haven't filled the vacancy created by the resignation of president Larry MacPhail, but they are narrowing the field. "We're very active and I can say we're making progress," declared vice-president James G. Mulvey when asked about the selection of MacPhail's successor. "More than that I can't say."

Anniversary for Middies

New York, Oct. 9 (AP)—Although it will have no bearing on the final outcome of tomorrow's football game between Navy and Princeton at New York's Yankee Stadium will be an important date for the Middies. This 32nd meeting of a series which began in 1885 will be played on the 97th anniversary of the founding of the Naval Academy at Annapolis.

SHOKAN

Shokan, Oct. 9 — Kenneth Otis of Kingston has been spending a few days with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Otis of Route 28. Mr. Otis is recovering from a fractured leg which kept him from his work for about 10 weeks.

The community was saddened by news of the sudden death of Mrs. Frederick Herschenroeder, who was seized with a fatal attack while engaged in her household duties last Friday. Mrs. Herschenroeder, who resided with her husband on the mountain road, was a woman of pleasing personality and was held in high esteem by her many friends in this section.

Mrs. Frank R. Mouer and Miss Ruth Didier of Flushing are visiting their grandmother, Mrs. R. W. Longyear, and aunt, Miss Edna Longyear. The young women are daughters of Mrs. A. J. Didier, who is the former Lillian Longyear of Shokan.

Local farmers are bothered somewhat by their corn shocks toppling over as a result of having been twisted and weakened by the late September storm. The stalks being tall and heavily loaded with ears, begin to go down after each rain and light wind.

Callers in the village center the latter part of the week included Mrs. Jules Engleberg, a former Shokan resident, who now makes her home at Woodstock.

October 10, 1885: Farmers have so many apples they cannot secure containers for them. The supply of barrels in Rondout and Kingston is short. Apples bring $1.10 a barrel, loaded on cars at Shokan. Charles H. Weidner has shipped 400 barrels. . . The Rev. Mr. McGibbon of the Shokan Dutch Church is a worker. He adds to his Sunday labors a large Bible class, numbers of whom walk over four miles to the church . . . Frank Van Kleeck will teach Bushkill School this winter.

Mrs. Bull Elmendorf, who has put up several hundred cans of fruit and vegetables, probably takes first prize for canning this year. The Elmendorf cellar stock included huckleberries grown on the family cultivated patch in the east end of the village.

The growing scrap pile on the corner store stoop attracts a lot of attention because of the great variety of metal and rubber articles in the collection. The pile, together with a second one of heavier iron in the rear of the store, will be sold by Chairman Julia Winchell for the benefit of the Red Cross.

Autumn foliage is rapidly nearing its color peak in this section. Especially colorful are the sumach, woodbine, pepperidge, maple and dogwood leaves, with the oaks, still green, forming a pleasing contrast.

Miss Chloey Bell, east-end farmer, is not going to be caught short on winter fodder. She has been picking up sweet corn stalks from local gardens in her car for the past several weeks. Miss Bell is a worker and does well with her small dairying business.

Otto Grossmann, who with his wife operates Shokan's largest summer boarding house, was unable to get a man and team for his haying this year, so he finally bought a horse, advertised in The Freeman for a mower and rake, and did the job himself. Mr. Grossmann finished haying in September but he now has fodder for his cow and the new horse as well.

Old timers are predicting that winter will strike early and hard this year. Well, the highway departments are getting ready for it; the roadside heaps of sand have been augmented with a fresh supply, and before long the snow fences will go up. There is the sound of axes in the woods.

Manpower Commission. The government sees no reason in these days of a fast-shrinking supply of manpower why any man, no matter how unskilled, should be out of a job.

"We have a job for any man who comes in here," says William C. Betzer, in charge of the occupational questionnaire department. "Yet we don't disturb any man at any time from employment unless he's willing to be disturbed. And we call men in for interviews only if their questionnaires show they aren't making the most of their highest skills.

"Also, we are not touching men in transportation or public health work, or who would be extremely difficult to replace. In any of those instances we merely would be doubling our work, since we'd have to find other men to fill in for them."

On the whole, Wood reports, employers in non-essential industries are cooperating with the government in releasing their men to war industries. There are some who enter violent objections. But on the other hand, a growing number work out agreements whereby transferring employes are guaranteed their seniority rights when the emergency ends and they wish to return to their former line of work.

Earlier in the year the war Manpower Commission designated New York and Los Angeles as the only areas in the country which were manpower reservoirs. There is ample evidence on all sides that in this particular area, war industries now are scraping close to the bottom of the barrels.

Every day the shipyards, aircraft plants, steel mills and foundries advertise in the Los Angeles papers for workers, skilled or unskilled. The U. S. E. S. has a file of company requests running into the thousands, and the eight southern California aircraft plants alone could put on thousands more workers right now—if they knew where to get them.

"We're doing our best to build up an occupational backlog for the industries," says Betzer, and Woods adds:

"Somewhere within the last two months we passed the line of demarcation between the period when the Los Angeles area had lots of men and the time when the supply began to run low. A number of factors were responsible, including enlistments, the draft and a definite slackening in the flow of migrating workers."

The rate of loss, particularly of skilled workers, still is alarming. With a six-month deferment for training of a replacement the most the companies can expect in the cases of such men who are called in the draft, it is not likely to subside. Employment needs, therefore, are going to increase rather than decrease, whereas the reservoir of available manpower will be running lower constantly.

The companies are doing everything they can in their own behalf to fill the gap.

They are hiring rehabilitated workers, and growing numbers of men over 65; their plants now show an average of better than 21 per cent women workers (the percentage jumps to 75 per cent on application lists and in training schools), and they are training as many new workers as possible, while at the same time training hundreds of men for the army air forces in order to stave off future demands from that quarter on their own personnel.

Women, incidentally, are being taken on now even as plant guards, since they can be used in such spots as entrance gates where visitors' credentials have to be checked.

Vultee Aircraft, realizing there will be urgent need for supervisors, has established a plant orientation school, in which men especially recommended by their foremen and department heads get a thorough 16-week course from which they emerge with a fuller understanding of plant operation. Such a course might be compared to the army's officer candidate schools.

With the aid of the Aircraft War Production Council, the war industries are starting a school for their industrial training directors. Here these men and their assistants will learn how they can extend and standardize their methods, with special emphasis on the particular problems created through the increased employment of women.

The Aircraft War Production Council also is assembling a training film library. Already it has acquired a number of films from outside sources, and at present is in production on the first of its own, to be titled "The Airplane and Its Components." These will be so-called "strip films" which, after the manner of slides, can be stopped at any point for detailed explanation and discussion of a particular illustration.

How many workers now are and soon will be involved in this training work is as much of a security secret as the number of workers now employed. But it runs into the thousands.

Eight Canadian Policemen Cross North in 28 Months

Sydney, N. S., Oct. 9 (AP)—A new chapter was added to Arctic history today by eight hardy Royal Canadian Mounted Policemen who completed the first west-to-east voyage across the top of America 28 months after 80-ton auxiliary schooner set out from Vancouver.

The bearded adventurers sailed quietly into this port yesterday to accomplish in reverse the feat which explorers of a bygone era had attempted unsuccessfully in their search for the northwest passage—short cut to the fabled riches of the Orient.

Only once in history has the east-to-west passage been sailed—by Roald Amundsen, the Norwegian explorer, and five other men who crossed the north Atlantic in 1903 and emerged into the Pacific three years later.

Details of the Mounties' voyage were cloaked by official secrecy, the members of the expedition declining to disclose their purpose in undertaking the hazardous journey.

They revealed that one member of the original crew had died on the way, but was replaced by another man picked up at a lonely R. C. M. P. post at which they paused en route.

During most of the time since they left the west coast in June, 1940, the Mounties' only contact with the outside world was by radio. Though they carried a goodly load of provisions when they set out they were forced to forage for their food during their lonely wanderings among the ice floes—depending partly on seals and fish for subsistence.

Joe Brown's Son Killed in Crash Of Army Bomber

Long Beach, Calif., Oct 9 (AP)—It was in July a year ago that Comedian Joe E. Brown planted a proud kiss on his eldest son, Don, then 24, as he received his wings as a second lieutenant in the Army Air Corps Reserve at Stockton, Calif.

Today Brown had abruptly left the show in which he was starring at Detroit and was flying back to claim the body of his son, who as an Army ferrying command captain, died in the crash yesterday near Palm Springs of a bomber he was piloting to Utah.

"Far as I am concerned 'the show-off' is ended," said Comedian Brown, breaking a tradition that the show must go on.

"Don was my oldest son, but I have another who will take his place within a few weeks. He is Joe Jr., 20, now employed in the Douglas Aircraft factory. Joe has arranged to join the Marines."

Lt. Paul Herbert, in command at the Palm Springs field, said Capt. Brown had taken off with a group of bombers and crashed after ten minutes in the air. Brown, he said, was able to crawl from the wreckage but died a few minutes later.

Capt. Brown was a football player at the University of California at Los Angeles in 1938 and 1939, was student body president and an R. O. T. C. cadet colonel in 1939.

He had served in the ferrying command a little more than a year.

Funeral services will be held from the parlors of A. Carr & Son, 1 Pearl street, on Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock with burial in Wiltwyck cemetery.

Luther Osterhoudt of Lyonsville died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. David Countryman in High Falls Wednesday. He was 77 years of age. Besides his daughter he is survived by a son, Claude of Randolph, a granddaughter, Mrs. Kathleen Temple and a great granddaughter, Joan Temple of High Falls; also a brother, Leroy Osterhoudt of Kripplebush, a sister, Mrs. Sidney Meyer of Kingston; also nieces and nephews. Funeral services will be held at the Lyonsville Church Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Burial will be in the Fairview cemetery, Stone Ridge. The Rev. William H. Barringer will officiate.

A requiem high Mass for the repose of the soul of Mrs. Anna Celuch of 147 Downs street, was celebrated in St. Joseph's Church this morning by the Rev. John D. Simmons. Mrs. Celuch died at her home suddenly last Tuesday. The services at the church were largely attended and many people accompanied the cortege to Mt. Calvary cemetery where burial took place in the family plot. The Rev. Edmund E. Burke imparted the absolution at the grave. Father Burke also recited the Rosary for the repose of her soul at the family home on Thursday evening. The drivers and employes of the Pine Hill-Kingston Bus Co., called at the home in a group, in deference to Paul Celuch, a son, an employe of the concern. Mrs. Celuch was the mother of two sons in the U. S. Army, George and Francis (Andy) both well known in athletic circles here. Both young men attended their mother's funeral. Mrs. Celuch, a gracious and kindly person, was held in high admiration by scores of people. Floral tributes lined the walls on all sides of the room in which the casket rested. Mass cards, too, were offered in her memory. The casket bearers were Joseph and Edward Cherney, Amellio Berardi, Leo Miles, Robert Freer and William Norton.

SKUNK TO CATCH ODOR

Nyack, N. Y., (AP).—Here's manbites-dog news: A skunk was used here to trace the origin of an odor so bad it made work at the Bear Mountain Trailside Museum impossible.

Officials of the museum brought the skunk into the museum, then followed it as it tracked down the odor. Source of the scent was found to be rotting meat, stored by rats in the walls of a nearby building.

Soup Is Self-Heating

Self-heating cans of soup have been invented by London scientists as a part of the British soldier's emergency rations in cold climates. All he needs to do is to punch two holes in the top of the can, light a chemical heater running through the middle of the can, and in two minutes he has a pint of hot soup, even at 30 degrees below zero.

Clothes Now Soldered

Soldering clothes has become an industry in Berlin and other cities of Germany. Waterproof garments and special protective clothing are often made of "ige lite," a synthetic material, and are manufactured rapidly by the new process. The parts of the garments are assembled on a metal surface and soldered together.

CARD OF THANKS

Mrs. Frederick Hussman and family desire to thank their kind friends and neighbors for the beautiful flowers and cards received in their recent sorrow in the death of Frederick Hussman.

Voroshilovsk Located in Heart of North Caucasus

Voroshilovsk, which the Germans claim to have captured after house-to-house fighting, lies in the very heart of the embattled North Caucasus.

It is situated on the central Stavropol plateau, rising 2,500 feet above the surrounding plains. On the south, the plateau merges into the foothills of the towering, snow-capped Caucasus mountains, while on both sides of it the low steppe country, so typical of the North Caucacus, rolls away to meet the Black and Caspian seas.

Voroshilovsk, named for the Red army commander, Marshal Voroshilov, is the chief settlement of Ordzhonikidze Territory. The latter province in turn was named for the deceased Soviet leader, who was people's commissar of heavy industries.

Voroshilovsk itself, however, is not outstanding as a German objective, since it is off the main railway and oil pipe lines that cross the Caucasus Isthmus. It has a relatively small population, even in normal times, compared with other fast-growing Russian centers. In 1926 Voroshilovsk held some 60,000 inhabitants; by 1939 this figure had increased to about 85,000, says a National Geographic Society bulletin.

Wooden Porch Boxes Fine For Protecting Your Milk

When milk is first delivered to the doorstep, precautions should be taken to protect it from sunlight, which may cause a peculiar flavor known as "sunshine flavor." Wooden boxes, which are becoming more common on doorsteps, not only guard against sunlight but also help keep the milk cool and protect the bottles from dirt or other contamination.

To protect milk from off-flavors, it should be kept in tightly covered containers such as milk bottles or fruit jars. Keeping milk in an open pitcher in the refrigerator permits it to absorb many odors from other foods. Other undesirable flavors may develop if the milk is not kept cold, as most bacteria grow more rapidly at warmer temperatures. Milk that has been in a warm room for some time should not be poured back into fresh, cold milk, as this will impair the keeping quality and freshness of the new milk.

Children are quite sensitive to changes in the flavor of milk. They object to flavors which adults apparently do not notice. Children who refuse to drink adequate amounts of milk frequently drink more when they receive cold milk, free from off-flavors.

MOTHER PREFERS FIRST HUSBAND'S NAME

The fact that the following letter comes from a son makes the question more understandable than would be the case were he a daughter—whose own use of the name might be temporary:

"My father and mother were divorced many years ago, and long after that mother married. But mother has recently divorced her second husband and wants to take my father's name, so that it will be the same as mine. My father never married again; he died several years ago. Mother and I live together, and, if not wrong, I also would like us to have the same name.

To this I can say only that I have known a number of New York women who have taken back their former husband's name. But what the legal right or wrong of this may be—particularly in other states—I am not qualified to answer.

Present To A New Mother

Dear Mrs. Post: What can you suggest to send to the wife of a business associate who has a new baby? She has so many flowers that I understand they can't all be put in her room. But I don't know her very well and would not wish to send anything personal. (My wife is out of town and I'll have to buy whatever you suggest.)

Answer: Something permanent for the baby would be very suitable. A silver rattle or a mother-of-pearl teething ring with silver bells on it; or a set of bib-pins. If you want to give a more important present, the bib-pins come in all values—or you might send a silver mug of a porringer.

What To Send or Take To Party

Dear Mrs. Post: We are invited to a wedding anniversary party, at a hotel, and would like to know what is custmarily taken or sent to such a party. It is evidently to be a big party.

Answer: Any object of silver is suitable. But unless you are intimate friends it is not necessary that you take a gift.

School Girls Wants To Paint Her Lips

Dear Mrs. Post: My parents are strict compared with my friends' parents. I will be in the second year at high school and they still will not let me wear make-up.

Answer: If your lips are very pale and therefore suggest illness, then, I think, you might use a very little lipstick. But if you have the normal beauty of youth you won't need any for some time to come.

You'll find some very helpful information about the giving of buffet suppers, and formal dinners, in Mrs. Post's new booklet, "The Etiquette of Service." Send for it, enclosing ten cents in coins and a three-cent stamp to cover postafe and handling. Address Mrs. Post, care of Kingston Daily Freeman, Box 75, Station O. New York, N. Y.

The Mail Goes Through

Water-stained letters from the Philippines, long delayed but now at length delivered safely to the addresses, tell the story of a mail pouch recovered from the waters of the Pacific to bring belated news of the last days of Bataan and Corregidor, the war department said.

The recent receipt of letters from members of the armed forces who were fighting in the Philippines led some of the recipients to think that new communication was being opened with the captured men. Actually the mail left the Philippines in March, probably by way of a submarine which transferred it in a mail pouch to a small freighter. Subsequently, the ship was torpedoed. The mail bag floating at the scene was pulled from the sea and its contents were forwarded to the army postal service of the war department which sent the letters on to the addresses.

Ancient Folk Medicine

The popular folk medicine of the Roman empire from the time of Pliny the Elder to that of Sextus Placitus comprised remedies that shock the modern intelligence. The same sort of prescriptions, comprising curious herbal, animal and mineral substances are found in the medieval handbooks of materia medica.

To be sure, in the medieval handbooks there is a higher proportion of such material than in the Roman treatises, says "Ciba Symposia." There is, likewise, a higher proportion of such material in the medicine of the Fourth century empire than in that of the First century.

Need for Electric Equipment

Power lines sponsored in recent years by the Rural Electrification administration have left stranded and idle many individual electric plants along the 380,000 miles of REA lines. The U. S. army signal corps has informed the REA that the army needs such small electric outfits for operating communications equipment, especially at remote bases. The Signal corps needs 110-volt or 220-volt alternating current plants including engines and generators with capacities of from 500 watts to 25 kilowatts or larger.

PEAR HARVESTING

San Jose, Calif., (AP).—Orchard labor shortage has caused hundreds of tons of pears to be dumped in various fields in this rich fruit country, says H. V. Beckman, manager of the Pear Growers Protective League. He blamed the situation on failure of the government to permit importation of Mexican workers early enough.

"Starlight" Costly

"Starlights" in Belfast, Northern Ireland, which the Government designed in such a way that they must burn continuously, have aroused some complaint because of the cost. To turn the lamps off and on it would be necessary to take each lamp to pieces to put it out. The lighting officials say it is more economical to keep the lamps burning gas all the time.

Two Men Have 3-Decade Sunday School Records

Perfect attendance records in Sunday school over a long period of years has become a habit with Alfred R. Finley of German street, who this year is rounding out 33 years of never missing a Sunday school session. George Herbert Leeming, recently missed Bible class for the first time in 31 years, owing to illness.

Mr. Finley, who is now serving as secretary of the Sunday school of the Rondout Presbyterian Church, is the only member of the Sunday school since it was established more than 100 years ago, who has attained a 33-year record of perfect attendance. It speaks well for the remarkable health he has enjoyed in that long period of time.

He began his long record of attending Sunday school when as a little boy he became a member of the primary class of the school, and was gradually promoted to more advanced classes as the years passed.

Mr. Leeming is a former Walden resident, leaving there for Pasadena, Calif, about 18 years ago. He got the first 13 years of his perfect attendance record as a member of the Sunday school of the Walden Methodist Church. A recent illness that necessitated hospitalization caused him to miss his Sunday Bible class for the first time in 31 years.

Bundles for Britain Discontinued At Local Chapters' Annual Meeting

As voted at yesterday's annual meeting of the local Bundles Chapters the Bundles for Britain, Inc., will be discontinued. It was with deep regret that the members so moved but it was felt that since the entrance of the United States into the world conflict, the interest in the organization had waned and difficulties had been met in shipping the material to England. It was pointed out that the need for aid to the British people was still an important task but the local group did not feel they could carry on with this work. The balance on hand in the Bundles for Britain treasury will be sent to St. Thomas's Hospital in London, England. This amounts to $381.03. The hospital was bombed and funds from the chapter have already aided in the rebuilding of the children's ward.

It was further decided that the Bundles for America group would do more work for local people and charities this year. In the past most of the materials and articles were sent to the New York office from where they were distributed to the needy service men and families. However, the number of needy families in the local area led the members to decide on keeping articles for use in Kingston and the county. Several organizations such as the Salvation Army and the Volunteers of America had already contacted Bundles for America, Inc., for clothing.

Mrs. Myron S. Teller was hostess to about 20 who attended this meeting at her home, 212 Fair street. Miss Eleanor Easton, who had served during the year as chairman of the joint organization, presided. Reports were read by the various committee chairmen and the reports of the secretary, Mrs. Jack Clair, and two treasurers, Stanton A. Warren, Bundles for America, Inc., and Mrs. Newton Fessenden, Bundles for Britain, Inc., were given.

The packing committee reported that 3,100 garments had been sent to Britain and 503 to the Bundles for America. Reports were also made of the radio programs, the jewelry, tinfoil, sewing and knitting committees.

One of the most important projects of the year was the salvage sewing committee work. Volunteers for this were obtained through the Women's Club at the Y. W. C. A., the Monday Sewing Club under the leadership of Mrs. Edgar Richards, who specialized in infant garments, Stone Ridge group under the chairmanship of Mrs. Charles Walden, and the Woodstock group with Mrs. Harvey I. Todd directing. The sewing committee in Kingston was divided into two groups, a morning group with Mrs. Henry Snitlin chairman and the afternoon group with Mrs. Gwendolyn Kershaw, chairman. From materials salvaged they made smocks, dresses, boys' and girls' blouses, pajamas, khaki gloves, hospital garments, comfort kits, and infants' garments. The morning group completed 189 articles and the afternoon group, 212.

In reporting for the knitting committee, Mrs. James Chase said that 1,429 pieces had been sent to Bundles for Britain and 232 articles to Bundles for America. Of course these reports cover the year's work and Bundles for America was not organized until March 3. There were also 30 afghans sent out not included in the knitting of sweaters, socks, helmets, mittens and chest protectors. Some supplies had been given to several local young men in the service.

It was further decided to continue with the sewing projects but that the knitting and selling of merchandise would be discontinued. The difficulty to secure yarn was one of the main reasons to stop the knitting and then the committee felt there would be duplication of work among the other organizations. Tentative plans were made to open the depot only one day a week at which time packing and collecting of articles could be done. At the next executive meeting details will be planned and officers for the coming year will be elected.

Following the business session the hostess served tea. She was assisted in pouring by Mrs. Edgar Richards.

The annual report, in part, of the secretary is as follows: "Thirteen meetings of the executive committee of the organization called Bundles for Britain and Bundles for America were held since October, 1941.

"In November, 1941, the advertising of the sewing project seriously began. This salvage sewing room met every Tuesday. The invitation of the Singer Sewing Machine Company to use their rooms and machines once a week was accepted. Mrs. Henry Snitlin was appointed chairman of the morning group and Mrs. Gwendolyn Kershaw of the afternoon group. The women volunteered to give a half day every week to this work.

"A fifteen minute broadcast series started in November in order to acquaint the public with the work of the organization. This was under the direction of Mrs. Vincent Connelly.

"In December 1941, the official title of Bundles for Bluejackets was added to the Bundles for Britain. At the request of national headquarters for this additional relief agency, the accumulation and distribution of clothing to the needy families of these men began. The chairman of Bundles for Britain acted in the same capacity for Bundles for Bluejackets. Headquarters requested that we have a separate treasurer for both organizations. Stanton Warren was retained for this office for Bundles for Bluejackets and Mrs. Newton Fessenden for Bundles for Britain. The following month, January saw the further development of Bundles for Bluejackets with its special yarn for knitted goods to conform to the navy color.

"This movement became Bundles for America, the name officially added to the Bundles for Britain organization at the end of January 1942. Mrs. Myron S. Teller read a letter from the British hospital, St. Thomas's which has the American Ward for Children, thanking the Kingston branch for its thousand dollar contribution. A picture accompanied the letter showing the plaque containing the names of the American cities who had contributed to rebuilding the ward which had been badly damaged by air-raid.

"In March 1942, the national headquarters for Bundles for Britain made public its intention to draw on the funds of the local branches. The executive committee instructed, Miss Easton, the president, to call on national headquarters in New York city to find out everything pertaining to this new ruling. Stanton Warren was appointed treasurer of Bundles for America.

"In June 1942 another request concerning funds came from the New York office. Twenty percent of all that was made in money was asked as a contribution with a minimum guarantee of $100 a year. This plan was adopted as beginning, July 1, 1942.

"The following resignations were accepted with sincere regrets, Miss Dorothy Brooks, Mrs. Edward V. Wilbern, Mrs. Harold Brigham, Mrs. Charles Walden, Mrs. Harvey I. Todd, Mrs. John Matthews and Mrs. Johnson. All of these members had given valuable service to the organization.

"New appointments of the past year were Mrs. Hermon Kelley, chairman; Mrs. Jack Clair, secretary, and Mrs. R. Broberg jewelry chairman.

"Mrs. James Chase, chairman of the knitting committee, reported that a sailor on the first mine sweeper out of Kingston had been equipped with knitted articles from the local office. While yarn was available, the knitting under her direction proceeded with great satisfaction and success.

"Several benefits were given throughout the year. A successful card party was held January 31, at the Huntington. A series of vanishing luncheons was held, the initial luncheon of which was given at Mrs. Howard Lewis's home.

Kasimir Hudela made an offer of his ground for a card party which was held, August 27. It was a most enjoyable affair and the local office is most grateful to Mr. and Mrs. Hudela for their hospitality.

"In July 1942 a letter came from the New York office to ask that no more sewing be sent but that the sewers be kept interested with work for local charities.

"In September the question arose as to what to do with the clothing which had accumulated and which could no longer be sent to England. Since that meeting a means of transportation has been found to send things to England and it is asked that more clothing be sent there.

"Substantial donations were also received from the Junior Assembly, contributions were received from churches, Boy and Girl Scouts, and other organizations. The large sum of $94 was raised from volunteer contributions to the Queen's Christmas Fund for English children.

"The Women's Club of the Y. W. C. A. has been of great assistance to the local office in furnishing workers for the shop.

"The annual meeting was called for October 8, at that meeting the important question of the future of the organization was to be discussed. The shortage of yarn had caused a great decrease in number of knitted articles made recently. The duplication of work by other organizations has made the situation one which demands consideration and thought.

"Another thank you letter accompanied by a picture was received from a mobile canteen unit. The first night this was used the rescue squads and residents suffering air raid damage to the number of 600 were fed.

Very respectfully submitted,
Mrs. Jack Clair, Secretary.

Reports Are Given At D. A. R. Meeting

The first meeting of the year for Wiltwyck Chapter D. A. R. was held yesterday afternoon at the chapter house. Mrs. William Macgregor Mills, chapter regent, presided.

At the business meeting several reports were given of the work and of the state convention held at Syracuse, September 30, October 1 and 2. Miss Isabel Swartwout, chairman of Junior American Citizens Clubs, reported that there were six rural and six city school clubs with a membership of 263. This is a gain of six clubs from last year. Mrs. Rose K. Witter read resolutions on the death of two members, Miss Jane Slanbrough and Miss Juliana Wood. The chapter stood for a moment's silence in memory of these members.

Members having near relatives in the service were requested to contact Mrs. Harris Inglis, chairman of the War Service Committee. These names submitted to Mrs. Inglis will be sent to the state chairman who in turn contacts the chapter nearest to the place where the boy is stationed. This chapter will then take a personal interest in the young man's welfare and entertainment.

Mrs. Mills announced the 50th Anniversary Tea for the chapter to be held at her home in Marbletown, October 16. Mrs. Stanley Manlove, state regent, will be the guest of honor. Members having a car at their disposal or desiring to attend the tea are requested to contact Mrs. Harris Inglis or Mrs. Maynard Mizel.

Mrs. Rose K. Witter, chapter delegate to the state convention which was held at the Hotel Syracuse, spoke of the helpful discussions of the round table conference of the committee on Americanism. Mrs. Charles Terwilliger, chapter alternate, told of the work of the Approved Schools Committee. Mrs. Mills gave a general report of the occupational therapy work at Ellis Island done among young merchant marine men and coast guardsmen in the Marine Hospital. Mrs. Manlove presided at the convention and Mrs. William Pouch, president general, was guest of honor.

October will be an important month for the local D. A. R. Mrs. Mills reminded the group of the following dates to be observed: October 11, National D. A. R. Founder's Day; October 16, Chapter Day anniversary commemorating the burning of Kingston by the British, tea at Mrs. Mills; October 22, Fiftieth Anniversary of the Pledge of Allegiance to the Flag; October 25, Founders Day at Tamassee School where the corner stone will be laid for the Roberts High School; October 27, Navy Day.

The regent also outlined the three war projects of the organization: To raise more than $150,000 or $1 per capita for the blood plasma project for mobile units; purchasing of war bonds and stamps; making of "Buddy Bags," 150,000 by Christmas.

Members are urged to keep accurate records of war services.

Dramatic Reader Is Guest of Club

Mrs. Mildred Russell of Albany, a graduate of Emerson College of Oratory was the guest artist at the opening meeting of the Women's Club at the Y. W. C. A. yesterday afternoon. Mrs. Russell gave a dramatic interpretation of "If You Only Knew" by Sophie Kerr. The story concerns nine women at a style show all of whom find a certain pink evening gown which will fit exactly the mood which they desire to create.

The dress has been designed by Madamoiselle De Launey who is quite pleased with her creation Mrs. Bertherton-Files is the first to order the gown to be worn by her debutante daughter. A fat blonde knows that it is too young for her but is the type of dress that she has always wanted so she makes the purchase. The successful business women finds in the gown relief from business tailored costumes. An heiress hopes that it will convince her lover to love her for herself and not for her money and she orders one in pink and one in blue. The actress chooses the dress realizing that it might restore her waning charms and a loving wife orders it for her husband will like her in it. Linnie who has been modeling the gown for the entire afternoon is the only one who does not care whether she has the gown or not. Mrs. Russell interpreted each character most convincingly to her audience.

At the close of the reading, refreshments were served with Mrs. Leonard Flicker, president, and Mrs. Thomas Reynolds assisting in pouring. The tea was arranged by Mrs. Fred Ertel and Mrs. Vincent Connelly. Mrs. Russell Gamzle and Mrs. Walter Danford assisted in receiving the guests.

The club will meet, October 22, when Mrs. Ernest Althouse and Mrs. Charles Arnold will discuss "Feeding a Family in Wartime."

Alaskan Scouts Paved Way for U.S. Adreanof Landing

By WILLIAM L. WORDEN

(The landing was announced by the Navy Saturday).

The scouts are home now, getting a bit of relaxation by climbing mountains or shooting mountain goats, so their story can be told.

They are known officially as the combat intelligence platoon of the Alaska defense command, but the designation leaves Alaskans cold. Refer to them as "Castner's cutthroats" and the natives know the fabulous outfit of which you speak.

They faced a stormy and treacherous sea at night in rubber boats; they slept on a rocky coast without fires or the protection of as much as a pup tent in the driving rain, and they went ashore on a foggy island when they didn't know but what the enemy might be there in force.

"Castner's cutthroats" got their name from their commanding officer, Col. Lawrence Castner, son of the famed Maj. Gen. Joseph C. (Bull) Castner, of World War 1.

The Colonel, as a veteran Alaskan officer who knows the far stretches of the territory intimately, lauds them as the greatest unit in the army. Beside them, he contends, the commandos seem soft. The backbone of the platoon is composed of volunteers from the Alaskan back country, both natives and whites.

Set Out Across Sea

Late in August, after months of training, the scouts set out across Bering Sea for their island destination, with home-made boats lashed to the decks of their vessels and rubber boats inside, ready for inflation.

Nobody then was sure whether the Japanese might have a large force on the island or a small one, ready to call in the bombers from Kiska. Their boats couldn't even enter the uncharted and tricky harbor. High seas washed over the decks. The home-made boats had failed to stand the trip.

So in the dark of night, the scouts set out in their awkward rubber boats, fighting a wild sea that was running cross-wise to their course. The Colonel himself joined in the rowing and paddling.

No one knew how long the scouts might have to remain on the island—if they got onto it safely. They had to carry packs with dried fish and concentrated cereal to last them indefinitely on an island where only fish and birds could be added to their diet. It was a desperate battle to reach the barely visible point. There was constant danger of being swept miles away.

One boat made only a few yards when one of its two air sacks exploded, cutting buoyancy in half. As the men paddled frantically to get back to the vessel, the second sack let go and they were thrown into the icy water. They were pulled out safely.

The scouts reached shore and buried their boats at low tide and spread out on patrols along the beach, where the incoming water would blot out all daylight evidence of their movements. Methodically, but never knowing what danger might be lurking around the peaks, they started their survey. They picked out possible landing field sites and gun replacements. Some of them covered 40 miles a day.

When the troops came in force later, they were ready. They showed the soldiers where to build roads and took them to camp sites at a pace some officers complained was too fast for the troops.

The fame of the organization has spread rapidly, and Col. Castner has been besieged with applications. Second in command is First Lieut. Robert Thompson of Mocassin, Mont.

The scouts' main complaint is that they haven't yet had a chance to get into a fight. It's a fact that upon their return, members of the platoon refused the comfort of warm barracks, preferring tents on a nearby beach despite the autumn weather.

Two Men Are Arrested On Labor Act Charges

James Todd of 66 Crown street and Charles Conant of 67 Wurts street, were arrested Thursday on a warrant sworn out by Emanuel Soura, charging them with a violation of the labor law in not paying him wages during the period of September 19 to 29, inclusive.

Both men were arraigned before Judge Matthew V. Cahill in police court today at which time they entered pleas of not guilty to the charge, and the hearing was set for next Wednesday. Judge Cahill fixed bail in the sum of $500 each.

According to the information sworn to by Soura he claimed that Conant and Todd owed him $43.75 in wages. Soura claimed that the two men were in partnership as contracting painters and that he had been employed by them as a painter.

Has Furlough

Sergeant John J. Henebery, Jr., who has been stationed at Mare Island, San Francisco, with a barrage balloon detachment, is spending a 10-days' furlough at home. He expects to go to Camp Davis, North Carolina, about November 13, to enter an officers' training school, in the anti-aircraft division of the Coast Artillery.

Three Fliers Killed

Rapid City, S. D., Oct. 9 (AP)—Three men were killed and five suffered minor injuries early today when a flying fortress, four motored bomber, crashed near the Rapid City Army Air Base. Col. Charles B. Oldfield, base commander, said a board of qualified air force officers had been appointed to determine the exact cause of the crash. The plane burst into flames after striking a hill about three miles north of the base while coming in for a landing shortly after midnight. The huge ship was demolished and parts scattered over the hillside. The crew was returning from a routine night training flight. It was the first plane accident at the base.

"I Wanted a Housekeeper"
These last few months have taken their toll from me and for the first time in my life I felt that I couldn't continue doing my own housework. At first I didn't seem able to find the right sort of person to fit into the life of an old couple like us. Then I discovered the Help Wanted classification in the want ads. I inserted my own ad and the next day I found just the right housekeeper.

15 Senators Ask Dairy, Livestock Help Be 'Frozen'

Three-Month Deferment Is Asked Until Such Time as Manpower Plan Operates

Washington, Oct. 9 (AP)—Fifteen farm state senators petitioned Selective Service Director Hershey today to freeze dairy and livestock workers on the farms for the next three months to prevent "irreparable injury" to food production while a general manpower control program is worked out.

"We are convinced that specific action to halt the continuing drain of manpower from our livestock and dairy farms cannot be delayed longer without seriously impairing the whole war effort," they declared in a letter circulated by Senators Ball (R-Minn) and Brown (D-Mich).

"The number of farm auctions is growing rapidly and hundreds of fine dairy herds are being sold or slaughtered because the owners cannot hold the help essential to continued operation. Unless the trend is halted immediately, a crippling reduction in food production will occur."

The Census Bureau reported last night that agricultural employment had declined to 10,200,000 persons, a drop of 1,000,000 between August and September, and Chairman Donald M. Nelson of the War Production Board declared the time was rapidly approaching when the government must decide at what point the limit will be reached in building up the armed forces.

"Until we reach this limit," Nelson said, "it is a question of constant adjustment. Women are coming into war industries and other new sources of manpower are being tapped but sometime we will reach the bottom of the barrel."

There is an "outside limit," he said, on how large an Army can be equipped and supplied.

Specifically, the 15 senators asked General Hershey to direct all local selective service boards to defer for at least 90 days all men engaged in either dairy or livestock production on farms, "such deferment to be cancelled immediately and the men ordered to report for induction if they leave their farm production jobs."

on each side of the sailor and soldier monument on the city hall lawn, with a pile of cannon balls placed behind each cannon.

At one period mischievous youths would roll the cannon balls down the slope of the city hall lawn. A few years ago the practice grew to such an extent with the possibility of some one walking along the street below being struck, that the balls were cemented fast.

Sol Appel, through whose efforts the cannon and balls were presented to the city, for years was widely known in the business life of Kingston, and conducted for years a retail shoe store on lower Broadway. At his death his widow carried on the business for a number of years until she retired from business.

County Employes Remove Boiler Parts for Salvage

Employes from the county highway department were busy this morning removing a considerable quantity of scrap metal from the cellar of the county building on John street. The bulk of the "find" was made up of thmree heavy sections from the old boiler formerly in use, which with pieces of old pipe and other items of scrap accounted for something like a ton of metal.

County Superintendent of Highways James F. Loughran is the chairman for collection and disposal of all salvage material in the Ulster county "salvage for victory" drive, while Farm Bureau Agent Albert Kurdt is chairman for the farmers' committee, to which has been assigned the duty of getting out all available scrap metal from the farms of the county.

Wolverines Given Slight Nod Over Iowa Naval Squad

By Herb Barker

New York, Oct. 9 (AP)—After a quick look at last week's results, this corner has decided that the only way to hit a winner this football season will be to use a shotgun. So . . . .

Iowa Naval-Michigan: Nobody's going to get rich betting against these pre-flight schools and especially the one Bernie Bierman coached to victory over Minnesota. This stubborn vote for a fine Michigan team explains nothing perhaps except the state of our personal bankroll.

Stanford-Notre Dame: The conviction is strong that Notre Dame has not yet played anywhere close to its potentialities this fall. Maybe this will be the starting point for a new order. Notre Dame.

Southern California-Ohio State: Nothing on the records to show the Trojans can beat the surprisingly strong Buckeyes. Ohio State.

Army Over Cornell

Missouri-Wisconsin: Wisconsin.

Oregon State-U. C. L. A.: The Rose Bowl champions knocked off apparently over-rated California and look too strong for U. C. L. A. Oregon State.

Vanderbilt-Kentucky: One of these two strong southeastern outfits will need to give way. On the toss of the coin, Vanderbilt.

Mississippi-Georgia: A major objective for Harry Mehre's Mississippians but the superior strength seems to belong to the Bulldogs. Georgia.

Oklahoma-Texas: The Longhorns should get back on the rails in this one. Texas.

Purdue-Northwestern: And Texas' conqueror, Northwestern, rates an odds-on choice against twice beaten Purdue. Northwestern.

Clemson-Boston College: Boston College.

Rams Slight Choice

North Carolina-Fordham: Off the terrible beating Fordham took last week and North Carolina's strong showing, the Tarheels will be the betting choice. This corner plays a hunch, however, and takes Fordham.

William & Mary-Harvard: Harvard.

Colgate-Dartmouth: Possibly the best game on the eastern card. Stringing along with Dartmouth's fine backs.

Penn-Yale: Doubt that the Elis are ready for this one. Penn.

Kansas State-Duquesne: Duquesne.

South Carolina-West Virginia: South Carolina.

Indiana-Nebraska: Taking the outfit with the greater scoring punch, Indiana.

Panthers Underdogs

Pitt-Great Lakes: Despite the Panthers' rout of Southern Methodist the vote goes to Great Lakes.

Pensacola Naval-Alabama: The tide may be the South's greatest power. Alabama.

Auburn-Florida: Off last week's victory over Tulane, we'll take Auburn.

Mississippi State-Louisiana State: Mississippi State.

Georgia Naval-Duke: We'll take the Navy.

North Carolina Naval-North Carolina State: Not too easy but this ballot goes to North Carolina Naval.

Baylor-Arkansas: Shooting in the dark . . . Baylor.

Washington-Oregon: Probably a close one. Washington.

Santa Clara-California: The Bears are disappointments. Santa Clara.

Other Grid Selections

Texas A. and M.—Corpus Christi: Corpus Christi has yet to show it can meet a Southwest Conference team on even terms. A. and M.

Skipping over the chalklines otherwise: Temple over Bucknell; Syracuse over Western Reserve; Georgetown over Manhattan; Penn State over Lehigh; Maryland over Rutgers; Holy Cross over Ft. Totten; Iowa over Camp Grant; Marquette over Iowa State; Tennessee over Dayton; George Washington over Citadel; Virginia Tech over Davidson; Wake Forest over Furman; Virginia Military over Virginia; Texas Christian over Kansas; Southern Methodist over Hardin Simmons (beware of that one); Washington State over Montana; Colorado over Utah State; Colorado State over Denver, but close; Brigham Young over Utah; Wyoming over Greeley State.

Major League Results

At the Central Recreation alleys Thursday night in the second week of the Major Bowling League two high-powered triples were smashed by Tony Van Gonsic of the Adirondacks and Johnny "Red" Sangi of his own club. Van Gonsic, reeling off scores of 199, 223 and 206 collected a tremendous 628 series while Sangi came through with 207, 203 and 214 for 624.

Van Gonsic's scores were highs last night in the entire league. Tony paced the Adirondacks to a clean sweep over Doblers with his crushing totals. Besides Van Gonsic's total, Johnny Ferraro posted 161, 193 and 210 for a 564 series while P. Myers and Fred Jankowski unleased triples of 503 and 510.

Although the Adirondacks made a clean sweep of Doblers, they received some stiff opposition from Mac Tiano's 581 and Harold Broskie's 566 triples. Broskie dished out a 222 single while Tiano's high was 207.

Sangi's team, with Johnny himself in the driver's seat, won two from Mickeys. "Red" opened with 207 and then slapped the maples for 203 and wound up with a 214, his high single and also high in the match. Phil Masters helped along with his powerful 568 while Guadagnola had 522. Joe Scholar and Herb Van Deusen had high triples for Mickeys.

Ken Williams' 583 series of 183, 199 and 201, paced the Joneses to three wins over Hymes, Smith cracked out a 205 single. S. Winne, Hoffman and Hymes were high for the losers with 546, 534 and 513.

The final match found Steins capturing three from the Grunenwalds. Larry Petersen, Jr., had a 550 for Steins and high single of 209. Al Goldman and Svirsky came through with 509 and 500. Van Alstyne and Tiano had 507 and 506 for Grunenwalds.

Y.M.C.A. Mercantile Tonight

The third and final unit of the Y.M.C.A. Mercantile Bowling League, the American Division, gets under way tonight at the "Y" alleys in the start of the 1942-43 campaign. The two other units, the International and National Divisions, started earlier this week.

Tonight's matches include, starting at 7 o'clock, Pontiacs meeting Freeman No. 1 and Wonderly opposing the Ballantine squad. At 9 o'clock the "Y" Couples engage the Electrols.

Nocando League Results

At Emerick's Recreation alleys Wednesday night of this week the regular matches of the Nocando League were rolled. Lacey Burger, anchor for Fredericks, slapped out the highest triple of the night with his 538 while he also came through with a tremendous 256 single.

With this kind of bowling Fredericks captured two games from Rosinskis. Fredericks bowled an 826 team single in the third game and finished with a 2257 team series. Bill Evans' 478 was high for the losing keglers.

Scholls took two from the Macks with R. Shultis doing the high bowling with his 473 triple and 171 single. W. Robinson also threw a 171 single game for the winners. Ken Van Etten and Mike Abdallah had 454 for the losers.

W. Relyea's 501 paced Nortons to two triumphs over Standards. Norton posted scores of 186, 160 and 155. Jack Martin had a 467 for Standards.

The final match found Eichlers taking two from Emericks with M. Mazzucca taking high honors with a 487 triple and 178 single game. Homer Emerick's 436 was high for his club.

In the one Silver Bowling League score reported to this department Joneses won two games from Vining and Smith at Emerick's Wednesday night. George Robinson's power-laden 604 triple did the trick for the winners. George posted scores of 178, 231 and 195. Bob Jones had a 533 series.

Earl Mellow and Scott Vining sparked the losers with 566 and 528. Mellow came through with 172, 201 and 193 for a good night. The Joneses collected a 944 team single in the second game when Bob Jones hit 178, F. Storms 181, Ad Jones 177, Robinson 231 and Harold Broskie 177.

The Terrors were presented with three easily forfeit victories by Sears. The Terrors rolled the match, however, and R. Howard had high triple of 393 and single of 161. Middies' Gobeo Declared Ineligible; Admits Over Age Limit to Grid Coach

No Shortage Seen At Maryland Track Of Thoroughbreds

Laurel, Md., Oct. 9 (AP)—The war has resulted in shortages in a great many fields, but if conditions at this race track are any indication, there is no dearth of thoroughbreds.

In fact, track officials are constantly worried by the over-abundance of horses. There also seems to be an abundance of money in the betters' pockets, but that isn't worrying anybody, except maybe the betters.

There are so many horses quartered here and vanned in from nearby Bowie and Pimlico that an animal has to have a high priority rating to start in many of the cheaper races.

Particularly in events programmed for two-year-olds and for horses of the claiming variety, there are frequently so many entries that track officials, even after splitting a race once, have to exclude as many as 50 horses from one race.

Conditions of the cheaper race permit 12 starters and four also-eligibles.

Any horse which is "thrown out" of a race is given a star, which means he has preference when the cards are drawn up for future programs.

But although the Laurel meeting has been underway for less than two weeks, a horse now needs from four to five stars to stand a chance of breaking into the lineup, track officials said.

Despite dire predictions as to the success of the meeting at this track, which lies more than 15 miles from either Baltimore or Washington, the mutuel handle has been running ahead of last year's figures.

Through yesterday, the average amount bet per person on the eight-race program this year was $64, compared with a $52 average last year. Daily wagering totals are running approximately $27,000 ahead of the 1941 season.

Ruling Prohibits Player From Any More Work in Public Schools of This State

DUSO League circles hummed with excitement late yesterday afternoon when a report came out of Middletown that Tony Gobeo, sensational spearhead of last year's great Middletown High School victory in the DUSO Football League, has been declared ineligible for any further work with the Middies or any other scholastic team in New York state.

Before the Middies started to workout at one of the practice sessions this week, Gobeo reported to Coach Johnny Bateman, former Columbia Lion Star that he had passed the state age limit last Spring. Bateman queried the Middie player on the advice of Principal Frederic P. Singer, apparently after school authorities had become aroused by rumors to the effect that Tony was over the limit.

Principal Praises Boy

Mr. Singer later announced, "when Anthony Gobeo revealed to Coach Bateman that he had passed his 19th birthday last Spring, he automatically withdrew from athletic competition in the public schools of New York state.

"It was a great disappointment to us. Gobeo's prowess as a football player placed him in a place long to be remembered. The boy who will play his position on our team will be spurred on to give his best for his school, while keeping an eye on the record made by Gobeo."

According to an informant in Middletown, word spread rapidly about Gobeo's ineligibility after some fans and students had seen Tony watching the Middletown gridders drill while he was in civies. It was hinted that most of the rumors had been circulating from other DUSO League cities. However, principal Singer announced, "that no form or protest or questioning of Gobeo's age had come from any school."

After hearing about the rumor of Gobeo's over the age limit, it was apparent that Singer requested Johnny Bateman to talk to Gobeo about that matter. Mr. Singer, who had received a personal admission from Tony Thursday morning declared that he (Mr. Singer) had doubt of the boy's eligibility prior to yesterday and had been guided merely by the school records which contained his name and other information.

Loss Is Great

With the loss of Gobeo coming at this date, the Middies received a stunning blow as Saturday they will tangle with the great and powerful Poughkeepsie High School team. The lateness of this development leaves Bateman with very little time to find a capable replacement for the sensational Gobeo who has been one of the brighest stars for Middletown in recent years.

Gobeo was considered on the par with any other greats at Middletown and in other DUSO League schools. His loss to Middletown will be as great as it will be a help in one way to opponents of the stout-hearted Middies.

Gridder Joins Marines

The departure of Rookie Fullback John Polanski from the Detroit Lions to join the Marines brings to 208 the number of National Football League players and executives who have left football to enter military service.

To Be Speaker

REV. G. W. ROYALL

The Rev. Geoffrey W. Royall, missionary from China, will be the speaker at the Church of the Nazarene, on the corner of Elmendorf street and Wiltwyck avenue in Kingston on Friday evening.

The Rev. Mr. Royall has recently returned from the Far East where he spent nine years in China, four on the famous Burma Road and five in Japanese-occupied China, where he was secretary of the Church of the Nazarene. His church was destroyed by a Jap bomb at the outbreak of the current hostilities in the Orient. The Rev. Mr. Royall is one of the few Occidentals to compose Chinese poetry and pen Chinese scrolls. Also he has a collection of Chinese curios which will be displayed at the service.

At one time the Rev. Mr. Royall was mistaken for a spy at the outbreak of the China Incident, after which he spent 19 days a virtual prisoner on the coastal steamer, "Sheun Yien."

Since his return to America, the Rev. Mr. Royall has delivered over 600 addresses from the Atlantic to the Pacific and from Arizona to Ontario.

At 6:15 o'clock, the Rev. Mr. Royall will speak over WKNY on the subject, "Astride the News in the Far East."

National Rubber Situation Is Topic Of Kiwanis Talk

Part People Must Play in Present War Effort Is Outlined by H. M. Place

A picture of the national rubber situation, with particular attention to the part to be played by synthetic rubbers and stressing the part the people of the country must play if the whole rubber program is to work, was presented to Kiwanis at the Governor Clinton Hotel Thursday noon by H. M. Place, an engineer for the U. S. Rubber Co.

Mr. Place emphasized his talk with charts and also showed four balls, three made from synthetic rubber and one from natural rubber, which gave some idea of the elasticity of the different materials. He also showed a number of tires in which different synthetic rubbers were used.

One of the most interesting and important charts shown by Mr. Place was that which illustrated "the utter impossibility of handling all passenger travel on public transportation facilities." The chart, based on 1940 figures, which would not vary too much in 1941, showed that passenger cars (necessity use only) covered 247,000,000,000 miles. As against this electric railways accounted for 26,780,000,000 miles; steam railways, 23,700,000,000 miles; buses, 21,000,000,000 miles, and airlines 1,042,000,000 miles. In other words, all other means of transportation listed, accounted for a little over a quarter of the amount of passenger miles covered by passenger cars.

Cars Must Run

With 43.3 per cent of the communities of the country not served by railroads and dependent upon buses and automobiles, and with bus lines covering only five per cent of the roads of the country, it was estimated that a minimum of 20,000,000 private cars must run "if our complex economy is to continue to function properly." Mr. Place saw this as possible only if all non-essential driving ceased and tire conservation measures are religiously adhered to, since, as he had shown, all synthetic rubbers in the government program are for the military forces and "at present there is no provision for replacing tires on cars ineligible under rationing regulations."

Discussing the various kinds of synthetic rubbers, Mr. Price noted the following:

Neoprene, best of all, for specialized uses and suitability for tires. A product of limestone, coal and salt. Chemical processes involved make it expensive and slower to make than most. The government program provides for some 40,000 tons, for special uses other than for tires.

"Buna" rubbers, derived from butadiene and originally developed by Russian and Germany. The butadiene is obtainable from petroleum, natural gas, coal tar and also from alcohol produced by fermentation of such products as grain, potatoes and molasses.

There are two main Buna groups —Buna-S, the material for making tires, and Buna-N, not suitable for tires but which has good resistance to oil and gasoline.

In making Buna-S rubber butadiene is combined with styrene, another organic chemical derived from coal tar and natural gas. Buna-S tires have given results only slightly less than those given by natural rubber tires—some cases showing up even better. For the best tires ten per cent of natural rubber should be added.

Buna-S is the rubber which will be produced in quantity under the government plan—705,000 tons annually when the plan is in full operation. This year only about 30,000 tons will be produced, with output expected to reach 400,000 tons in 1943.

Reserved for War

However all Buna-S rubber in the program is reserved for the armed forces, with none available for civilian use.

Butyl rubber. Critical materials are required to build plant facilities for manufacture of butyl. Also isobutylene, used in its manufacture and derived from petroleum, is an important constituent of 100 octane aviation gasoline. Tires made from butyl are only about half as good as those from natural rubber, but the government program calls for annual production of 132,000 tons of butyl for special uses.

Flexon and Thiokol, neither of which are on the government program, are two other synthetic rubbers referred to.

Mr. Place gave considerable attention to reclaimed rubber, salvage from discarded rubber of all sorts. Vulcanized rubber may be rendered usable again, although it does not regain all the properties it once had. It is poor in its physical properties and tires made from it may be expected to give but 25 to 30 per cent the performance of a natural rubber tire.

Tunisia has formed a General Committee of Construction and public works to control all trade and distribution.

By The Associated Press

Fashion Note

Knoxville, Tenn.—Mrs. W. E. Evans has put the parachute to another practical use: She's made an evening gown of one.

The discarded parachute was sent to her by her son, Lt. Richard E. Evans of the army air force in Texas. She made it into such a flattering piece of attire that she wore it recently at the wedding of a niece.

Surprise!

Camden, S. C.—Soldiers passing a night club near here dropped in for a bit of amusement. But instead of the expected throng of merrymakers and diners they encountered a group of somber-garbed preachers.

Th club operates only in the winter season and at the time had been thrown open to a church conference.

Delayed Action

Fresno, Calif.—The local transportation company will do its bit to combat inflation.

It has withdrawn its application for authority to increase fares from five to seven cents.

A Novel Suggestion

San Francisco—Brig. Gen. Robert L. Denig, public relations officer for the marine corps, declares marines don't like to be called commandos or raiders.

"We'd rather be called marines."

Boy Greets Girl—In Code

Baltimore—A girl at Third Service Command Headquarters telephoned library asking help decoding an official message.

"I can't understand what went wrong," she told Miss Mildred Donohue. "I know the soldier who sent it, and he's very smart. The first part is clear enough—just some army orders. But there is a line that doesn't make any sense."

Miss Donohue went to work with a radio telegraph code book. Then she called the puzzled girl.

"I've translated the message," she told her. "It reads: 'I love you.'"

Rabbit's Delight

Rocky Ford, Colo.—Marine recruiters turned down Donald Malore, 17, when he tried to enlist last July. He was color blind.

Eat carrots, they advised. Their vitamin A might help.

Donald never liked carrots, but he bought a bushel.

When he had eaten all of them he was back at the recruiting office. The verdict: Better, but still not good enough.

Donald cringed, started his second bushel.

"I'm getting kind of tired of them," he admitted.

Katrine Club Will Release More Birds Sunday Morning

Association to Sponsor Contest Again at 1 P. M.; Open to All Skeet Shooters

At the meeting of the Lake Katrine Rod and Gun Club this past week all members attending the session were in favor of purchasing 50 more cock pheasants. These pheasants will be released Sunday morning on the club grounds at 10:30 o'clock.

Five of the birds will be tagged for free memberships for those who hunt them down during the season. This will bring to date more than 200 pheasants released this year. Another meeting will be held next Tuesday night at 7:30 o'clock.

Due to the number of prizes left over after last Sunday's shoot, the club will hold another shoot this Sunday, starting at 1 o'clock in the afternoon. More prizes have been added from cooperating local dealers.

The trap shooting contest between the Electrol and Hercules employes was won by the latter team. A. Mantovani was high scorer in the individual skeet contest with 25 straight. Mantovani is the third club member to receive the club emblem for breaking 25.

The main attraction this Sunday will be the individual championship skeet contest of the county. Any person interested in skeet shooting may participate. The National Skeet Shooters Association emblem will go to the contestant breaking the most clay birds out of 50. There also will be a handicap skeet match for a prize.

Dodgers Are Busy

Brooklyn, Oct. 9 (AP) — The Brooklyn Dodgers haven't filled the vacancy created by the resignation of president Larry MacPhail, but they are narrowing the field. "We're very active and I can say we're making progress," declared vice-president James G. Mulvey when asked about the selection of MacPhail's successor. "More than that I can't say."

SHOKAN

Shokan, Oct. 9 — Kenneth Otis of Kingston has been spending a few days with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Otis of Route 28. Mr. Otis is recovering from a fractured leg which kept him from his work for about 10 weeks.

The community was saddened by news of the sudden death of Mrs. Frederick Herschenroeder, who was seized with a fatal attack while engaged in her household duties last Friday. Mrs. Herschenroeder, who resided with her husband on the mountain road, was a woman of pleasing personality and was held in high esteem by her many friends in this section.

Mrs. Frank R. Mouer and Miss Ruth Didier of Flushing are visiting their grandmother, Mrs. R. W. Longyear, and aunt, Miss Edna Longyear. The young women are daughters of Mrs. A. J. Didier, who is the former Lillian Longyear of Shokan.

Local farmers are bothered somewhat by their corn shocks toppling over as a result of having been twisted and weakened by the late September storm. The stalks being tall and heavily loaded with ears, begin to go down after each rain and light wind.

Callers in the village center the latter part of the week included Mrs. Jules Engleberg, a former Shokan resident, who now makes her home at Woodstock.

October 10, 1885: Farmers have so many apples they cannot secure containers for them. The supply of barrels in Rondout and Kingston is short. Apples bring $1.10 a barrel, loaded on cars at Shokan. Charles H. Weidner has shipped 400 barrels. . . The Rev. Mr. McGibbon of the Shokan Dutch Church is a worker. He adds to his Sunday labors a large Bible class, numbers of whom walk over four miles to the church . . . Frank Van Kleeck will teach Bushkill School this winter.

Mrs. Bull Elmendorf, who has put up several hundred cans of fruit and vegetables, probably takes first prize for canning this year. The Elmendorf cellar stock included huckleberries grown on the family cultivated patch in the east end of the village.

The growing scrap pile on the corner store stoop attracts a lot of attention because of the great variety of metal and rubber articles in the collection. The pile, together with a second one of heavier iron in the rear of the store, will be sold by Chairman Julia Winchell for the benefit of the Red Cross.

Autumn foliage is rapidly nearing its color peak in this section. Especially colorful are the sumach, woodbine, pepperidge, maple and dogwood leaves, with the oaks, still green, forming a pleasing contrast.

Miss Chloey Bell, east-end farmer, is not going to be caught short on winter fodder. She has been picking up sweet corn stalks from local gardens in her car for the past several weeks. Miss Bell is a worker and does well with her small dairying business.

Otto Grossmann, who with his wife operates Shokan's largest summer boarding house, was unable to get a man and team for his haying this year, so he finally bought a horse, advertised in The Freeman for a mower and rake, and did the job himself. Mr. Grossmann finished haying in September but he now has fodder for his cow and the new horse as well.

Old timers are predicting that winter will strike early and hard this year. Well, the highway departments are getting ready for it; the roadside heaps of sand have been augmented with a fresh supply, and before long the snow fences will go up. There is the sound of axes in the woods.

SKUNK TO CATCH ODOR

Nyack, N. Y., (AP)—Here's man-bites-dog news: A skunk was used here to trace the origin of an odor so bad it made work at the Bear Mountain Trailside Museum impossible.

Officials of the museum brought the skunk into the museum, then followed it as it tracked down the odor. Source of the scent was found to be rotting meat, stored by rats in the walls of a nearby building.

Soup Is Self-Heating

Self-heating cans of soup have been invented by London scientists as a part of the British soldier's emergency rations in cold climates. All he needs to do is to punch two holes in the top of the can, light a chemical heater running through the middle of the can, and in two minutes he has a pint of hot soup, even at 30 degrees below zero.

Clothes Now Soldered

Soldering clothes has become an industry in Berlin and other cities of Germany. Waterproof garments and special protective clothing are often made of "ige lite," a synthetic material, and are manufactured rapidly by the new process. The parts of the garments are assembled on a metal surface and soldered together.

Voroshilovsk Located in Heart of North Caucasus

Voroshilovsk, which the Germans claim to have captured after house-to-house fighting, lies in the very heart of the embattled North Caucasus.

It is situated on the central Stavropol plateau, rising 2,500 feet above the surrounding plains. On the south, the plateau merges into the foothills of the towering, snow-capped Caucasus mountains, while on both sides of it the low steppe country, so typical of the North Caucacus, rolls away to meet the Black and Caspian seas.

Voroshilovsk, named for the Red army commander, Marshal Voroshilov, is the chief settlement of Ordzhonikidze Territory. The latter province in turn was named for the deceased Soviet leader, who was people's commissar of heavy industries.

Voroshilovsk is an important way station on the road to the richly productive oil fields of Grozny, about an hour's bomber flight to the southeast. The Nazi advance in this direction is the eastern prong of a double-headed drive, the western end of which is pointed at the Maikop fields, south of Rostov.

Voroshilovsk itself, however, is not outstanding as a German objective, since it is off the main railway and oil pipe lines that cross the Caucasus Isthmus. It has a relatively small population, even in normal times, compared with other fast-growing Russian centers. In 1926 Voroshilovsk held some 60,000 inhabitants; by 1939 this figure had increased to about 85,000, says a National Geographic Society bulletin.

Wooden Porch Boxes Fine For Protecting Your Milk

Hot-weather off-flavors in milk, one of the most vital foods for freedom, can be prevented by observing a few simple rules.

When milk is first delivered to the doorstep, precautions should be taken to protect it from sunlight, which may cause a peculiar flavor known as "sunshine flavor." Wooden boxes, which are becoming more common on doorsteps, not only guard against sunlight but also help keep the milk cool and protect the bottles from dirt or other contamination.

To protect milk from off-flavors, it should be kept in tightly covered containers such as milk bottles or fruit jars. Keeping milk in an open pitcher in the refrigerator permits it to absorb many odors from other foods. Other undesirable flavors may develop if the milk is not kept cold, as most bacteria grow more rapidly at warmer temperatures. Milk that has been in a warm room for some time should not be poured back into fresh, cold milk, as this will impair the keeping quality and freshness of the new milk.

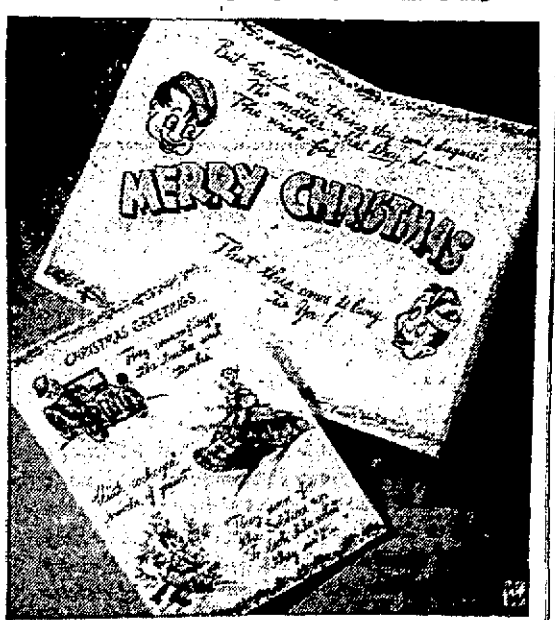

Children are quite sensitive to changes in the flavor of milk. They object to flavors which adults apparently do not notice. Children who refuse to drink adequate amounts of milk frequently drink more when they receive cold milk, free from off-flavors.

MOTHER PREFERS FIRST HUSBAND'S NAME

The fact that the following letter comes from a son makes the question more understandable than would be the case were he a daughter—whose own use of the name might be temporary:

"My father and mother were divorced many years ago, and long after that mother married. But mother has recently divorced her second husband and wants to take my father's name, so that it will be the same as mine. My father never married again; he died several years ago. Mother and I live together, and, if not wrong, I also would like us to have the same name.

To this I can say only that I have known a number of New York women who have taken back their former husband's name. But what the legal right or wrong of this may be—particularly in other states—I am not qualified to answer.

Present To A New Mother

Dear Mrs. Post: What can you suggest to send to the wife of a business associate who has a new baby? She has so many flowers that I understand they can't all be put in her room. But I don't know her very well and would not wish to send anything personal. (My wife is out of town and I'll have to buy whatever you suggest.)

Answer: Something permanent for the baby would be very suitable. A silver rattle or a mother-of-pearl teething ring with silver bells on it; or a set of bib-pins. If you want to give a more important present, the bib-pins come in all values—or you might send a silver mug of a porringer.

What To Send or Take To Party

Dear Mrs. Post: We are invited to a wedding anniversary party, at a hotel, and would like to know what is customarily taken or sent to such a party. It is evidently to be a big party.

Answer: Any object of silver is suitable. But unless you are intimate friends it is not necessary that you take a gift.

School Girls Wants To Paint Her Lips

Dear Mrs. Post: My parents are strict compared with my friends' parents. I will be in the second year at high school and they still will not let me wear make-up.

Answer: If your lips are very pale and therefore suggest illness, then, I think, you might use a very little lipstick. But if you have the normal beauty of youth you won't need any for some time to come.

You'll find some very helpful information about the giving of buffet suppers, and formal dinners, in Mrs. Post's new booklet, "The Etiquette of Service." Send for it, enclosing ten cents in coins and a three-cent stamp to cover postage and handling. Address Mrs. Post, care of Kingston Daily Freeman, Box 75, Station O, New York, N. Y.

The Mail Goes Through

Water-stained letters from the Philippines, long delayed but now at length delivered safely to the addressees, tell the story of a mail pouch recovered from the waters of the Pacific to bring belated news of the last days of Bataan and Corregidor, the war department said.

The recent receipt of letters from members of the armed forces who were fighting in the Philippines led some of the recipients to think that new communication was being opened with the captured men. Actually the mail left the Philippines in March, probably by way of a submarine which transferred it in a mail pouch to a small freighter. Subsequently, the ship was torpedoed. The mail bag floating at the scene was pulled from the sea and its contents were forwarded to the army postal service of the war department which sent the letters on to the addressees.

Ancient Folk Medicine

The popular folk medicine of the Roman empire from the time of Pliny the Elder to that of Sextus Placitus comprised remedies that shock the modern intelligence. The same sort of prescriptions, comprising curious herbal, animal and mineral substances are found in the medieval handbooks of materia medica.

To be sure, in the medieval handbooks there is a higher proportion of such material than in the Roman treatises, says "Ciba Symposia." There is, likewise, a higher proportion of such material in the medicine of the Fourth century empire than in that of the First century.

Need for Electric Equipment

Power lines sponsored in recent years by the Rural Electrification administration have left stranded and idle many individual electric plants along the 380,000 miles of REA lines. The U. S. army signal corps has informed the REA that the army needs such small electric outfits for operating communications equipment, especially at remote bases. The Signal corps needs 110-volt or 220-volt alternating current plants including engines and generators with capacities of from 500 watts to 25 kilowatts or larger.

PEAR HARVESTING

San Jose, Calif., (AP)—Orchard labor shortage has caused hundreds of tons of pears to be dumped in various fields in this rich fruit country, says H. V. Beckman, manager of the Pear Growers Protective League. He blamed the situation on failure of the government to permit importation of Mexican workers early enough.

"Starlight" Costly

"Starlights" in Belfast, Northern Ireland, which the Government designed in such a way that they must burn continuously, have aroused some complaint because of the cost. To turn the lamps off and on it would be necessary to take each lamp to pieces to put it out. The lighting officials say it is more economical to keep the lamps burning gas all the time.

Two Men Have 3-Decade Sunday School Records

Perfect attendance records in Sunday school over a long period of years has become a habit with Alfred R. Finley of German street, who this year is rounding out 33 years of never missing a Sunday school session. George Herbert Leeming, recently missed Bible class for the first time in 31 years, owing to illness.

Mr. Finley, who is now serving as secretary of the Sunday school of the Rondout Presbyterian Church, is the only member of the Sunday school since it was established more than 100 years ago, who has attained a 33-year record of perfect attendance. It speaks well for the remarkable health he has enjoyed in that long period of time.

He began his long record of attending Sunday school when as a little boy he became a member of the primary class of the school, and was gradually promoted to more advanced classes as the years passed.

Mr. Leeming is a former Walden resident, leaving there for Pasadena, Calif, about 18 years ago. He got the first 13 years of his perfect attendance record as a member of the Sunday school of the Walden Methodist Church. A recent illness that necessitated hospitalization caused him to miss his Sunday Bible class for the first time in 31 years.

Alaskan Scouts Paved Way for U.S. Adreanof Landing

By WILLIAM L. WORDEN

Headquarters, Alaska Defense Command, Oct. 9 (AP)—A rough, tough band of Alaskan scouts, who can go farther on a chunk of dried salmon than most men can go on full field rations, drew praise today as the heroic frail blazers for the landing of American forces on one of the Andreanof Islands in the Aleutians.

(The landing was announced by the Navy Saturday).

The scouts are home now, getting a bit of relaxation by climbing mountains or shooting mountain goats, so their story can be told.

They are known officially as the combat intelligence platoon of the Alaska defense command, but the designation leaves Alaskans cold. Refer to them as "Castner's cutthroats" and the natives know the fabulous outfit of which you speak.

They faced a stormy and treacherous sea at night in rubber boats; they slept on a rocky coast without fires or the protection of as much as a pup tent in the driving rain, and they went ashore on a foggy island when they didn't know but what the enemy might be there in force.

"Castner's cutthroats" got their name from their commanding officer, Col. Lawrence Castner, son of the famed Maj. Gen. Joseph C. (Bull) Castner, of World War 1.

The Colonel, as a veteran Alaskan officer who knows the far stretches of the territory intimately, lauds them as the greatest unit in the army. Beside them, he contends, the commandos seem soft. The backbone of the platoon is composed of volunteers from the Alaskan back country, both natives and whites.

Set Out Across Sea

Late in August, after months of training, the scouts set out across Bering Sea for their island destination, with home-made boats lashed to the decks of their vessels and rubber boats inside, ready for inflation.

Nobody then was sure whether the Japanese might have a large force on the island or a small one, ready to call in the bombers from Kiska. Their boats couldn't even enter the unchatted and tricky harbor. High seas washed over the decks. The home-made boats had failed to stand the trip.

So in the dark of night, the scouts set out in their awkward rubber boats, fighting a wild sea that was running cross-wise to their course. The Colonel himself joined in the rowing and paddling.

No one knew how long the scouts might have to remain on the island—if they got onto it safely. They had to carry packs with dried fish and concentrated cereal to last them indefinitely on an island where only fish and birds could be added to their diet. It was a desperate battle to reach the barely visible point. There was constant danger of being swept miles away.

One boat made only a few yards when one of its two air sacks exploded, cutting buoyancy in half. As the men paddled frantically to get back to the vessel, the second sack let go and they were thrown into the icy water. They were pulled out safely.

The scouts reached shore and buried their boats at low tide and spread out on patrols along the beach, where the incoming water would blot out all daylight evidence of their movements. Methodically, but never knowing what danger might be lurking around the penks, they started their survey. They picked out possible landing field sites and gun replacements. Some of them covered 40 miles a day.

When the troops came in force later, they were ready. They showed the soldiers where to build roads and took them to camp sites at a pace some officers complained was too fast for the troops.

The fame of the organization has spread rapidly, and Col. Castner has been besieged with applications. Second in command is First Lieut. Robert Thompson of Mocassin, Mont.

The scouts' main complaint is that they haven't yet had a chance to get into a fight. It's a fact that upon their return, members of the platoon refused the comfort of warm barracks, preferring tents on a nearby beach despite the autumn weather.

Two Men Are Arrested On Labor Act Charges

James Todd of 66 Crown street and Charles Conant of 67 Wurts street, were arrested Thursday on a warrant sworn out by Emanuel Soura, charging them with a violation of the labor law in not paying him wages during the period of September 19 to 29, inclusive.

Both men were arraigned before Judge Matthew V. Cahill in police court today at which time they entered pleas of not guilty to the charge, and the hearing was set for next Wednesday. Judge Cahill fixed bail in the sum of $500 each.

According to the information sworn to by Soura he claimed that Conant and Todd owed him $43.75 in wages. Soura claimed that the two men were in partnership as contracting painters and that he had been employed by them as a painter.

"I Wanted a Housekeeper"

These last few months have taken their toll from me and for the first time in my life I felt that I couldn't continue doing my own housework. At first I didn't seem able to find the right sort of person to fit into the life of an old couple like us. Then I discovered the Help Wanted classification in the want ads. I inserted my own ad and the next day I found just the right housekeeper.
